Young Farmers View Satellite Mapping Technology

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

PEACH BOTTOM (Lancaster Co.) — If there is one concern growers share, it's this: how do you improve a block of ground to make it more profitable?

That question was addressed Monday evening here during a demonstration of field mapping.

But this was no ordinary demonstration. About 18 Solanco Young Farmers Association members took turns in a jeep, seeing firsthand how satellites can be used to "grid" a field. Satellite and computer technology can be bound together to provide in-depth detail about the profile of soil, including nutrient levels, acidity, and other elements.

The real long-range bargain for farmers: see where nutrients, including those in manure, can be used more effectively to improve crop production.

Tom Adams III of Creswell Lime in Bel Air, Md., provided the equipment for the demonstration to the young farmers Monday evening at the Peach Bottom dairy farm operated by Ed Zug. Zug allowed Adams to map out a 6.2-acre segment of Zug's 148 acres.

Zug cares for about 60 Holstein cows and some Jerseys on the farm.

The 6.2 acres, on a winding contour, are being rotated from corn to alfalfa this year.

Adams, who has mapped and gridded 1,800 acres for various farms, drove a small jeep containing receiver and storage equipment. Using the global positioning satellite (GPS) system put in place by the government, Adams uses a special receiver/storage system

Pennsylvania Requires Vet Certificates

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An outbreak of a viral disease that causes mouth sores and ulcers in horses, cattle and swine has broken out in three Southwestern states and to help protect the rest of the states, especially in the Northeast, some additional temporary biosecurity measures are being implemented.

In Pennsylvania, state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. has announced that the Department of Agriculture is requiring domestic animals entering Pennsylvania from states where the disease has been present to carry an official certificate of veterinary inspection.

Those states are New Mexico, Texas, and Arizona.

The disease is called vesicular stomatitis and, according to state veterinarians, it causes ulcers in the mouth of the animal and makes it difficult for them to eat and drink.

While severe cases can lead to the death of the animal, it is usually isn't the case, but instead the disease poses significant production problems if livestock can't eat correctly.

The disease is caused by a virus and most viruses have a five to seven day incubation time, and a

FFA Golf Tournament Exceeds $25,000 Goal

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — "Unbelieveable!" Kerry Hoffman, FFA event coordinator, said as she tallied up the results of the annual Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament and Dinner/Auction held Monday.

While the exact amount garnered from golfing fees and auction items was not known at press-time, it was evident that the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation exceeded its $25,000 fund-raising goal.

"Every thing at the auction went for more than we ever dreamed," Hoffman said.

Garnering the highest bid was a Dorset lamb. Excitement coursed through the crowd with brisk bidding that culminated with a $2,000 bid from Brian Stevenson and Bill Richards of Pepsi Cola.

Stevenson said that he and Richards had no intention of buying a lamb or of spending $2,000 when he came to the event, but, like others in attendance, he likes to support FFA. Pepsi Cola's interest in FFA was sparked through its involvement with Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, sponsors of the fundraiser.

The unusual part about the $2,000 bid is that the lamb was given to FFA member Rachel Day of New Holland. Originally, the

JULY 22, 1998

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was seasonally slow. Seller offerings on the smaller sizes continued to be in best balance; heavier weights ranged adequate to available. Live supplies were moderate; weights were mixed in a full range with lighter weights becoming more available due to increasing heat and humidity. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 66 to 80 cents. Trade sentiment was about steady. In the parts complex, wings were readily available and slow to clear. Thighs were no more than adequate. Other items were generally adequate.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids spent another day on the down side as profit taking and continued good growing weather undermined bids. Wheat 1 to 9 cents lower. Corn steady to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 3 cents lower. Soybeans 8 to 11 cents lower. Moderate temperatures and scattered rainfall weighed on bids today. Forecasters are predicting more of the same over the next several days. Corn and soybean bids were also pushed lower by fund selling on the Board. Export sales are slow to come this week, however, a few wheat orders were reported overnight

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

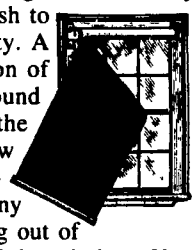
LAMMAS DAY, AUG. 1.

HOW TO LIVE LONG

In our first Old Farmer's Almanac, published in 1792, Robert B. Thomas listed a few rules for longevity. Not unlike modern-day prescriptions for good health, they included: Live chastely, if you wish to live long. Eat to live, not to satiety. A good constitution is the foundation of long life. The mind should be "sound and gay, yet sage withal." Keep the body in reasonable activity. Chew perfectly what you eat. In an extraordinary sweat, you should not, by any means, be uncovered. After coming out of bed, you should never look out of the window. You should eat very little of new fruit at a time.



Eat an apple going to bed, make the doctor beg his bread.

TIP OF THE WEEK

BAKED APPLES & SAUSAGE

- 1 pound bulk sausage
- 6 tart apples ('Granny Smith' or other baking apple)
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Brown the sausage in a skillet. Wash the apples and cut off the tops. Remove the cores and hollow out the apples, leaving just a ½-inch thickness. Chop the removed apple flesh and mix with the browned sausage, brown sugar, cinnamon, and lemon rind. Fill the apples with the mixture, place into a baking dish, cover, and bake at 375° F until tender, about 40 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

After Lammas Day, corn ripens as much by night as by day.

If the first week in August is unusually warm, the winter will be white and long.

August sunshine and bright nights ripen the grapes.

Successful FFA Golf Tournament

The annual Hoss'Fore FFA Golf Tournament and dinner/auction was held this week with great results for the fund-raising effort of the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation. The total exceeded the goal of $25,000 because many people got involved.

The event has grown so much that two golf courses are needed to accommodate the crowd. Between Fox Chase and Hawk Valley more than 240 players registered for the event. In addition, the auction brought in more than anyone expected.

The event depends on the generosity of so many people. Agribusinesses donate money and prizes. Donations of items for the auction get larger every year.

To mention one individual donor or bidder at the auction would detract from the total effort put forth by so many people. Of course, the event would never happen if Bill and Nancy Campbell did not sponsor the event under the banner of the Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament. Not only do they serve the golfers and guests with a delicious lunch and dinner, they often buy one of the more costly items at the auction.

To everyone who had a part in this successful event Monday evening——thanks. Through your generosity, the FFA youth of the state are better served.

To Keep SCC Counts Low

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reminds us that keeping somatic cell counts (SCC) low in hot weather is a challenge. Infectious bacteria thrive in warm filthy areas

If cows are not protected from these areas, the risk of these organisms invading cows' udders, hoof tissues and reproductive tracts are greatly increased When cows are stressed by hot conditions, depressed appetite, hoof infections and other ailments, their immune status is jeopardized and they are less able to fight off invading organisms.

Thus, strategies for maintaining low SCC levels in summer include efforts to bolster the cow's immune system by reducing heat stress, improving cow comfort, maintaining a sanitary environment for cows, adhering to strict protocols and sanitary procedures at milking time and maintaining good nutrition and herd health

To Monitor SCC Counts

Bacteria do not take the summer off while you are in the field, according to Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent. It is very important to monitor your DHIA somatic cell count (SCC) code levels closely Keep the percentage of cows in SCC code levels 7, 8 and 9 low. Treat and cull these cows as necessary.

These are the "hot" cows that really pump cells into the milk tank. These are the cows that pose the greatest risk to other cows in the herd. Just as important, keep the percentage of cows in SCC code categories of 4,5 and 6 from creeping up on you.

These are largely sub clinical cows that you may be content to live with. They will probably keep your herd average SCC counts in the 300,000 to 500,000 range. Being content to live with these SCC levels really makes your job of controlling mastitis flare-ups hard. These cows will become the "hot" cows of the future Think of these cows as hot embers in a hay mow that must be dealt with immediately

To Apply For Fuel Tax Refund

Pennsylvania liquid fuels tax refund claims for the period July 1, 1997 to June 30, 1998 may be filed with the Board of Finance and Revenue until September 30, 1998. State law allows for reimbursement of state tax paid by farmers for gas, diesel and other fuels.

Each claim must include copies of paid receipts or a statement from the fuel dealer that indicates the number of gallons purchased, purchased dates and verification the state excise tax was paid. Recent changes in the law has complicated filing for this year.

Make sure you fill out the correct forms. Claim forms are available from the Board of Finance and Revenue, 500C Finance Building, Harrisburg PA 17120 For more information, call 717-787-6534.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

LIVING IN THE HOUSE YOU BUILT

July 26, 1998

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 28:1-13
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 7:15-27

William B. Silverman tells an old rabbinic story about Rabbi Zusya, who, before his death, wept as he said, "In the coming world God will not ask me: 'Why were you not as Moses?' because I am not Moses. God will not ask me 'Why were you not like Isaiah?' because I am not Isaiah." "Why then," asked one of his disciples, "do you weep?" Rabbi Zusya sighed as he answered: "It is because God will ask me: 'Why were you not Zusya?' Have I lived up to the best in me? What shall I answer?"

Some of us assume that we do not have much, if anything, to live up to. But each of us was created with a "best" in us that God expects us to live up to Are you the best that you can be? It is really a matter of integrity for us to be true to that inner gift, the most precious thing that any of us can ever possess.

This can only occur when we value our integrity more than we value riches. Yet, despite what we may say, we often believe deep down that money, power and fame are the things that really count—and we live accordingly. The late Prof. W. E. Hocking believed that we cannot have a sound society unless we have a sufficient number of persons who cannot be bought. He called them "unpurchaseable men."

THE PRICE TAG

Do you believe that there are people like that today? I do, but I know that lots of people believe that "Everyone has his price." Much of our economic and political life seems founded on that principle. "It's just a matter of finding the right price," I've been told.

The sage of the Book of Proverbs tells us, "Better is a poor man who walks in his integrity than a rich man who is perverse in his way" (28:6). If we give lip service to our integrity but feel we can't possibly pass up the money, we have been bought. It seems reasonable "Think of your family's welfare" "Everybody does it; what makes you so special?" "Look at it as good business."

"A rich man," says the sage, "is wise in his own eyes..." (28:11). Greed tends to make us arrogant. When we badly want something other than our integrity, we persuade ourselves that we are above the rules. We become secretive—other people just wouldn't understand it as we do.

A WAY BACK

The sage says, "He who conceals his transgressions will not prosper, but he who confesses and forsakes them will obtain mercy" (29:13). Often we conceal our transgressions from ourselves first. Once we have been successful in that, we can conceal them from anyone else—except God. He sees both what we are and what we might have been. Fortunately, there is always a way back to God for the person who sells out; confession and repentance.

Another rabbinic story tells about a good man who wanted to do something good for someone, so, observing the miserable conditions in which a carpenter and his family were living, he called the man and commissioned him to build a beautiful house. "I want this to be an ideal cottage Use only the best materials, employ the best workmen and spare no expense."

The carpenter saw this commission as a great opportunity; so he skimped on the materials, the workmanship and cut corners wherever he could. When the good man returned and the carpenter handed him the keys, the good man handed them back, saying, "These keys are yours. I had you build this house for yourself. It is my gift to you and your family."

operated on a laptop computer to map, grid, take samples, and use the information to apply variable rates of lime and fertilizer where necessary on fields.

The software, according to Adams, can be programmed to store information from 2½ acres down to 2-foot squares. Some grids can be made into any size, including five, 10, or even one acre in size. However, gridding the information about the soil to 2-foot squares "is not cost effective," and that information from larger blocks can be put to better, less expensive use.

When Adams uses the GPS system to map a field, he first drives around and uses the positioning equipment to locate the boundaries. The system uses satellite signals to coordinate position by latitude and longitude. However, because the government restricts the signal accuracy to only 60 yards, a "triangulation" method — using a Coast Guard FM signal — makes the plotting accurate down to an area measuring 3-foot square.

Using the signals to generate a grid system, soil samples are taken from selected spots. Those samples are analyzed by a private Virginia lab. Information on the samples are keyed into the computer grid. Afterward, an entire "application map" can be plotted and loaded into a variable rate applicator, which adjusts the amount of lime and nutrients on fields.

Maps of phosphorous, potassium, and overall soil pH can be laid in together to provide detail on soil conditions and need for a particular crop. Information about crop history is necessary to get an accurate application picture, according to Adams.

Using this information allows custom applicators to, in Adams' words, "write a prescription" for a field, including the amount of lime, phosphorous, and potash necessary. In the future, as technology improves, nitrogen "prescriptions" as well as micronutrient levels can be plotted and prescribed. Also, the technology could eventually be used to help calibrate the application of different types of manure to soils.

Solanco Young Farmer Association members took turns in the jeep Monday evening, following the parameters of the field, watching the location indicator on a laptop in the jeep. The indicator was made up of a red dot on a laptop computer screen that moved as the jeep moved. The position indicator worked with great accuracy.

Adams is able to key in certain terrain features, including groundhog holes, on the computer map.

The most challenging aspect of collecting and storing data is to "make all the computer equipment work and interface correctly with the data," Adams said.

Adams, who has spoken to other farmer organizations including the Harford County Young Farmers, is enthusiastic about the equipment and what it can do to improve yields for farmers.

Producers have the opportunity to "save money and get better yields by applying product in the right areas," he said. In areas where the fertilizer or insecticide is not necessary, it is not applied.

Many agree this "precision agriculture" technique could go a long way to improving farm profitability.

The kind of work to help improve soil profitability "needs to be done by the farmer on the ground," said Adams. "It can't be done by someone sitting behind a desk."

Many custom GPS maps can be generated for a cost of about $8 an acre, depending on what information the producer is looking for.

What makes the technology interesting is that the grid information can be overlaid with harvest data. The GPS system can be rigged up to a combine or forage cutter to provide a "field history" of soil productivity, according to Adams. The harvest data is accurate to less than 5 percent with combines and to 10 percent with a harvester and haymaker.

As more operators use the technology, "it will become cost effective," Adams said.

Adams, who has mapped and gridded 1,800 acres for various farms, drove a small jeep containing receiver and storage equipment. Using the global positioning satellite (GPS) system put in place by the government, Adams uses a special receiver/storage system operated on a laptop computer to map, grid, take samples, and use the information to apply variable rates of lime and fertilizer where necessary on fields. The antenna is mounted to the back of the jeep.

The cost of having GPS technology continues to decline, too, according to Tom Adams III, in center, holding antenna. Years ago, a GPS system cost many thousands of dollars. Today receiver prices range from $2,000-$5,000. Software is about $500. The laptop computer can cost a little more than $1,000, in addition to 100 manhours of programming.

ogy continues to decline, too, Adams noted. Years ago, a GPS system cost many thousands of dollars. Today receiver prices range from $2,000-$5,000. Software is about $500. The laptop computer can cost a little more than $1,000, in addition to 100 manhours of programming.

A "package" which is assembled and ready to use can cost about $10,000, if a producer wants to invest the money. But with a little learning and time to assemble, a producer can invest as little as $3,500 in a workable system.

Producers can use the technology today, in increments.

"I tell them to try it a little bit," said Adams. "I'm not asking them to do the whole farm and all the acres on it."

Producers should move slowly and check out the technology to see if it helps them improve crop yields.

lamb was donated by Nix Besser Dorsets to the Grassland Chapter FFA scholarship fund. Proceeds from the $2,000 bid will be equally split between the Pennsylvania FFA and the Grassland Chapter FFA, Garden Spot High School.

The giving has long-range aftershocks. Day, recipient of the $2,000 lamb, will donate half of the sale price at the end of the show season back to the Grassland Scholarship Fund.

Another top drawing bid was Greg Yoder's original painting of "Weedy Retreat Mallards." Bill Campbell, owner of Hoss's, paid $1,500 to take home the painting by FFA member Yoder.

A quilt donated by Carl and Margaret Wenger from Wenger's of Myerstown, sold for $950 to Bruce and Kate Lemon, Lemon Farm in Carlisle.

Other FFA chapters donations included a picnic table, Winross and Ertl trucks, water garden plants, handmade and hand-painted bird houses, sporting goods, a wooden bread box, a pump and trough planter, a child's patio set, child's wicker love seat and table set, a handmade cedar chest, sports tickets, golf apparel, Joe Paterno autographed football, plants, FFA collectibles (tractors, trucks, and crocks), art prints, and other items. Three auctioneers, Harry Bachman, Glen Wenger, and John Hess donated their services.

"Raising money for the FFA is the major emphasis of the golf tournament, but there are many other postive things that happen on which you can't put a price tag," Hoffman said.

One of these was Bill Richards' remark that his first introduction to FFA was in Conneticut. He reported that a young fellow who worked with him attended the FFA leadership conference held in Washington D.C. Richards said that when he saw what a hugh difference it made in "the young kid's life," it really sold him on what FFA can do for kids.

Each year, Hoffman said, new participants come just to golf. The following year, many come back as a sponsor, and after that they often come back as an even bigger sponsor. "That's the greatest compliment they could give us — to come back in a bigger way," Hoffman said.

Both Foxchase Golf Course and Hawk Valley Golf Club were used to accommodate the 232 registered golfers. Hatfield provided the luncheon. After a hot day on the course, golfers nibbled on hors d' oeuvres while previewing auction items before the awards dinner. State FFA officers opened up the awards dinner, which features grilled steaks donated by Hoss's and additional food by Triple G Catering. Awards presented to top scoring teams and individuals included the following:

• Golfing champions on the Fox Chase Golf Course were repeat winners for the fourth time in five years: Scott Gold, Dave Huston, John Coldiron, and Steve Moran. They scored 59 points.

• Grand champions with a score of 58 at the Hawk Valley Golf Course included Luke Freeman, Ted Kintz, Kent Wilson, and Jack Tavolaro.

• Second-place winners at Hawk Valley were Ron Dandrea, Jack Lariet, John Gentry, and Jim Parlier.

• Co-workers from Living Landscapes teamed up for a third place win and score of 61 at the Foxchase course: Jim Reich, Ryan Reich, Clay Payne, and Chris Romig, who also scored the longest drive for the day.

Contest 'Fine-Tunes' 4-H Judging Skills

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — 4-H members from six counties "fine-tuned" their livestock judging skills at the annual Southeast 4-H Livestock Judging Contest recently at the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds.

4-H'ers from Lancaster, Berks, Lebanon, York, Perry, and Dauphin counties learn from their experiences at the contest to help prepare them for Penn State 4-H Achievement Days in University Park, Aug. 4-6.

Also, 4-H coaches are provided this "opportunity to select better teams" for the Penn State event, said Chet Hughes, Lancaster livestock agent and contest co-superintendent.

"This is one of the last contests the kids go to before the state contest in August," said Galen Kopp, Lebanon county agent.

Kopp said the event acts as a "practice and a qualifier for 4-H members."

Sixty-seven 4-H'ers competed. They judge and place three species — beef, sheep, and swine — and provide oral reasons.

Juniors and seniors compete separately. In addition, during the judging classes, 4-H members are required to write their answers to several questions, which can range from the largest animal in the class to what the animal is expected to measure on the rail.

According to Linda Spahr, York 4-H extension agent, junior members can earn up to 400 points to take tops in their classes. Senior teams can earn 550 points.

For the third year in a row, top senior team was won by Lebanon County. Team members are composed of Blaine Brown, Ryan Spatz, and Ann Leed.

Top junior team went to Berks County, composed of Kristy Deitrich, Cathy Levan, and Amanda Miller.

Sheep official was Matt Sellers, Lebanon Valley/Fulton Bank.

Referee official was John Eaton, People's Bank of Glen Rock.

Tabulation official was Tim Beck, York extension.

Tabulations were provided by Galen Kopp. Lunch was provided by Deb Hess.

Green Group leader was Gerald Boyd, Lancaster extension summer assistant and contest co-superintendent. Red group leader was Fred Rudy, Dauphin County extension agent. Black group leader was Rep. Sheila Miller.

"We want to thank the Masonic Homes, Frank Stoltzfus and Gerald Tracy, for providing the livestock for the contest," said Hughes, who also wanted to thank the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds for use of the facility.

Next year, the contest is scheduled the same week for the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Following is a list of contest placings.

Florida Needs Hay, Developing List Of Suppliers

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

TALLAHASSEE, Florida — Pennsylvania hay producers wishing to donate or sell hay to Floridian livestock owners can do so by contacting the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (FDACS).

Those seeking to donate hay should call Joe Kight with the FDACS Division of Animal Industry at (850) 488-7079.

Those seeking to market their hay through a directory of hay suppliers being created by the FDACS should call (850) 488-4366.

Donated transportation is also being accepted. Those willing to haul donated hay also should call Kight.

Florida has been under a severe drought since April. Two weeks ago rain began to fall again, though not significant in terms of quashing the drought.

The first rain was falling just as a Pennsylvania, Montgomery County steel fabricator used his business trucks to haul a load of South Carolina hay to needy recipients in Florida.

According to Stephen Monroe of the FDACS Division of Marketing, the stretch of rainless weather broke over the past two weeks, but the drought situation is far from over. However, grass has begun to grow again, giving hope for perhaps another cutting of grass hay before the end of the season.

Monroe said the drought conditions that spurred the devasting wildfires throughout the state also curtailed the growth of grasses raised for beef and dairy cattle and horses.

"We had some rain throughout the state and the situation is somewhat alleviated," Monroe said this week. However, he said that up until rain began to fall, many producers were grazing hay fields, raising the fear that supplies of feed to last the winter wouldn't be available because the drought-dormant grasses wouldn't grow for another cutting.

"(The livestock and hay producers in Florida) were not puting up any hay for the winter," he said. "With the rains of the past two weeks, the situation has lessened in severity. We still may be short this winter, because they haven't put up as much hay as normal," Monroe said.

What the FDACS is doing is organizing a list, or directory, of people who have hay available for sale, and getting that list to potential buyers who can negotiate the terms between themselves.

The directory is to be on the Florida Internet Homepage at www.fl-ag.com.

Postal service and telephone fascimile communications are also to be used to link those needing hay with those who have hay.

For those using the Internet address, when the Florida Ag Department homepage appears, the user should go to the right part of the screen and scroll down to see a tractor and hay barn, and double klick on that icon.

According to a Florida official, the homepage setup is such that if an illustration of a state is by itself, that's where the FDACS is entering directory address information. The last entry on the list being scrolled should be an emergency hay site that lists where the hay is to be available.

It's also possible to get information on the directory by sending a telephone fascimile to Florida at (850) 922-0374.

The information of hay availability can also be mailed to: Forida Deparment of Agriculture and Consumer Services, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Fla., 32399-0800.

On June 25, Florida Commissioner of Agriculture Bob Crawford wrote to Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. and informed him of the problem and the local demand for hay.

"Many of our livestock producers have found it necessary to use hay supplies instead of pastureland to meet their animals' nutritional needs. Demand for hay is outpacing the supply within the state," Florida Commissioner Crawford stated in the letter.

"Please notify the hay producers in your state of the marketing opportunity currently existing in Florida."

Unlike Pennsylvania's traditional marketing of hay through auctions, Florida doesn't have such marketing. The deals are to be made between producers and buyers.

According to Monroe, those who raise beef cattle in Florida are accustomed to using grass hay, because they can't afford alfalfa (because of low beef prices). "But the Florida horse industry uses high quality hay of every sort," he said, adding that the situation is similar with Florida's dairy producers, who also use alfalfa and other types of hay for feed.

Monroe said he couldn't supply a range of prices paid for hay. Instead, he said that those listed on the directory as having hay available can be contacted by a potential buyer and the prices can be worked out.

Steel worker Jack Mellon, of Montgomery County, said he picked up a load of hay from a South Carolina retired veterinarian who supplied 86 large bales out of the 500 he had. Mellon took the 45,000 pounds of hay to Florida and then came back home.

Mellon said he heard about the need for hay from listening to Public Radio.

He said he called around his county and was eventually lead to contact the state Departemnt of Agriculture, which put him in touch with the Florida Agriculture Department.

"We already deliverd 45,000 pounds of hay. I tried to get hay locally, but had no luck. I picked up hay in South Carolina and took it to Florida," he said. "I'm not even in agriculture."

He said that half of the load of hay he transported went to Flagler County, and the other half went to Valusa County.

"It was quite interesting," Mellon said. "We did a lot of driving, obviously. We were shocked at the amount of damage. We literally drove over two hours and could see evidence of the fires, and the people who were receiving the hay are most grateful. Anyone up here who could help, it's greatly appreciated."

He said he isn't planning to make another run, but fortunately, he was able to make use of his business's trucks to haul the hay.

"The trucks were the only common denominator (I have with hay delivery), and the will to help them," Mellon said.

Mellon said that it started raining for the first time as they were delivering the load of hay. He said he brought the heat back north with him.

Futures Market Seminar

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.)- Many grain farmers are asking questions about their marketing opportunities for the 1998 harvest. Unfortunately, some of the best pricing points might have occurred last fall. The chance to secure favorable price protection appears limited for those growers that have not already locked in prices. The opposite side of the coin is represented by the livestock farmers that locked in feed prices last fall, only to see better pricing opportunities as the year progressed.

Both cases illustrate the need to constantly stay informed about relationships in the market.

Current market factors include the collapse of Asian currency, the largest bean crop in history, wheat cheap enough to feed livestock, the soaring U.S. stock market, European Economic Union, reduced and eliminated government programs, low interest rates and moderate energy costs. Nationally, 22% more corn, 63% more wheat and 15% more beans are stored on farm than during 1997. As Texas starts to harvest a drought stricken corn crop, regional farmers are seeking advice for their operations.

To address these concerns, the Lehigh Valley Grain Marketing Club, Keystone Farm Credit and Lehigh County Cooperative Extension are sponsoring a free Agricultural Marketing Seminar. Mark Gold is the featured speaker. Mark Gold, an internationally recognized authority on agricultural markets will be giving a seminar on August 7th, 7:00 p.m. at the Penn State University, Lehigh Valley Campus.

Mr. Gold is a veteran trader, floor broker and adviser working for Futures Express, Platteville, Wisconsin. His market commentaries appear regularly on DTN.

Mr. Gold's talk will cover:

1) What is the CBOT? What are the misunderstandings about its function?

2) Six-step program to set a minimum price.

3) Options and why they work for you.

4) Finding peak opportunities.

Contact Keystone Farm Credit (610) 395-6831 or Lehigh County Cooperative Extension (610) 391-9840 by August 3rd, to reserve your seat for the discussion of this timely topic.

Information Meeting Set To Form Tobacco Cooperative

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — Another meeting to discuss the possibility of forming a tobacco marketing cooperative in Lancaster County is set for Tuesday evening at the Paradise Tobacco Barn. Starting time is 8 p.m. Jane Balmer, president of the Lancaster County Farm Bureau, said the informational meeting is set to inform growers how it is done in other states.

Because much of the 1997 crop is still unsold and there is concern for the 1998 crop, growers are in need of some way to cooperatively find a market for their crop. Two meetings were held earlier this year with more than 400 farmers attending.

Luzerne County Farm Day Set

WEST PITTSTON (Luzerne Co.) — The first annual Luzerne County Farm-City Day is scheduled Saturday, Aug. 1 at the Ray Hillman Building, Luzerne County Fairgrounds, Dallas. Beginning at 10 a.m. and concluding at 4 p.m., there will be something for everyone.

A number of scheduled workshops will be taking as follows: 10 a.m. – Preserving Food Safely; 10:45 a.m. – Preparing Your Roses for Winter; 11:30 a.m.; Maintaining Your Trees Properly; 12:15 p.m. – Horse Shoeing Demonstration; 1 p.m. – Fall Bulb Planting; 1:45 p.m. – Draft Horse Demonstration; 2:30 p.m. – S.P.C.A. Adoption Process; 3 p.m. – Nut Tree Grafting Demonstration; 3:45 p.m. – Gigantic Ice Cream Sundae.

A number of activities will also be taking place throughout the day including a petting zoo, horse show, hatching chicken eggs, farm equipment displays, farm fresh produce for sale, children's games, draft horses, exhibits, wood carving, wool spinning, pony rides (small fee will be charged), building your own scarecrow, watermelon eating contests held every hour beginning at 11 a.m.; and plenty of refreshments and ice cream.

For more information contact Donna Grey, Penn State Cooperative Extension, at (717) 825-1701 or (717) 602-0600; or Pam Fedak, Farm Service Agency, at (717) 779-0732.

10-day to two-week period for resolution of the symptoms.

"This is a precautionary step to protect our very important animal industry in Pennsylvania," Hayes said. "There never has been a case of vesicular stomatitis diagnosed in Pennsylvania, and we want to make sure we remain free of the disease."

The viral disease is found predominately in horses, cattle and swine, and is spread by insects. Sheep and goats can also be affected.

The official veterinary certificate required for animals coming into Pennsylvania from those three states must certify that the animals have been examined and found to be free of vesicular stomatitis. Further, animals must not have originated from, nor have been exposed to, premises where the disease has been diagnosed within the past 30 days.

The certification requirement is to stay in effect until Jan.1, 1999, unless rescinded earlier. If that happens, a published notice will be made.

The disease shows up almost every year in the Southwest and doesn't have a common name.

Anyone with suspect animals should contact the veterinarian immediately.

Of the states observing such a similar certification program in an attempt to prevent the spread of disease, Kentucky not only requires certificates from animals coming from those three states, but also from the adjoining states.

For those not residing in Pennsylvania, contact a state agriculture department official for local guidance.

For more information about certificate requirements, contact the PDA Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services at (717) 783-6677.

Somerset County Junior Dairy Show Results

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — Four cow breeds were shown at the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show at the county fairgrounds on July 14. They were Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey and Brown Swiss.

Joshua Van Tassel's five-year-old Jersey was named the supreme champion by judge John Burkett, a Pennsylvania State University alumnus from East Freedom, Blair County.

"The Jersey's balance and outstanding dairyness and superb udder make her the best animal overall," commented Burkett, who observed that many factors enter into judging the dairy characteristics for a supreme champion.

Tasha's Dunker Tara, taking the same title in 1997 for the 16-year-old Friedens teen-ager, is a daughter of the sire Greenridge Altheas Dunker, and dam Maranatha's Brass Jet Tasha.

In the Jersey breed she also was the best animal bred and owned for Van Tassel. She was senior champion and Jersey breed grand champion.

"She was supreme here last year and got grand champion at Martinsburg and second in her class at state," said Van Tassel about Tara's 1997 performance, "but I didn't think she would win again this year. I was surprised.

Mossys Choice Julia, Matthew Mosholder's four-year-old Holstein daughter of The Choice of Mark Adam-ET and RCB Blackstar Jo-EL, was the Holstein breed grand champion and senior champion. The breeder was William Mosholder.

"She has the best udder in the show today," reported Burkett about the bovine beauty.

Matt Mosholder, 16, is from Rockwood.

The Holstein reserve champion was another four-year-old named Gor-Wood-D Flip Calypso, owned by Julie Miller of Boswell.

Justin Kaufman's winter calf — Just In Henry Elma — was grand champion in Guernsey breed. Reserve champion was Someday-Acres Elsies-Ellie, a spring yearling owned by Eric Murray of Salisbury.

Kaufman is from Friedens.

The Brown Swiss grand champion also was a four-year-old owned by Lance Bittner of Berlin. Four D Trishs Sandy is the daughter of Top Acres Combo Preston-ET and Four D B11 Trish. Robert Foor was the breeder.

Four D Heidi Erica, a six-year-old owned by Adam Coleman, Berlin, was the reserve champion Brown Swiss cow.

Some 80 exhibitors showed 144 animals in the show and 40 exhibitors qualified to advance to a district show.

Most probably will opt for the Southwest District Dairy Show held in Martinsburg, Blair County in early August.

"I suspect," Burkett said after the show, "that some of the winners here will be in the winners circle again before the fair season is over."

The show went on under the discomfort of hot weather and high humidity, relieved occasionally when a wafting breeze fluttered through the show arena.

Bernida Gable from New Enterprise, Bedford County judged showmanship. Larry Lohr was the ringmaster.

Garges Shows Wednesday's Kimberton Market Lamb Champ

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KIMBERTON (Chester Co.) — Twelve exhibitors placed 73 sheep before judge Daryl Grumbine, Myerstown, Wednesday evening during the Kimberton Fair here at the fairgrounds.

In the competition's first market lamb championship round, the Wednesday champions included Jacob Garges, Telford, who won grand champion. Reserve was shown by Joan Harris, Wallingford.

The judge complimented Garges for showing a "real firm-handling lamb (that) should hang up an excellent carcass," said Grumbine. Grumbine noted that the reserve, second place in the light heavyweight class, was "structurally firm with a lot of width and dimension."

Jacob, 16, son of Paul and Eileen Garges, Telford, showed the light heavyweight champion, a 100-pound crossbred wether. He also swept the Oxford breed division, winning champion and reserve ram and ewe.

Jacob is a junior at Christopher Dock Mennonite High School. He has shown champions in previous years at Kimberton. Jacob plans to show at the Montgomery County 4-H Roundup and the Allentown Fair.

Joan Harris, with reserve, showed a 105-pound Suffolk ewe.

Joan, 18, daughter of Richard Harris, noted this was the first time she has shown a market champion at Kimberton, though she has won breed champions in the past at the fair. She plans to show at the Goshen Fair.

The sheep breed show was held Wednesday evening and was scheduled to continue today. At Wednesday's competition, Southdown ram champion and reserve were shown by Joan Harris.

Southdown ewe champion and reserve also were shown by Harris.

Suffolk ram champions were Kelly Pike, champion and reserve was shown by Walter Ernst. Suffolk ewe champions were both shown by Kelly Pike.

Oxford champion ram went to Jacob Garges, who also showed champion and reserve Oxford ewes.

Showmanship champions at Kimberton Fair Wednesday were Amber Shollenberger, 8-11 years old; Jacob Garges, 15 years and over; and Justin Shollenberger, 12-14 years old.

Following is a list of show placings.

Business Benchmarks - Article 8

Article 7 focused on the importance of determining production costs and profit margins per cwt of milk shipped in an effort to make smart business decisions You can also use this same information to compare your business with other businesses, we refer to this as benchmarking

There are a variety of data bases that can be used as benchmarks Some of them are

- Other dairy farms that are similar to yours The ag service people you deal with (accountants, veterinarians, feed industry reps and other consultants) may have summary information for farms they work with that are similar to yours How do you compare with similar type operations in your area?

- Dairy producers in the top 25% bracket -- brackets such as profit per cwt milk, total farm profit, return on investment, output per worker or per cow, etc This can help you see what it might take for you to get to that level -- and to determine if you want to be at that level It also gives you the opportunity to compare your business with your stiffest competition This kind of information might be available from the same sources listed above Some is available on the internet For example, an email source of U S Top Dairies Benchmarks is available at http //www cpdmp cornell edu 81/

- Dairy producers in your own state. In Penna this information is found in the Annual Pennsylvania Dairy Farm Business Analysis Summary This information is made available through the cooperative efforts of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and The Pennsylvania State University Table 1 shows three years of data abstracted from these summaries by Dennis Ginder, Extension Farm Management Agent for Lancaster and Chester counties and Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent for Lancaster County Keeping similar data for your farm enables you to compare your business to other farms in the state With several years of data you can also monitor trends in your business Are you making progress?

- Dairy producers elsewhere in the country Dairy farms and situations other states and regions may be quite different from your farm or local situations Never the-less, these comparisons still help you see how you stack up with your competition in other parts of the country One email source of regional Milk Costs and Returns is http //www econ ag gov/Briefing/fbc/car/milk2 htm Some Wisconsin Farm Financial Benchmarks can be found at http //www wisc edu/dairy-profit/

When you compare your farm business with averages of other farms, keep in mind that you should strive to be better than average if you intend to stay ahead of the pack Also, the average farm may bear little resemblance to your farm Thus, you may want to focus on data for farms that are similar to yours, and farms that are in the top 25% performance category What makes other non agricultural businesses successful? Can we learn something from them, and should we be benchmarking with some of them as well?

Farmers vary in the way they allocate production costs, and the style of dairying can affect how costs are allocated For example, a farm with limited acreage will have higher purchased feed costs and lower cropping costs Thus, it may be difficult for you to compare itemized costs of production with any degree of accuracy It might be more accurate to compare categories of costs For example, lump purchased feeds and crop related costs into one broad category of feed-related costs

Penn State Extension Research Pasture Growth Charts

CRAIG WILLIAMS
Tioga County
Extension Agent

This is the second week we can look at Pasture Cover and Pasture growth per day

These charts are from the study across PA Several Penn State County agents are measuring pasture growth on Farms in their county and watching how the growth is different across the state

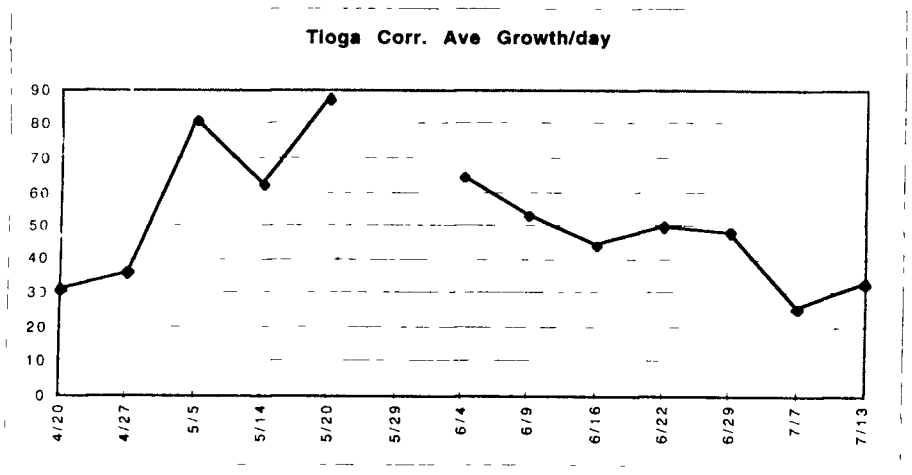
Pasture Growth/day is the paddocks that increased in growth and then the increase is divided by the days between samples For example, if the average of the paddocks increases 700 lbs this week and there were 7 days between sampling, then the average growth would be 100 lbs per day

Ave Pasture Cover is the average amount of grass that is on the all paddocks measured on the farm As you can see the Average Cover tends to increase thru the spring as the grass grows faster than the herd can consume. When this is happening a faster rotation can be used or take paddocks out for hay/haylage

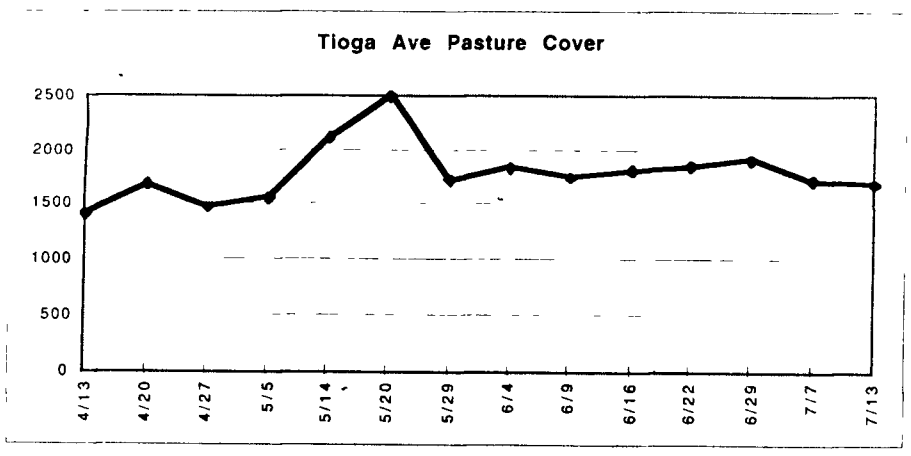
The last chart compares the Pasture cover for each County according to the equal Weeks Notice how the southern coputies grow faster and earlier in the early spring

I will have comments about what has affected the charts

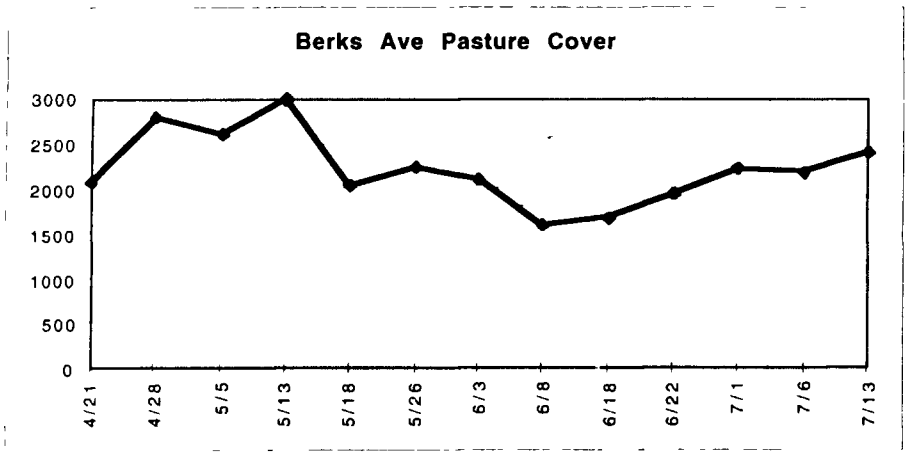
Tioga County. The break in the growth line chart is were the paddocks measured were all grazed and thus there was no growth that week



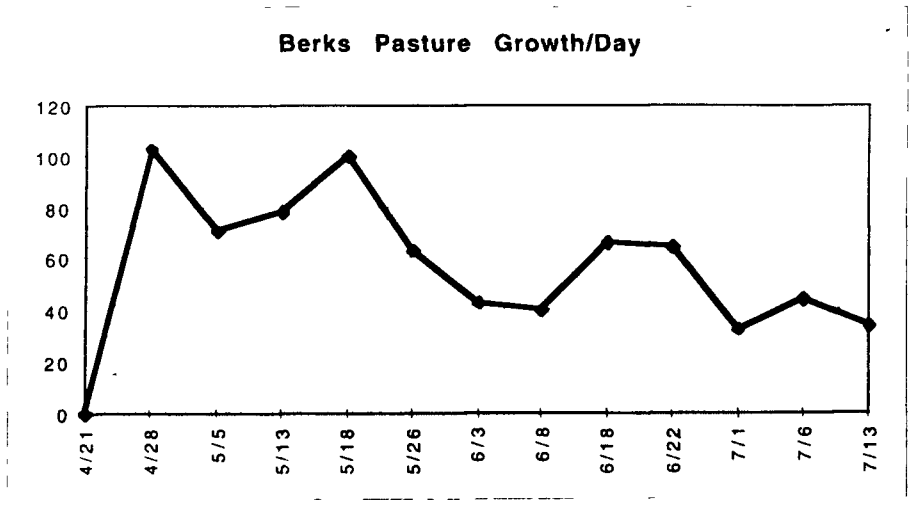
Tioga County, The pasture cover and the Growth per Day has decreased since the farmer has clipped his paddocks This is the first clipping this summer He is still on a two week rotation with his herd



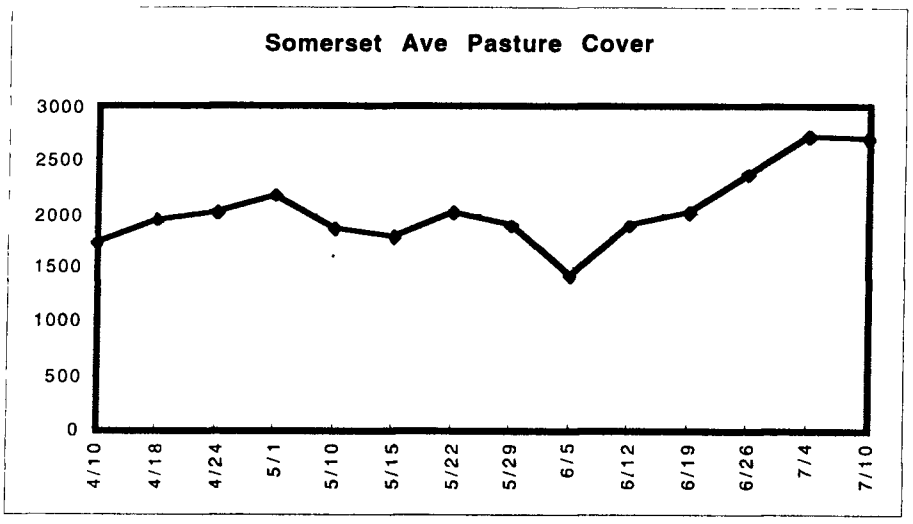
Berks County, The Dry weather continues on this farm and effect on the Ave Cover



The Berks County Growth/day shows how the dry weather is slowing the growth. Most of May the grass was growing 70-100 lbs a day. Most of the June growth averaged 50 lbs per day. This farm is on soil conditions that may show dryer conditions.



Somerset County has had humid weather and rain the past weeks like most of us. Notice how Even the cover was thru the spring and may now be growing faster.



The pasture growth/day for the past two weeks is the average of all 5 paddocks measured The paddocks on this farm are growing at ~50 lbs per day or 350 lbs per week. A 1acre paddock could recover 1000 lbs of grazable forage in three weeks if this growth rate continues The spike on May 15th is from only a few paddocks in the average.

Dana Blouch, left, and Elizabeth Howard, Lebanon County 4-H members, preview some of the items will be up for bid on Thursday, July 30th, at the annual Lebanon County 4-H Benefit Auction held at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Auction To Benefit Lebanon County 4-H Program

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — On Thursday, July 30, the 17th annual Lebanon County 4-H Benefit Auction will be held featuring items sure to appeal to the avid auction goer including farm toys, blooming plants, Longaberger Baskets, hand-quilted and crocheted items, Winross trucks, Breyer horse models, gift certificates to area restaurants and businesses, and much more.

The auction is a successful fund-raiser for the county 4-H development fund and organizers hope to raise more than $3,000 this year. The Lebanon County 4-H Board of Directors coordinates the event and contacts more than 100 area businesses and craftspersons for donations.

The auction will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. in the North Hall of the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds, Cornwall and Rocherty roads, Lebanon as part of the Lebanon Area Fair. The money raised helps to fund educational materials, member and leader activity fees, transportation costs, and awards for the county's 1,300 4-H members and 165 adult volunteer leaders.

While the majority of items will appeal to the general public, many ag businesses have donated items which will specifically appeal to farm families such as animal feed and health supplies. For fun and entertainment there are movie tickets and farm toys as well as more traditional items such as cookbooks, tools, and collectibles.

If your business would like to be part of the auction, it is not too late to make a contribution. To make a donation contact the Lebanon County Extension Office at (717) 270-4391 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

4-Year-Old Wins Lancaster County Black & White Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A 4-year-old Holstein, C Wridale Broker Clover, owned by Sandra Frey Thomas of Lancaster, on Thursday was named grand champion of the Lancaster County Black & White Holstein Show, held at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

Judge for the show was Steve Shaw, of Williamsburg, Pa.

There were 132 entries for the show, and although there were some no-shows, the size of the show was about the same if not slightly larger than most years. Judge Shaw was full of praise for the quality of animals.

He especially remarked about the quality of the champions, a large frame dry cow (Pennwood Inspiration Kween, owned by Ashley Stoltzfus of Morgantown) that he said had everything except a fresh udder that kept her from winning. He also praised a pair of 9-year-old cows owned by P. Robert Wenger of Quarryville.

Wenger showed the reserve grand and reserve senior champion of the open division, a senior 3-year-old, Wengdales Jed Charity, also the best bred and owned animal of the open division.

The Wenger family also received the premimer breeder and exhibitor award for the show, a second consecutive honor for the family. They exhibited eight cows and two heifers in the show.

Melonica Kauffman, of Lancaster, exhibited the junior champion Holstein of both the open division and the youth division shows, a winter calf, Trout-Spring-M Milan Daria.

The reserve junior champion of the open division show was shown by Melonica's father, Dennis G. Kauffman, owner of Trout-Spring Farm in Lancaster. His reserve champion was a fall calf, Trout-Spring-K Encour Xya.

In the youth division, the senior and grand champion was a senior 2-year-old, MS LovDal Skybuck Elvira, owned by Benjamin Welk, of Quarryville. The day prior, Welk had shown the animal to win the grand championship of the Lancaster County 4-H Holstein show.

The youth division reserve senior and reserve grand champion was a senior 3-year-old, C Comestar Senata Starbuck-ET, also owned by Melonica Kauffman.

The reserve junior champion of the youth division was a spring yearling, Fultonway Highlite Star, owned by Ashley Frey, of Lancaster.

The Lancaster County Black & White show also features a 3-year-old futurity class. The winner was Donegal Creek Cad Emily-Red, bred and owned by Joseph Wivell of Columbia. He also had the second place animal., while Michael Bollinger showed the third place entry.

Anyone connected to the pork industry understands that our environmental image is dismal at best. The distrust the public holds for all of us, I think, stems from three things. First, the vast majority of people do not care much for hogs. Second, every time a mishap occurs with manure, people point to each incident with an "I-told-you-so" attitude. Finally, swine units are getting bigger, which raises concerns and fears among the neighboring folk, mostly because of the first two items mentioned.

Despite the pervasive criticism against the pork industry, I have often said, and still believe that the worst is behind us if we stick to the facts, and behave responsibly. But behaving responsibly may have deeper implications than some producers realize.

PUBLIC CONCERNS

Although many residents say otherwise, odor probably ranks first in the list of public concerns. The sooner we find a solution to manure odors, the sooner we'll begin to improve our image. Odors are generated every minute of every day from any livestock operation. The larger the operation, the greater the intensity of odors. If, most of the time, neighbors find themselves in the path of those odors, their life will be affected.

The magnitude of the effect depends on how often people notice the odor, their cultural background and their feelings toward the livestock operation generating the odor. Note that more and more people in rural settings do not have an agricultural background. And as we've already pointed out, people's feelings toward hog production is anything but positive. Some people tolerate it. Some complain. Some get nauseated.

The other major concern is the fate of our manure. As beneficial as this substance has proven to be, there is nothing livestock producers do that will impact the environment as much as manure disposal. If it's done right, manure provides a rich source of nutrients and enhances soil tilth.

If manure is spread without regard to crop needs or soil fertility, we can contribute to ground and surface water pollution..

Beyond these two issues -- odor and manure disposal -- there is a long list of concerns. But I believe that most of them would go away once we master the first two items. We don't have an effective solution to manure odor yet. Until we do, location of large swine facilities is critical. As to the application of manure, we already know how to do that correctly, and emerging technology will continue to make it easier.

INDUSTRY EFFORTS ON THE NATIONAL FRONT

The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) is light years ahead of all other livestock industries in their development of proactive environmental programs. The Environmental Assurance Program, born in 1995, was expanded in 1997 to include five new components -- Pollution Prevention Strategies, Manure Storage and Treatment, Odor and Emissions, Composting of Mortality, and Community Relations. More recently, NPPC launched the On Farm Odor Assistance Program to provide engineering expertise to producers to help improve all aspects of environmental stewardship at the farm level. (This program will begin this fall in Pennsylvania this fall). Funding for environmental research, including odor solutions, has steadily increased over the years. And most importantly, NPPC recognizes the truth -- if we don't soon identify odor solutions, if we don't give manure disposal the priority it deserves, if we don't design and construct swine facilities properly, the long term viability of pork production in this country is in trouble.

EFFORTS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Shortly after NPPC released their Environmental Assurance Program, county agents and myself began doing third-party environmental assessments of swine operations. This on-farm program provides the producer with an easy to use framework for monitoring and documenting the environmental integrity of the operation. Producers scoring high in the program are considered "certified" which can provide some help on the public relations front.

The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council has funded the production of a educational video Some of the public concern results from lack of knowledge or the distortion of facts. The video shows the public, without apology, how we produce pigs in this state. We have in the last several months, provided dozens of copies of the video to township supervisors, planning officials, school teachers and the general public.

Numerous informational meetings have been held across the state. The meetings are usually structured in a question and answer format, with a panel of speakers present to provide a range of expertise. In all meetings, the intensity of concern is obvious, and there are few if any minds that are changed. But I am confident that a lot of misconceptions are cleared up, and people walk away with a more realistic understanding of our business.

Recently a group of people including producers, personnel from Penn State and the University of Pennsylvania, and representatives from allied industry began writing a Best Management Practices Manual. The manual which is specific and far-reaching, provides a set of standards by which the pork industry should operate in Pennsylvania. Many public agencies, have already provided input into the process. We expect to publish the manual by late September.

INCREASED REGULATION

Farmers are used to some degree of regulation Now increased regulation and scrutiny have become a part of life The bad news is that most producers, for generations, have been good stewards of the land without someone looking over their shoulder The good news is that regulations do set the rules. And as long as the producer follows the rules, the public has little room for complaint

State Senator Robert Jubilier recently introduced a resolution calling for the formation of an advisory committee to examine Pennsylvania's livestock industry. The committee has been selected, and the first meeting will occur in the next month or so. Among other things, the committee will be charged to review the Best Management Practices Manual mentioned above.

Although this resolution has received a lot of press, the potential impact of the committee is probably not as significant as some would like to believe.

More important are the regulations which the Department of Environmental Protection has proposed for Pennsylvania Lancaster Farming has published the full text of the proposed regulations, which are written for all livestock operations (Make no mistake, however. Concerns over swine production prompted these efforts.) In this issue of Lancaster Farming, we have provided an easy-to-read summary of the regulations

The two categories of operations that will be impacted most by the regulations are

1. operations with more than 1000 animal units (CAFO's)

2 operations with 301 to 1,000 animal units which have the potential to discharge to surface waters*

*Any operation that must comply with the Nutrient Management Act is considered to have the potential to discharge For most producers, this means having more than 2 animal units per acre

Very briefly, if a new operation is proposed to have more than 1000 animal units, there will be a lot of expensive regulatory hoops Even the smaller operations (301-1000 animal units) that must comply with the Nutrient Management Act, must complete a number of permits before construction can commence. If the operation has 301-1000 animal units and does not have to comply with the Nutrient Management Act, there are no additional regulations.

Lancaster County Holds 4-H Dairy Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County held its annual 4-H dairy show Wednesday at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

The show is a qualifying event for Lancaster County 4-H youth who intend to attend state youth district dairy shows.

The state district shows are qualifying events for the Sept. 21 Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All American Dairy Show. The state Junior Dairy Show makes no distinction between 4-H or FFA membership.

Lancaster's 4-H qualifier separates it from other counties that do not hold such pre-district level screening competitions.

Since the state show makes no distinction between 4-H and FFA, and youth across the state are eligible to participate in any district show across the state, the use of the Lancaster County 4-H qualifying event is strictly of local benefit.

Youth qualify for the state show when an animal they show is judged to have received a blue ribbon. No matter what the placing in an animal age class, if the judge awards a blue ribbon, the animal, and thus the exhibitor qualifies for the state junior dairy show.

On Wednesday, there was one Ayrshire exhibited, Honey-Brook Jalan Riches, a junior 2-year-old, owned by Thomas Spring of Quarryville.

In the Brown Swiss breed, Andrew Smith, son of Thomas and Dale Smith, Denver, showed the grand and senior champion, a senior 3-year-old, King & Queen Leverage Angelina. The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was a 4-year-old dry cow, Zeng Miss Admiral Honey Dew, owned by Katie Zeng, daughter of Tom and Vickie Zeng, of Paradise.

The junior champion was a fall calf, KEB Clay View Sens Madonna, owned by Sarah Boyd, daughter of Kerry and Deb, of Ephrata. The reserve junior champion was a spring yearling, King and Queen Patrick Nancy, owned by Brian Smith, brother of Andrew Smith.

In the Guernsey breed, there were three animal exhibited, all by Brian and Andrew Smith. The grand champion was a winter calf, King & Queen Dividend Rose, bred and owned by Brian Smith. The reserve grand champion was a winter yearling, Maple Lane SK Sherl, owned by Andrew Smith.

In the Jersey breed, the grand and senior champion was a senior 2-year-old, S.V. Grove Erica, owned by Morgan Thomas, daughter of John and Sandra Thomas of Lancaster.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was a senior 3-year-old, Royal-Queen Imperial Lanita, bred and owned by Stephanie Donough, daughter of Tim and Brenda Donough of Willow Street. It was the best bred and owned animal of the show.

Stephanie also exhibited the reserve junior champion of the show, a winter calf, Royal-Queen Imperial Loretta.

The junior champion was a spring calf, Royal-Queen Regal Lauria, shown by Tiffany Donough, sister to Stephanie.

In the Holstein show, the grand and reserve grand champion was a senior 2-year-old, LovDal Sky-Buck Elvira, owned by Benjamin Welk, son of Donna and Gary Welk of Quarryville.

Welk also showed the champion bred and owned animal was a spring calf, Welk View Emory Erma.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was a junior 3-year-old, Hilltop-Heritage Star Bingo, owned by Crystal Brubaker, daughter of Lowell and Deb Brubaker of Manheim.

The junior champion Holstein was a fall yearling, Howcrest Mardel Charlyse, owned by Lindsey Howard, daughter of John and Susan Howard of Willow Street.

The reserve junior champion was a spring calf, Silvermine SR Amy Jazz, owned by Morgan Thomas, daughter of John and Sandra Thomas of Lancaster.

In addition to the animal breed shows, a showmanship contest was held Wednesday, that served as a qualifier for Lancaster County 4-H representation at the state show. The first and second place winners are qualified.

In the 8- to 10-year-old age division, Zach Akers, son of Gary Akers of Quarryville, and Ginny Palmer, was named champion, while second place was won by Marc Waltemyer.

In the 11- to 13-year-old age division, Aaron Trimble, son of Marshall and Angie Trimble of Drumore. In second was Lindsey Howard.

In the 14- to 18-year-old age division, Delmar Oberholtzer, son of Clair and Laverne Oberholtzer of Elizabethtown, was the champion. In second was Katie Zeng.

In addition, a showing-and-fitting competition was held Tuesday evening. The showing-and-fitting competition is designed so that a showmanship contest is used to determine those eligible to compete in the one-hour timed-event fitting contest, where they were given a heifer to clip.

In the senior division, Brent Oberholtzer was first, while Katie Zeng was second. In the junior division, Tim Donough was first, while Crystal Brubaker was second.

Annual Crop Management School Set At Ocean City

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The fourth annual Mid-Atlantic Crop Management School is scheduled Dec. 8-10 in the Princess Royale Oceanfront Hotel and Conference Center at Ocean City, Md.

While the school is structured to provide training and continuing education credits for certified crop advisers, it is open to anyone wanting to keep abreast of current developments in the realm of pest management, soil fertility, soil and water conservation, and crop management.

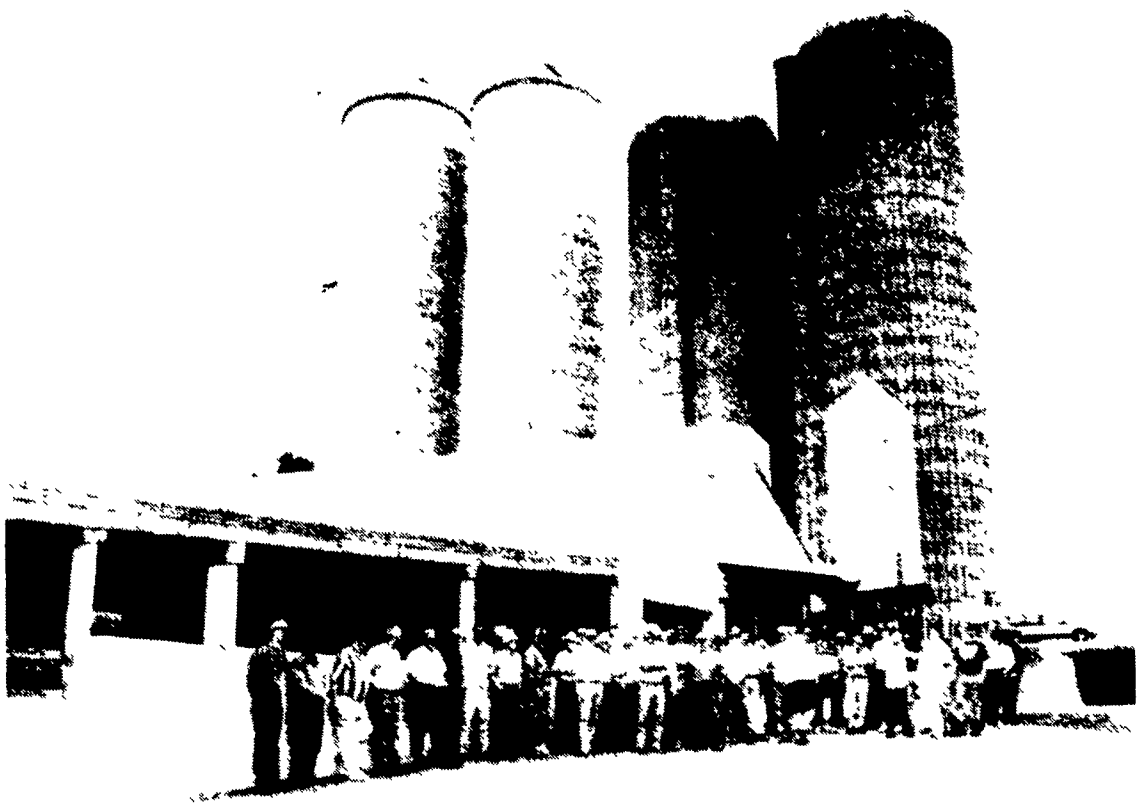
The school has been a success since its inception, according to this year's chairperson, Dr. Ronald L. Ritter, cooperative extension weed control specialist at the University of Maryland.

"Every year we try to bring in new speakers for each of our sugject-matter categories," Ritter said. "Some sessions are classroom presentations, while others may involve hands-on training. This year we'll do hands-on training in insect and plant disease identification."

Registration for the crop management school is limited to 150-200 people in order to keep training sessions from getting too large.

Classes will start on the morning of Dec. 8 and finish by noon Dec. 10. With sessions running concurrently, participants in the Certified Crop Adviser program will be able to receive sufficient credits in all four areas of the CCA Primary Performance Objectives. Speakers from several areas of the country are scheduled to appear during the sessions.

Detailed information and registration forms will be available soon. To receive a copy, contact Ritter at (301) 405-1329 or send an e-mail message to rr24@umail.umd.edu.



Virginia Cattlemen Visit Pennsylvania

SCHOENECK (Lancaster Co.) — A group of 60 Virginia Cattlemen, extension agents, and industry representatives visited eight beef operations and New Holland Sales auction in Southeast Pennsylvania this week. Hank Marcey, the Virginia association president, said the trip was designed to see where Virginia cattle are going and how they are being fed.

"It's more of a customer service trip," Marcey said. "We want to see if our feeder cattle programs are meeting the needs of our customers up here.

"What we have found is that the people here are wonderful and more than willing to work with us. And their facilities are immaculate. Most of them have been pleased with the cattle they get from us. The kind of cattle that we are breeding to work on grass also seems to be working in the feed lots for market up here."

Reggie Reynolds, executive secretary, said the assocation represents 18 different local associations and coordinates the efforts to market and promote Virginia cattle.

Farm Market Numbers Nearly A Dozen

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — About a dozen people provide homemade and grown items to sell at the Solanco Growers Market, now in its fifth year.

Every Saturday on the parking lot at the Good's Store at Fourth and State streets in Quarryville, 11 vendors set up show to sell many homemade and homegrown items.

The grower's market was set up much like a roadside stand with farmers direct-marketing their produce to consumers, said Ed Herrmann, a vendor who brings vegetables, eggs, and fruit to the stand.

Herrmann, who also serves as Solanco Young Farmers Association adviser, noted that a lot of different products are offered for sale at the market.

Items for sale include heirloom and ethnic vegetables, including fall decorations, by Leon and Linda Boyer of Lambert Farm in Narvon. Robert and Keith Fahnestock of Fahnestock Fruit Farm, Lititz, sell peaches and apples. Jack and Shirley Henderson of Henderson's Hydroponic Greenhouse, Lancaster, sell hydroponic tomatoes. Daniel B. and Fannie King of Hess Road Bake Shop, Quarryville, sell baked goods and homemade bread. Jerome E. and Sharon Rhoads, Quarryville, sell sweet corn and vegetables.

Also, Bev Schaeffer of Schaeffer Flowers in Conestoga sells fresh cut flowers, dried flowers, and bedding plants. Jonathan and Sevilla Smucker of Holtwood sell vegetables, bedding plants, homemade bread, and canned foods. Ed Heltshe of Stone Hill Nursery in Conestoga sells trees, shrubs, and perennials. Robert and Billie Althouse, Holtwood, sell fruit and vegetables. And Jonas Esch of New Providence sells pastured raised poultry (dressed chicken and turkey) at the market.

The market is open every Saturday at 8:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Several special events are scheduled during the year. One was a pig roast the third Saturday in July. A special event is ice cream making, to be held Aug. 15 (the third Saturday in August). Everyone is welcome to the special events.

Extension Agents Receive Awards

ANNEX WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) —Four members of Penn State University's Cooperative Extension staff were among all the county agents who received awards at the 1998 annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in San Antonio, Texas.

The awards program highlighted the annual meeting, where more than 1,800 extension agents and guests convened, reviewed their responsibilities as educators, and attended professional improvement workshops.

The Achievement Award and the Distinguished Service Award honors the top two percent of extension agents in each state for their hard work and success.

The Achievement Award recognizes agents with less than 10 years of service to cooperative extension. Honored were Thomas McCarty, Cumberland County extension agent, and Dan McFarland, York County extension agent.

Two members of Penn State University's Cooperative Extension staff were among agents in the U.S. who received the Distinguished Service Award. Honored were Charles Gale, Columbia County extension agent, and Richard Smith, Sullivan County extension agent. This is the 60th year that the National Association of County Agricultural Agents has awarded the honor.

Charles Gale coordinate the 4-H horse, dairy, dog and youth programs in Columbia County. The horse and dairy programs remain strong and vital through the nurturing and leadership training for leaders and teens. New riding clinics for handicapped riders have been a great success. Gale works with the Tobacco-Free Youth Coalition to educate merchants about youth and tobacco.

Richard S. Smith works on livestock, environmental, administrative and youth issues. He developed the livestock sale and changed the lamb sale from live auction to a tele-auction. More than 40 percent of the youth in Sullivan County are involved in 4-H projects. More than 100 youth work on the in-depth environmental projects. Working with the council of governments, Smith helped develop a countywide workman's compensation program that saved each municipality $12,000 annually.

Tom McCarty has an extensive program on water quality. McCarty had 1,500 people test their water with his program and 63 percent identified that they should test their water annually. McCarty's program involved adults testing their water and checking their septic systems. The youth visited farms that protect the water supply. The water quality program has four elements: 1. Citizen Water Testing, 2. Information expo-outreach to urban audiences, 3. youth science camp, 4. well and septic workshop.

Dan McFarland has developed programs on cow comfort, stall designs, and barn ventilation systems. In freestall design, McFarland has developed five different slide presentations on stall comfort. These have been presented to more than 1,800 people since 1991. He has developed several factsheets on stall design and barn ventilation that county agents and dairy farmers use. Dan has developed four slide presentations on dairy barn ventilation ideas that have been presented to more than 1,400 people.

Fungicide With New Mode Of Action Shown At Apple Orchard Field Day

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — Growers of tree fruits and grapes have a new way to protect their crops from foliar disease. This was the subject of an apple orchard field daiy at the Penn State research orchards Wednesday afternoon.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has registered Vangard for Novartis Crop Protection, Inc. This fungicide has been developed for control of Botrytis bunch rot (gray mold) in grapes, scab in pome fruits, brown rot blossom blight and fruit brown rot in stone fruits.

This was one of a number of new chemistries discussed at the field day. James Johnson, district manager for Novartis, said the company has a new product for fruit in development for each of the next five to seven years. Dealers and distributors in attendence pointed out to Lancaster Farming that this committment to the fruit industry was significant because of the Food Qualtiy Protection Act that requires all chemical products to be reregistered within a short time. Many of the existing products will be lost because of FQPA. Only if new chemistry to replace the lost products can be shown to be of "reduced risk" to environment and applicators will the industry have the tools necessary to survive. Because of the cost and length of time to get a new chemistry registered, most companies are not committed to the fruit industry.

Vangard features an entirely new chemistry that provides long-lasting, preventive disease control. It penetrates leaf tissue and is rain-fast within two hours after application. It stops existing infections and moves to protect new growth. As a result, Vangard provides 48-hour reach-back control and six-day forward disease protetion for apple scab.

Michael Boyd, representing Novartis, also introduced a new fungicide that is not currently labeled for use or sale but is expected to become available soon. Given the name Flint. the new product is a broad-spectrum foliar fungicide with a high margin of crop safety. It is especially effective against powdery mildews and leaf and fruit spots in crops such as pome fruit and grapes.

The field day was held for industry representitives and the press to view the results of the trial applications in the research orchards.

Lancaster County Captures Regional 4-H Meats Competition

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — "Here," said Radell Peters as he handed the ribbon to his coach, Jeff Craig, Little Britain. "Hang this on your office bulletin board. You did the work to help us."

Moments before, Radell, along with team members Ryan Donough, Jimmy Zimmerman, and Derick Bollinger, captured first place team at the Southeast 4-H Pennsylvania Meats Judging Contest at Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse.

Craig, a processing technician at Stoltzfus Meats, has been coaching the county teams since 1990. Lancaster County itself captured state championship in meats judging during 4-H Achievement Days at Penn State in 1985, when Craig was a member.

Craig noted that the ribbon will be on display, eventually, in the Farm and Home Center.

This was the first time that Stoltzfus Meats hosted the contest, held in previous years at Godfrey Brothers in York.

Since April, the team has met 10 times for a total of 30 hours of practice time at the meat processing plant.

If Lancaster County wins the state competition in early August at University Park, they go onto the national competition held in conjunction with the American Royal, noted Chet Hughes, Lancaster livestock agent, who helped coordinate the meats judging contest. The National 4-H Meats Judging Contest is held in the Kansas City in the fall.

Radell, who also won champion overall individual, was only 20 points away from scoring a perfect 300. The next place individual scored a 179.

According to Hughes, the 4-H'ers are judged individually on meat retail cuts. They are also scored on their ability to judge carcasses and wholesale and retail classes. They must also give oral reasons.

Helping with the carcass quality contest was Bill Henning, Penn State extension meats specialist. He noted that the 4-H members "have to understand what beef quality ratings are and what is acceptable to the industry."

Many of the 4-H'ers can learn more about meats quality, identifying exterior and interior fat, and yield grading by participating in practice contests.

There were 13 4-H participants in the contest. Following is a list of show placings.

Lebanon County Announces Holstein Field Night

FREDERICKSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Holstein Association has announced that its annual field night is to be held 7 p.m., August 7, at JIMANDOT Holsteins, owned by James and Dot Bennetch of Millbach Springs.

The Bennetch family farm is located along Rt. 419, between Schaefferstown and Womelsdorf. James and Dot have two teenage children, Jessica and Christopher, who own and show Holsteins. The family also enjoys bicycle riding.

The mouth of the farm lane is located between two residential properties on the north side of the roadway, and can be difficult to spot by motorists and first-time guests.

Signs are to be errected to direct attention to the lane.

The Bennetches milk 67 registered Holsteins that have a June rolling herd average of 28,886 pounds of milk, 953 pounds of fat and 905 pounds of protein without the use of bovine somatotropin injections.

Included among some of the production highlights of the herd are a 2-year-old Encore daughter that this year topped 43,000 pounds of milk in a first lactation, again without the use of any milk production stimulants.

Also in the herd is a 6-year-old Leadman daughter that this year made a 365-day record of more than 57,000 pounds of milk.

The Bennetches use an older bank barn that has been retrofitted with tunnel ventilation, and have been one of the first in the area to construct a greenhouse-style facility (actually designed for livestock, not plants) to raise calves.

Included in the field night activities are a judging contest with prizes for the top three places in each catagory, and door prizes have been provided by local businesses.

The evening meal is to be sponsored by Nutrena Feeds.

Guest speaker is to be Donald Seipt, owner of Keystone Farms, and past national Holstein president.

According to Terry Shuey of Little Hill Farm, Fredericksburg area, one of the event's organizers, "Everyone is invited to come out and enjoy an evening of good cows, good people, good food and good fellowship."

For more information, call Shuey at (717) 933-8995.

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers closed weak to .50 lower. Slaughter heifers were not well tested. This week's market started out fully steady and then dropped on Tuesday. Some strength was evident at the close, although sales were very spotty throughout the week. Volatility was the case for most all of the beef markets this week, except for boxed beef prices which were steady to firm. Slaughter cows ended the week mixed, after a sharp drop at mid-week. The 75-85 percent lean cows closed steady to 1.00 lower. Lean cows from 85-90 percent finished .50-1.50 higher with increased strength on Thursday. Slaughter bulls closed 1.00-2.00 lower. This week's supply included 47 percent slaughter steers, 6 percent slaughter heifers, 36 percent slaughter cows, 6 percent bulls and the balance were feeder cattle.

I recently attended the national meeting of the American Society for Horticultural Science and was able to collect a great deal of information about the production of fruit and vegetable crops. Over the next few months I intend to pass that information on to the readers of this column.

Watch Soil Moisture Levels

As I wrote last month, the hot temperatures that we are having now can have dramatic effects on the yield and quality of your fruit and vegetable crops.

You need to be carefully monitoring both fruit and vegetable crops for their water status and be sure to apply water before drought stress can reduce yields and crop quality. Research conducted in Ohio showed that a slight water stress on nursery stock resulted in a growth reduction of 50% compared to well-watered control plants. The stress applied to the plants did not result in any visible symptoms (leaf wilt, loss of leaf glossiness) so the researchers could not tell the plants were stressed other than through soil moisture measurements.

I had read before that plants can be experiencing water stress without any visible symptoms but this research project dramatically demonstrated this effect. While your fruit and vegetable yields may not be reduced by 50% if your plants are stressed, you should still keep your plants wall watered to harvest the largest and highest-quality crop.

No-Till Vegetables

There has been greater interest in no-till vegetable production in the US in recent years. The advantages of this system include soil erosion control, labor and fuel savings, improved field conditions following rains, and water conservation due to reduced runoff.

Numerous studies have shown the advantages of this system for the production of both field crops (corn, soybeans) as well as many types of vegetables. However, there are some disadvantages of this system including weed control problems, necessary equipment modifications, delayed maturity of early-spring planted crops, problems with application of soil-applied chemicals, and residual habitat for certain diseases and insects.

I attended a half-day workshop on the use of cover crops in vegetable production and based on that discussion and personal experiences I would encourage more Lancaster county vegetable producers to examine this system for the production of some of the crops on your fields.

Based on the discussions, the no-till system will not be useful for the production of early crops of tomatoes, corn, or melons. There is just no way to warm the soil sufficiently to get the necessary early growth of these crops. However, for late-planted crops, especially pumpkins, I think this system has enough benefits for you to try it. There are a few keys to being successful with a no-till system.

First, you need to obtain a dense, uniformly distributed , weed-free cover crop prior to planting. If you do not have a dense enough stand then you will most likely have weed problems later in the year.

Next - you need to thoroughly kill the cover crop prior to planting and leave a heavy residue. Not killing the cover crop will lead to unwanted competition for water and nutrients.

Third - you need to establish crop plants with a minimum disturbance of surface residue and surface soil. Again - weed problems can arise with too much soil disturbance. And finally - you need to practice year-round weed control. You need to have either a vegetable crop or a cover crop on the field at all times. Never leave the field fallow to produce a 'crop' of weeds and weed seeds.

I feel that pumpkins are an ideal crop to produce using no-till procedures. The seed is large and easy to establish. Transplants can also be used and they too are easy to establish. Pumpkins are planted later in the season so the soil would have a chance to warm up.

In addition, you do not need to apply soil treatments in order to establish a pumpkin crop. And finally, by planting pumpkins after a cover crop containing some hairy vetch, you should not need to apply any nitrogen fertilizer to produce the crop. Growers who have grown pumpkins in a no-till field with sufficient residue have also told me that the fruit is much cleaner at harvest - an additional benefit to the producer and the buyer.

The best cover crop for pumpkin production would be a mix of both hairy vetch and rye. The vetch will provide nitrogen (as I mentioned earlier) and the rye would produce the long-term residue necessary for season-long weed control. Unsatisfactory results have been obtained with just vetch cover crops for two reasons. First - the residue breaks down too fast and weed control can be a problem.

Second - some growers have had excessive vine growth because the vetch left too much nitrogen in the soil. Straight rye cover crops are not ideal because they do not provide any nitrogen to the soil and may even tie-up some of the nitrogen in your soil while the residue breaks down.

One common problem with a vetch-rye cover crop system is that the cover needs to be established in September in order to get satisfactory growth of the vetch before winter. Many growers do not have a field available at this time to establish the cover crop.

However, with some planning before crop ent you may be able to have the field space available in early fall for cover crop establishment. I strongly encourage you to look into no-till pumpkin production on your farm.

If you are interested in the no-till system and want to see first-hand a farm that is sucessfully using no-till then you should attend the "Tools for Transition" Farm Field Day at Cedar Meadow Farm in Holtwood on July 29 from 10.00 AM until 3:00 PM

Steve Groff has been using no-till on his farm for 14 years and can provide information and tips for successfully using this system on your farm Steve has produced both pumpkins and tomatoes using no-till and has been very satisfied with the results. Contact the extension office for additional details on this field day.

Home on the Range

Fresh peaches now in season combine well with cottage cheese and other fresh fruit for a delightful dessert.

Peachy Recipes

The peach was once believed to have originated in Persia. In fact, it was nicknamed the "Persian apple." However, it actually originated in China. It probably reached Persia along caravan routes of the pre-Christian era. Eventually, the peach was introduced in Europe through Greece and Rome. The peach was probably brought to America by Columbus on his second or third voyage. The Indians spread peach trees to many regions of America before the white settlers arrived.

One medium peach has 47 calories, and provides 5 percent FDA vitamin A and 10 percent vitamin C.

Fruits are an important source of fiber and many nutrients. Although the actual amount of nutrients may seem small, the contribution is significant if 2 to 3 servings of fruit are eaten daily.

EASY PEACH COBBLER

½ cup butter
1 cup flour
2 cups sugar, divided
1 tablespoon baking powder
Pinch salt
1 cup milk
4 cups fresh peach slices
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Ground cinnamon (optional)

Melt butter in a 13x9-inch baking dish. Combine flour, 1 cup sugar, baking powder, and salt; add milk, stirring just until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour batter over butter (do not stir).

Bring remaining sugar, peaches, and lemon juice to a boil over high heat, stirring constantly; pour over batter (do not stir). Sprinkle with cinnamon if desired.

Bake at 375 degrees for 40-45 minutes or until golden. Serve cobbler warm or cool. Makes 10 servings.

PEACH-GLAZED SPARERIBS

3 pounds spareribs, separated
1 bay leaf
1 pound fresh peaches, peeled, pitted, chunked
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon minced ginger root
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon vinegar
Dash cayenne pepper

Place ribs in 5-quart pot with bay leaf and enough water to cover. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Drain spareribs and lay them on a rack in a roasting pan. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Puree peaches in a food processor until smooth. Transfer to a saucepan and bring to a boil. Stir in remaining ingredients. Roast ribs for 20 minutes. Brush with peach mixture and continue roasting for another 20 minutes, brushing frequently with peach mixture and turning ribs occasionally.

PEACH PIE

5 cups peaches, sliced
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons tapioca
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Combine ingredients and pour into a pie shell. Top with pie crust or crumbs as desired. Bake at 425 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer.

Crumbs:

2 cups flour
¾ cup sugar
½ cup shortening

Mix together ingredients and sprinkle on top of pie.

Tioga Farm City Day Draws 2,000 People

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WELLSBORO (Tioga County) — The goal behind Farm Day is simple: bring attention to the family farm.

For the eighth consecutive year, one single family farm was transformed from a typical family dairy farm into a site for Tioga County Farm City Day.

On July 11, more than 2000 people took the time to travel to D&D Farms, owned by Dave and Donna Cleveland, to visit a family farm, take a tour of the surrounding fields, and talk to the many exhibitors.

Although Tioga County visitors and natives see many farms in their travels, this was the first trip to a modern day working farm for many people.

For Ashley Starkweather of Wellsboro and Teaka Frank of Tioga the favorite part was seeing the cows.

"They're kind of neat," said Frank.

"This is very interesting. I enjoyed them telling about the older equipment and how much better it is today," said Louise Moffett of Wellsboro.

Visitors could actually see older equipment in action as a group of horse enthusiasts worked their team of horses to harvest a field of second cutting.

The quiet jingling of the horses' harness could be compared to the roar of the many tractors that pulled modern hay wagons over the hill to other fields on the Cleveland's 250 acre farm. As the wagon wound up over the back roads, the history of the farm was presented.

In 1941, Dave's parents, Charles and Katherine, purchased the original 111 acre farm from Russell Valsing. At that time there were about eight Holsteins on the farm and all field work was done with horses.

In 1955, Charles and Katherine expanded their farm by purchasing 105 acres. In time, they purchased a Ford Ferguson and later, a Farmall H.

The cow numbers steadily increased and in 1976, Charles

It's getting dangerous out here on the battlefield.

The latest skirmish came concurrent with the 5 a.m. alarm clock on recent morning, warring sounds echoing through the dawn light and our wide-open bedroom windows.

"Ggrrrooowwwllllllll!"
"Sssnnnaaaarrrollllllll!"
"Hiiissssssssss!"

And good morning to you, too, tomcats.

"Cat fight" time of the year, usually limited to feline mating seasons, has been waged on a continuing basis this summer, splitting normal quiet time with the screeching, squalling, and snarling of feline combatants. With no less than four grown male cats stalking the farmstead–at least that we know of–we have not shortage of feline fodder for the battlefield brawls.

Pest, the gray and white cat nearly old enough to vote, has mostly ignored the fray and gone into retirement, preferring to spend his days underfoot at the calf barn, pestering (hence his name) for catfood handouts. His minimal ambition level stirs little more than to snitch the latest mouse catch from Calico, a petite female with deadly rodent-aim.

Butch, our dark tabby, is just maturing enough to begin posing a threat to the bigger boys. Even at a year-old-plus, Butch frequently reverts to playful kitten behavior. His threat to other critters is evident from the arrogant squirrels that parade past him enroute to the bird feeder, while he snoozes on a lawnchair cushion.

However, Butch does become entangled in an occasional territorial squabble, as testified to by a injury sustained recently to his raccoon-striped tail. The open wound about mid-point on the tail was quite sore, tender and probably inflicted by Big Yeller, our reigning tomcat. Treatment with first-aid spray was not particularly appreciated by this affectionate cat, but effective

Big Yeller–descriptive of both his color and vocal abilities–has hung around the farm for several years, but only recently grown friendly..That's largely due to generous feedings of milk and catfood to our mother cat and her first batch of kittens, for which he is generally races to be first in line. Current reigning and unbeatened boss, cat, he nevertheless was gentle and almost protective of the four barn kittens he helped to sire.

Those four half-grown kittens now have a batch of maternal siblings somewhere in the barn granary. Not wanting to disturb the mother so that she moves the litter, we haven't searched out the nursery's exact location. And the Big Yeller security patrol guards against other intruders.

Chief foe of the big yellow guy is Midnight, beautiful, black adoptee who still spends most of his time as a cornfield, meadow, and garden-stalking hunter. Actually, he would be very content to be a porch and backyard cat, except that his presence has an extremely irritating effect on Big Yeller.

It was the ongoing feud between those two which greeted our early-morning wake up and continued until I stomped out of the house in an effort to divert their attention. That maneuver at least resulted in a temporary cease fire, though Big Yeller snagged the highest spot available to keep an eye out for his adversary. I glanced out sometime later and spied him keeping vigil perched atop the cab of The Farmer's pickup

Inadvertently, I, too, have become a victim of the catfights, ending up wounded as an involuntary draftee. While bedding heifers a few days ago, I backed up to move my wheelbarrow full of newspapers and stepped squarely on Butch's battle-battered tail. He instinctive defense left me with a scratched and bleeding ankle, requiring a quick trip tot he field hospital medicine cabinet of peroxide.

Another innocent victim of Scar Wars.

Midsummer Night's Tales

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) —An evening of fun and magic for the whole family is in store, when the Susquehanna Teller Guild presents A Midsummer Night's Tales on Saturday, July 25, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the air conditioned Centennial Barn at the Fort Hunter Mansion and Park.

Masters of Ceremonies for the show will be Yarn Spinners Two (Thelma Bitzer and Judy Chabanik) who hosted the popular Tellabration '98! storytelling concert last November.

"We plan to take the audience on 'A Walk Though A Summer Garden,' complete with a garden backdrop and decorations," says Judy Chabanik. "Thelma and I will create a friendly mood starting with Saint John's Wort and introducing each storyteller with a short tale involving a different summer flower."

This annual summer event holds something for everyone. The first half will feature stories that appeal to the whole family, including younger children. The second half will emphasize more complex stories adults and older children would also enjoy.

Featured storytellers will include Madeline Blackway, Tom Coughlin, Grace McGrough, Ben Nebroski, Dennis Strain and Yarn Spinner Two. Admission will be $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and under. Complimentary light refreshments will be served during intermission.

Fort Hunter Mansion and Centennial Barn are located on Front Street, north of Harrisburg, between Interstate 81 and Fishing Creek Road.

For information, call Judy Chabanik at (717) 938-8133 or Thelma Bitzer at (717) 292-3800.

The Susquehanna Tellers Guild, promotes the art and regular practice of storytelling, from folk tales to personal experiences. Its members include professional storytellers, people who tell for personal enjoyment and "just listeners." The group holds monthly story swaps open to tellers and listeners, on the fourth Sunday of the month, at the Centennial Barn. The groups meets at 1 p.m. and telling starts at 2 p.m.

Enjoy the historic attractions and recreational facilities at Fort Hunter, and drop in to hear or share a few stories. Upcoming story telling events at Fort Hunter include Out of the Ordinary: Tales for Halloween on October and Tellabration '98! on Saturday, November 21.

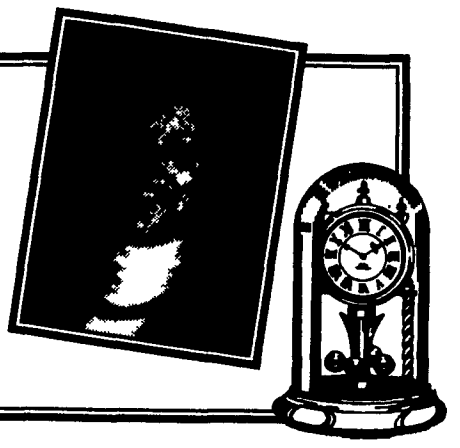
Taking Time by Rebecca Escott



Avoiding Home Repair Scams

During the late spring and early summer, many homes in our state were damaged as weird storms ravaged across mountains and down valleys. Now families are tackling the clean-up and repair process. This kind of situation is just the opportunity that home repair scam artists are waiting for!

If you home sustained damages or is simply in need of routine improvements like roof repairs, siding, replacements, driveway surfacing, deck or porch repairs, you need to be informed. Crooks know that people are vulnerable after storms have wrecked their homes. They show up with special deals saying, "I just happen to have some left-over materials from the job I finished just down the street. I could give you a great price on..." Don't even listen to that offer. Say "No thanks," and shut the door!

Here are some other warning signals: the repair person seeks you out instead of you initiating the call to his business, pressures you for an immediate decision, the contractor can only be reached by leaving messages with an answering service, contractor drives unmarked van/truck or has out-of-state plates on his vehicle.

Even if it means waiting several days or weeks, be sure to get several detailed estimates from reputable, licensed contractors. Don't assume that just because someone advertises in the Yellow Pages that they are reputable or have a valid license. Ask them to see a license. Ask how long they have been in business at this location. You may want to ask relatives, your insurance agent or a local claims adjuster for recommendations.

The contractors should have permanent office locations, not a "P.O." box or just an answering service. Having professionally printed letterhead is a good sign, but with improvements with technology, a scam artist could make up new letterhead on a computer each day and make fake addresses, too. Just be cautious.

Check with your local better business bureau and consumer protection for complaints/licensing issues with selected company. Be sure your contractor has proof of insurance for himself and workers in case of injury. Ask each contractor if there is a charge to do an estimate. Some rip-off businesses make their money simply charging people, after the fact, for estimates. Don't let them in the house unless you are willing to pay for the estimate at the stated rate. Most reputable companies provide estimates free of charge.

After you have received the estimates, review them. Don't necessarily select the lowest bidder. Ask for explanations about the difference in charges. Discuss payment policies. The contractor should ask for no more than one-third of the total price up front.

Insist on a complete, detailed written contract of work, including the quality of materials and timetable, total price, payment schedule. If the repair is a long one, or the estimate is complicated and includes subcontractors, you may want to have an unsigned copy of the contract reviewed by a lawyer to make sure you are protected if the work is not done as stated.

You can always ask for names of previous customers. If you want confirmation of a company's quality of work, visit a completed job and talk with the customer about his or her experience with the contractor you are considering.

If you sign the repair contract in your home or at a location that is not the seller's permanent place of business, you have three business days to change your mind and cancel the contract. Be sure the salesperson dates the signed contract and give you two copies of the cancellation form.

Certainly avoid salespeople who required payment in full in advance. When you do pay, pay by check or credit card, not with cash.

Heavy storm damage is not the only thing that brings home repair scam artists out of the wood work, they target senior citizens and low-income home owners year-round. Anytime you invest your hard-earned money in home repair or improvement, be sure to do your homework and proceed with caution in order to get quality work at a fair price.

Enter Crab Cake Cookoff

NEWARK, Del. — Cracker or break crumbs, green or red peppers, mustard or mayo . . . what do you put in your crab cakes?

Your recipe may be a winner if you enter the Coat Day Crab Cake Cook-Off, sponsored by the University of Delaware Sea Grant College Program and Graduate College of Marine Studies. Eight finalists will compete for cash prizes ($150 for first place, $100 for second place, and $75 for third place) and the coveted title "Delaware's Best Crab Cakes" in the cook-off at Coast Day, on Sunday, October 4, at the University's Hugh R. Sharp Campus in Lewes.

Coast Day is the University of Delaware Sea Grant College Program and Graduate College of Marine Studies' annual education festival and showcase for Delaware's rich marine resources. The event typically attracts more than 10,000 visitors and has won state and national awards for its efforts to promote environmental education and stewardship.

As always, the competition guidelines specify that crab cakes must be made from 100% blue-crab meat; all other types of crab meat are unacceptable. Each contestant will receive two pounds of blue-crab meat to use the day of the competition. All other ingredients and cooking utensils are the contestants' responsibility. Judging will be based on originality, predominance of crab meat, taste and texture

Entries are due Friday, August 14 For a complete set of contest rules, and an entry form, or for more information, contact the University of Delaware Sea Grant Marine Advisory Service at (302) 645-4346 or Doris Hicks at dhicks@udel.edu.

Impress your guests with Poached Peaches Filled With Whipped Mascarpone and Crumbled Gingersnap Cookies.

POACHED PEACHES FILLED WITH WHIPPED MASCARPONE AND CRUMBLED GINGERSNAP COOKIES

4 fresh ripe peaches or nectarines
1½ cups peach or pear nectar
1 tablespoon vinegar
6-inch cinnamon stick
½ teaspoon whole cloves
4 quarter-sized slices of fresh, peeled ginger
⅓ cup heavy cream
⅔ cups mascarpone cheese
1½ tablespoons sugar to taste
6 gingersnap cookies, crumbled

Drop peaches in boiling water for one minute. Remove from heat and cool in cold water. Peel off skin with small paring knife; cut peaches in half and remove pit. Easing Separation Anxiety

Separation anxiety strikes all children at various moments throughout their lifetime. Whether left in the care of a babysitter for a few hours, placed in a day care home or center for the day, or dropped off for a week at summer day camp, children of all ages experience feelings of loneliness and sadness that can come when separated from their loved ones for any given period of time.

In fact, separation anxiety is a common occurrence in my household. It strikes my 20-month old son each time he experiences the departure of dad from his view. It's a common phenomenon with my 3 1/2 year-old daughter who clings to me on days that I must go to work. And I'm quite sure that it was the uneasy feeling of separation anxiety that even I experienced several weeks ago when my daughter left on a Friday evening to spend the night at Grandma's house.

Fortunately, there are many things that adults can do for children to help ease their lonely pangs of separation anxiety. Here are a few suggestions.

1. Prepare your child for the separation.

Whenever possible, it's almost always a good idea to prepare both parent and child for the separation that is to occur. If it's a new babysitter that will be coming to the home, a few visits from the caretaker in advance can be very helpful in making everyone feel more comfortable. If it's a birthday party, overnight sleepover, hospital stay, or other event in which parent and child will be separated, an actual "walk-through" (ie visiting the hospital) or play-by-play description of the event can prove helpful in easing children's fears.

2. Send a familiar reminder of home or family.

When separated from a loved one, a familiar reminder of home or family can bring great comfort to a child. Perhaps it's a snapshot of the family together, a favorite stuffed animal, or a comfortable pillow with all the smells of home. When children are away from home for the first time, parents may even try recording a message for their child to be played at bedtime. The comfort of a parents voice may be just the right thing to bring a smile to a lonely face.

3. Say goodbye.

When leaving their child with a babysitter or at child care, some parents think that "sneaking out" of their child's sight when leaving is the best way to avoid any unnecessary sadness. In fact, doing so may be more likely to provoke a child's future distrust of their parent. A better approach is to make a point of saying goodbye. Having a set pattern, such as walking to the door together, waving good-bye at the window, or exchanging hugs gives a child a sense of control and comfort when it comes time to separate.

4. Listen and acknowledge your child's feelings.

By listening to and acknowledging their child's feelings, parents can offer much comfort and reassurance. Works such as "I know it's hard to say goodbye" show empathy and understanding. Talking about feelings that your child might experience while away from you can also prove helpful, as well as discussing what a child can do about these feelings (ie. share them with a camp counselor, write in a journal, call home, get involved in a fun activity with other children.)

When children are encouraged to share their feelings about separation openly with parents, they learn how to work through difficult feelings while gaining an increased sense of confidence in themselves. Chances are good that they can then move towards greater independence in the future.

Grill Safety

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co) – Don't wait to inspect your gill until right before you intend on using it. Look it over a couple of days in advance. You may need new hoses or connectors. On gas grills, make sure grill tubes are not blocked by insects or food drippings. Check hoses for cracks, brittleness, and leaks. Check connectors for scratches or nicks that could cause leads.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), the biggest safety hazards for barbecuers are fire and carbon-monoxide poising. Safety should always be an important concern when barbecuing. A little common sense can cut the risk of accidents.

The following tips are from the CPSC and the Barbecue Industry Association:

•Because of the danger of carbon-monoxide poisoning, never barbecue in an enclosed area.

•Always follow the manufacturer's instructions.

•Never leave a grill unattended once it is lighted and never attempt to move a hot grill.

•Set up the grill at least 10 feet from any building and away from dry leaves or brush and high-traffic areas.

•Never use gasoline, kerosene or other volatile fluids as charcoal starter - they can explode.

•Do not use an electric starter in the rain or when you're standing on wet ground.

•Check for gas leaks whenever you reconnect the grill to liquid propane (LP) gas cylinders or if you smell gas. To check for leaks, open the gas-supply valve fully and apply a soapy solution (one part water, one part liquid detergent) with a brush at connection points If bubbles appear, there is a leak. Turn off the gas and tighten connections If there is still a leak, have the unit repaired.

•Allow coals to burn out completely and let ashes cool for 48 hours before disposing of them If you can't wait that long, carefully place ashes in heavy-duty aluminum foil and soak with water

•Never store an LP gas cylinder on or near a grill.

•Don't wear clothing with flowing fabric such as shirt tails, frills or apron strings. Do use flame-retardant mitts.

•Use baking soda to control a grease fire and have a fire extinguisher handy - or a bucket of sand or garden hose.

•Clean grills at least twice a year.

There's nothing like the smell of a good barbecue on a hot summer evening. Be sure to keep all of your barbecues safe this year Follow the above tips and enjoy!

QUESTION — Janet Tyson, Felton, would like a recipe for dried corn.

QUESTION — Mary Louise Starr, Mercersburg, would like a recipe for frozen strawberry jelly. She also would like a recipe for rhubarb preserve.

QUESTION — Ina Mikalauskas, Evans City, is looking for recipes for tomato jelly, garlic jam, and pickled garlic.

QUESTION — Michelle McBride, Northampton, wants recipes to use mulberries, which grows on her farm.

QUESTION — Margaret Greiff, Sidman, would like to know what makes cream pies turn to liquid after the filling is put into the pie. She uses 5 tablespoons corn starch and 4 eggs per pie, but it is so liquidy it must be eaten with a spoon. Perhaps, rather than try to doctor up her recipe, readers should send a recipe that is the right consistency.

QUESTION — Margaret Grieff, Sidman, wants a recipe to pickle baby corn, which she believes is made from field corn just as the ears start to form in the stalk. She'd also like a recipe for Kosher dill pickles that stay crisp and do not turn the brine cloudy.

QUESTION — Mary Louise Starr, Mercersburg, is looking for a recipe for frozen strawberry preserves.

QUESTION — Bob Snyder, Akron, Ohio, would like to know how to freeze corn on the cob.

QUESTION — Betty Jakum, Littlestown, has a recipe for watermelon pickles that requires slaked lime. Does anyone know what it is and where to buy it? Is hydrated or pickling lime the same thing?

QUESTION — Dixie Fix would like to know where to buy an electric iron to bake New Year's cakes, which are thin European waffles like cake. A regular waffle iron and a Belgian iron make too thick a waffle.

QUESTION — Leora Petet, Hollsopple, is looking for recipes for pecan log and for cherry nut filling for homemade candy.

QUESTION — A reader from Finger Lakes, N.Y., would like a recipe to can together sliced onions and green bell peppers (not pickled). Also, she has heard that hot peppers can be stored in an unsealed jar on the counter covered with oil to use as needed and then use the flavored oil afterwards. Can anyone verify that the hot peppers will not spoil?

QUESTION — Cindy Barta, N. Jackson, Ohio, writes that she made quince jelly last fall. It was her first attempt at making jelly. Some of the jelly turned out fine and jelled nicely. But one batch did not gel. She had read that quince has natural pectin and did not use any pectin in the recipe, which did not call for any. She would appreciate any help or recipe that will make this type of jelly jel.

QUESTION — A Snyder County reader would like a recipe for white chocolate mousse cake.

QUESTION — Marian Harman, Hughesville, would like a recipe for cherry pig, which she thinks is made with bread dough and fresh cherries.

QUESTION — Elaine Fyock, Windber, writes that a recipe for oven pickles processed in the oven at a low temperature and left set overnight appeared in this column last year. She mislaid the recipe and would like it. Did anyone clip it out? Please send it in.

QUESTION — Doris Bobb, Muncy, would like a recipe that had appeared in this paper last year for rhubarb peach jam. Did anyone clip the recipe to which she is referring?

QUESTION — A reader is looking for recipes to use frozen or home canned plums.

QUESTION — A reader wants a recipe for the brezel.

QUESTION — Rose Diehl, Bloomsburg, wants recipes for turkey scrapple and turkey bologna.

ANSWER — Betty Groff, Leola, wanted a recipe for raisin sponge pie. Thanks to Janet Tyson, Felton, for sending a recipe.

Raisin Sponge Pie

Bottom:

3 cups raisins, boiled in 3 cups water with ½ cup sugar or less until tender. Let stand until cool.

Top:

2 cups flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup shortening

Make crumbs, set aside ¾ cup for top of 2 9-inch pies.

Add 1 egg and 1 cup milk to remaining crumbs. Divide raisins into two 9-inch pie crusts. Top with batter and sprinkle ¾ cup on top.

Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Sour cherries (4 cups cherries and juice) can also be used instead or raisins.

ANSWER — A New York reader wanted recipes to make condiments (ketchup, mustard, relish, etc.) and sauces such as steak, barbecue, and chili sauces. Thanks to an anonymous reader from Geneva, N.Y., for sending a recipe.

Teriyaki Sauce

⅔ cup water
⅓ cup soy sauce
¼ cup dark rum
3 garlic cloves, peeled, halved
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon freshly grated ginger root or ¼ teaspoon dried

Combine all ingredients in a plastic container with a tight fitting lid. Let stand at room temperature for 2-3 weeks.

Pour into a clean bottle. Seal well; store at room temperature. Makes 1¼ cups.

Mustard Sauce

¼ cup dry white wine
¼ cup white distilled vinegar
4 tablespoons dry mustard
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks

In the top of a double boiler, combine all ingredients except the yolks; let stand, uncovered, at room temperature for two hours.

With a wire whisk, beat the yolks into the mixture. Cook over hot but not boiling water, whisking constantly until thickened; about 5 minutes. Pour mustard sauce into a jar and let cool; seal and refrigerate for up to one month. Makes 1 cup.

Sweet And Sour Sauce

1 cup apricot nectar, pineapple juice, or peach nectar
4 tablespoons packed brown sugar
⅓ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
Dash or two of powdered ginger

Combine fruit juice and brown sugar in a saucepan. Combine remaining ingredients in a small jar; shake vigorously to combine. Bring fruit juice mixture to a simmer; stir in the jar contents. Simmer and stir constantly until mixture thickens. Cool and store in the refrigerator. Makes 1¼ cups.

Pure Vanilla Extract

1 vanilla bean (4 to 6 inches long)
¼ cup dark rum or vodka

Chop up vanilla bean and put into small jar or bottle. Pour in rum or vodka. Tightly screw the lid or cork bottle snugly so alcohol does not evaporate. Put in warm cupboard for 2 months. Use as regular vanilla extract. If too strong, add more rum or vodka.

Creamy Horseradish Sauce

1 cup sour cream
⅓ -½ cup prepared horseradish
2 teaspoons prepared mustard (optional)
Salt and pepper to taste

Combine all ingredients; blend until smooth. Store, refrigerated, in a plastic container. Good on sliced beef or ham. Makes 1⅓ cups.

Hot Dog Sauce
Chili Sauce

1½ pounds ground beef
4 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
Small can chili powder.

PEACH FREEZER JAM

2 cups pared, crushed fresh peaches
3¼ cups sugar
3-fluid ounce pouch liquid fruit pectin
3 tablespoons lemon juice from concentrate

In large bowl, combine peaches and sugar; mix well. Let stand 10 minutes. In small bowl, combine pectin and lemon juice; pour over peaches. Stir thoroughly 3 minutes (a few sugar crystals will remain). Spoon into glass or plastic containers; cover. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours. Store in freezer.

ANGELIC PEACH DELIGHT

2 cups fresh sliced peaches
⅓ cup granulated sugar or equivalent sugar substitute
8-ounce round angel food cake
4-serving size instant vanilla pudding mix, regular or sugar free
2 cups cold milk, whole, 2% or skim
12-ounces whipped cream topping, divided
7-ounce package frozen coconut, divided

Place peaches in bowl, stir sugar into peaches to coat slices. Let stand 2 hours. Prepare a 9x13x2-inch baking dish, lightly brush with margarine and coat with powdered sugar.

Crumble angel food cake and press into bottom of prepared dish.

Spread peaches and crumbled cake in the dish. Sprinkle ½ package of coconut over peaches. Prepare instant pudding with the milk according to package, then mix with ¾ container of whipped cream topping. Spread over coconut layer. Spread remaining whipped cream over the top and sprinkle remaining coconut on top. Refrigerate overnight. Yields 12 servings.

PEACH UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

2½ pounds ripe peaches
⅔ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup flour
1 teapsoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon canola oil
1 large egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup milk

Peel and slice peaches into 9-inch skillet. Combine ⅓ cup sugar with 1 tablespoon butter. Cook over medium heat for 3-5 minutes or until the sugar begins to melt. Add peaches to skillet, cut side up in one layer (the fruit should fit tightly). Remove pan from heat and set aside. In a medium bowl, combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt, set aside. In a large bowl beat with electric mixture at medium speed the remaining ⅓ cup sugar and 1 tablespoon butter with the oil until combined. Add the egg and beat until smooth, then beat in vanilla. With the mixer at low speed, add the buttermilk and the reserved flour mixture beating just until combined. Spoon the batter evenly over the peaches in the skillet. Place the skillet in the oven and bake at 375 degrees uncovered for 20-25 mintues or until cake tester inserted in center of the cake comes out clean. Transfer the skillet to a wire rack to cool for 3-4 minutes. Loosen edges of the cake with a knife and invert the cake onto a serving plate.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — A faithful reader wanted a recipe for a sauce to make stir fry. Thanks to Sue McKinsey, Windsor, for sending a recipe.

Simple Stir-Fry Sauce

⅔ cups chicken broth
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon water

Heat until thick stirring constantly. Does not make much. I usually double or triple if using with meat and vegetables.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know how to make baking powder, cake flour, etc. Thanks to a New York reader for sending the following recipes.

Baking Powder (Single Acting)

2 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon bicarbonate of baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cornstarch

For every cup of flour in your recipe, sift all ingredients together twice then add flour

Once mixed, this doesn't store well. Works fine to mix and use right away if you run out of store purchased variety.

Quick Brown Sugar

½ cup white granulated sugar
2 tablespoons unsulfured molasses

Blend sugar and molasses. Yield is the same as ½ cup brown sugar.

Picture Perfect

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Eight 4-H clubs participating in clothing and textile science projects sent a total of 40 young people to the County 4-H Fashion Revue on Tuesday, June 23, at Tel Hai Retirement Community, Honey Brook. This year's theme was "Picture Perfect!"

In addition to the judging of their hand-made garments and accessories, 4-Hers attended modeling workshops, played cooperative games, and shared craft ideas as intergenerational activities with the seniors at Tel Hai. The highlight of the day, of course, was the fashion show!

Judging was difficult this year as the 4-H members presented their excellent projects. First year grand champion in the novice category was Caroline Gamble of Kennett Square. First year reserve champion club award went to Lianna Sanford of Mendenhall. Second Year champion was Amy Hagen of Atglen, and reserve champion went to Lindsey Rzucidlo of the Coatesville area.

In the junior category, winners were: Kathryn Hagen and Carrie Hagen of Atglen, Christopher Grove of Phoenixville, Kaci Loeffler of West Grover, and Melanie Santner of West Chester. Honors went to Amanda Strauss of Kelton and Karen Windle of the Coatesville area.

Senior winners were Heather Scotland of West Grove, Alyssia Church of West Chester, Kristina Futty of Oxford, Julia Grover and Alexis Ferguson of Phoenixville, and Melissa Rzucidlo of the Coatesville area.

Cake Flour

For each cup cake flour, put 2 tablespoons cornstarch into 1 cup measuring cup. Spoon in enough flour to reach the 1 cup mark; sift together three times.

Four cups cake flour: Combine 3½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour with ½ cup cornstarch. Sift together 4 or 5 times. Store in an airtight container. Use in any recipe calling for cake flour.

Unsweetened Baker's Chocolate

When you need unsweetened baker's chocolate for cooking and you only have unsweetened cocoa powder, blend three tablespoons cocoa powder with 1 tablespoon sweet butter. Makes 1 ounce equivalent to 1 square baking chocolate.

Self Rising Flour

8 cups all-purpose flour
5 tablespoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt

Combine ingredients and sift together 3 times. Store in a well-sealed plastic bag until ready to use.

Never Hear 'I'm Bored' Again This Summer

(NAPS)— As the summer stretches out for kids, they wonder how to spend their time and turn to parents for answers.

Fortunately, Disney's Web site, Family.com, offers a variety of entertaining activities that parents can get underway in a flash and involve minimal expense.

From backyard fun to exciting day trips, here are a few ideas to keep your children cool and busy during these warmer months.

•In the game of Cold Potato, all you need are balloons, a safety pin and water faucet, and quick reflexes to play.

Simply using the pin, poke a hole in the bottom of the balloon. Then fill it with water so it becomes a slow-leaking water bomb. Players stand in a circle and toss the balloon around—don't be the one holding the balloon when it runs out of water.

•In the Great Foot Freeze, fill a child's wading pool with water and lots of ice cubes, plus a plastic bowl or bucket for each participant.

Players sit around the edge of the pool with feet hanging over the water.

At "Go," players race to move the ice cubes out of the water and into their bowls within a designated time period. The catch is they can only use their feet. The person with the most ice cubes wins.

•For Splash Tag you need a big, soft sponge and buckets of water.

One person has to be "It" who will try to tag the other players by throwing the wet sponge.

Why are cicadas so noisy?

The dog days of summer mean the dog-day cicadas will be ticking and buzzing in your backyards soon.

Cicadas (say si-KAY-duhs) are often mistaken for locust which are really grasshoppers. But cicadas aren't even closely related to grasshoppers; cicadas are actually relatives of aphids, leafhoppers and other bugs. And — if you listen closely — you can hear that cicadas make sounds like no other insect around.

Most insects chirp by rubbing their wings together or against another part of their body, such as the leg. But a cicada's sound comes from inside its body. In the lower part of a cicada's thorax—the section where the wings and legs attach — two hollow cavities are covered with membranes, which act like a drum. Attached to the membranes are muscles that the cicada contracts and releases to beat out its special sound.

But one little cicada can't orchestrate the nighttime symphony you typically hear. That sound comes from a group of cicadas.

Here's what happens: Nymphs, or immature, wingless cicadas, overwinter under the ground near tree roots. When they are mature, they will tunnel up to the surface and latch onto a tree trunk. Then, a mature, winged cicada emerges from the crusty exoskeleton of the nymph. Immediately the males begin to make their distinct sounds to attract females, so they can start the cycle all over again.

A close relative of the dog-day cicada, called the periodical cicadas, come out in such large numbers that people can sometimes hear their racket from a mile away!

Scientifically yours, Twig

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

When my parents moved to the farm that they purchased in 1919, it was a rather simple move. They had a wagon of furniture and one of wood to cook and heat the house. Their parents gave them a few chickens plus one cow and one heifer. A load of hay and one of fodder came from his home on a neighboring farm.

There was much work to be done as fences needed repair. A pig pen was built and potatoes were planted in the field. They had a hired boy who lived with them. My father kept record of every penny earned and every penny spent. I have the book in which he kept his records. Some money given to the young boy included: haircut 10 cents, straw hat 25 cents, poke money 10 cents, movies 6 cents, garters 10 cents, stick pin 10 cents, car fare 10 cents, pair sole shoes 20 cents and fireworks 24 cents.

My father sold milk to Lancaster Sanitary Milk Company for prices ranging from $2.45 to $4.30 per hundred pound in the 1920s. The cows were kept in a meadow some distance from the barn and as a youngster I took them back and forth on a cinder road in my bare feet. They always seemed to know where the weak spot in the fence was and ran to get into the corn fields.

My father had bees and he sold honey at the Northern Market in Lancaster. As there were many walnut trees on the farm, their kernels were also sold at their market stand. My mother dressed chickens and made butter—so did I in the 1940s.

Men in the neighborhood worked for one dollar a day as they helped to thresh wheat. In September we picked up potatoes when we got home from school. Tobacco was a money crop too. In my father's diary he tells of catching a skunk in the tobacco cellar and selling it for two dollars. Everyday brought more work for all of us.

Delaware Farmer Loves Farming Challenge

SUSAN MORSE BALDWIN
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — In 1960 Keith Carlisle wasn't sure he wanted to go to college. He did know that he wanted to farm just as his father and grandfather had, and college would mean four more years before he could start. His aunt, a teacher, gave him the encouragement he needed to get the the University of Delaware (UD), and once there, Dean George Worrilow succeeded in keeping him at UD long enough to earn a bachelor's degree in animal science and agricultural engineering. And he's really glad they did.

"It's not just what I learned," says this Sussex County grain and vegetable grower. "It was the people, too . . I made lifelong friends and contacts that have helped make me the farmer I am."

This year at the Agricultural Alumni Association's annual banquet, Carlisle was presented the Worrilow Award, which is given each year to a graduate of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources who has exhibited outstanding service to agriculture

"I was shocked when I learned about the award," says Carlisle. "It is especially meaningful since Dean Worrilow had a great influence on me. I was a country boy from a small downstate high school, and Dean Worrilow looked out for me—he was a real mentor, a fine teacher who knew every student in the college by name."

Carlisle began farming in 1964 near Greenwood. In 1967, he was joined by his brother, Richard. Today, Carlisle Brothers Inc. cultivates 2,800 acres of vegetables and grains. Truly a family business, Carlisle's con Will and two nephews work the farm, and his wife Carol, is the secretary-treasurer of the operation.

Carlisle recalls that when he returned home after college he had doubts about being able to make a living from the sandy soils of southern Delaware. His is one in a long line of Carlisles farming in Sussex County, on a homestead that dates back to a land grant from William Penn.

"This is home, my heart is here," Carlisle says, firmly, punctuating the sentiment with a nod of his head. "The land in Sussex isn't easy to crop—so much sand and very little water. I knew I couldn't farm like my dad did. I needed to adopt new technologies, remain flexible and be willing to change."

Vegetables grown for processing — limas, peas, green beans, sweet corn, and cucumbers — form the core of the business, which is augmented by four agronomic crops — soybeans, corn, wheat and barley — grown for the broiler industry. Fifteen years ago he gradually began the changeover to high-value vegetables destined for processing plants in the Mid-Atlantic region.

"It's a high-risk business, but that's always where the revenue is," says Carlisle, ever the savvy businessman. "I'm still learning. Take spinach—it's a crisis crop—lots can go wrong.

"It's profitable, though," he adds, smiling. "Wouldn't fool with it if it wasn't."

Carlisle used a soil corer to determine if the pea crop needs irrigating. He can tell whether there is enough moisture from the soil texture.

Carlisle says the change was made easier with the help of Cooperative Extension. Ever since he started farming, Carlisle has worked with UD Extension specialists and agents to set up a variety of trials, cropping demonstrations and harvesting equipment research as part of his operation. He calls working with Extension a win-win situation.

"I use university resources, so I have a responsibility to give back," Carlisle explains. "With vegetable cropping, at different times, I have sought the advice of the IPM specialist, the plant pathologist and the vegetable specialist."

Carlisle has remained flexible. In his office, he uses a computer to track his product yield, inputs and profit as well as a fax machine and e-mail to communicate with the world. In the field, he uses satellite technology and a computer equipped tractor to do yield mapping, soil grading and yield monitoring.

Carlisle's service to agriculture has been evident throughout his career. He belongs to the Delaware Crop Improvement Association, the Delaware Crop Improvement Association and Delaware Farm Bureau. He is former president of the Ag Alumni Association and has been a member of Alpha Zeta since 1961. He is former president of the Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association and a member of the Delaware Soybean Board.

Appointed to the United Soybean Board in 1992 by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ed Madigan, Carlisle served until 1995. He firmly believes in the checkoff program that finances soybean research and market development. In 1995, he was elected to the Agway Board of Directors. In 1991, he received the Service to Agriculture Award from the Sussex County Service Clubs, and his family operation received the Friend of the Extension award in 1993.

Peas are just beginning to form a pod in one of Carlisle's fields, where he used a soil corer to determine if the crops needs irrigating. His pivot-irrigation system moves around the field on its own, but must be moved from field to field. Carlisle takes care of this, sometimes in the middle of the night.

When does he sleep?

"Winter," he says and although he smiles, you know he means it.

and Dave added a 44-foot addition onto the original 60-foot barn and added a dumping station for the milk. At this time there were milking 40 cows.

It was also in 1976 that Dave met his future wife, Donna.

According to Donna, she was definitely not a farm girl and was actually afraid of cows. Even though she says she wasn't sure she wanted to become a farm wife, Dave and Donna were married in 1978, and in 1980 purchased the farm.

Improvements and expansion continued with the addition of a pipeline, a modified Virginia-style heifer barn and additional silos.

Their family was also expanded by one when a daughter, Brandi, was born in 1982. Additional land was purchased in 1990 and they also rent 80 acres. The Clevelands raise 90 acres of corn, 50 acres of alfalfa, 11 acres of barley, 11 acres of oats and 100 acres of mixed hay.

The Clevelands milk in a 40-cow tie stall barn. All replacements are raised, bringing their total animal count to 99 grade Holsteins and one Jersey.

In 1982 the family began testing their milk with DHIA. At that time, the herd average was 14,000 pounds. Today the herd average tops 21,000 pounds and in 1996 the Clevelands were honored with the Dairy Herd Management Award.

One cow in particular has captured the attention of the Cleveland family. Now seven years old, Kate had a record 44,000 pounds of milk in 1996.

"That's 56,320 eight-ounce glasses of milk," said tour guide Tim Kreger, as he related the story about the Cleveland family farm.

Tour stops included a visit with Howard Rutledge, of the Natural Resources Conservation Service. As visitors enjoyed the view of colorful strips of corn and hay, Rutledge explained the benefits of contour farming.

"The goal is to keep the soil on the hill, where they can use it to grow crops, and to keep it out of the streams, so that when you come out here to use the streams, they're clean," he explained. He also noted how small grains are used in conjunction with new seedlings to establish a new hay crop.

At the next wagon stop, Dan Hartranft started his chain saw to show visitors a little bit about chain saw safety. He also explained that 67 percent of forests in Pennsylvania are privately owned, making the need for education important.

"We grow crops just like farmers. The only difference is that it take us a lot more years to grow our product," said Hartranft.

Besides the wagon tours, visitors could spend time at the children's farm where animals from rabbits to goats to ducks were available for up close inspection.

Other exhibitions included sheep shearing, hoof trimming, cow milking, and Christmas tree trimming, in addition to exhibits sponsored by various agricultural groups. The day also provided a chance for people to help fund the Farm City Day activities by placing a bid at an auction, to watch as pedal tractor pulling contest, try their hand at stacking hay bales or splicing a barbed wire fence.

As always, the goal is to educate the public about the importance of farming.

"The committee would like to stress the importance of how society depends on farming and how many people are affected by the every day decisions, products and work of the farmer," said committee members in a brochure developed to promote the event.

Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes who made a stop at the event reiterated the importance of family farms during the opening ceremonies as he identified three principles that Pennsylvanians need to keep in mind regarding agriculture. First the state must work hard to preserve natural resources. Second we must protect the men and women in agriculture in terms of opportunities to farm and third, we must not expect them to work for free.

"If we do these three things," said Hayes, "young people will have opportunities in agriculture into the 21st century. Pennsylvania will be what you and I want it to be and you and it will be help keep America strong—able to feed itself, able to clothe itself, and able to shelter itself."

All of the activity and the planning couldn't be possible without the help of many people.

According to chairperson Bonnie Keil, more than 80 volunteers gave time. They're the people who make the day possible."

Donna Cleveland echoes the sentiments of Keil.

"It was a really enjoyable day," said Cleveland. "Everything went better than expected. There were no accidents. I encourage more farmers to do it if they get the chance. We really worked hard to get ready, but once Saturday came we were ready. It shows the other half how we live."

She also appreciated the help of the many volunteers who helped make the day successful. "Everybody who committed was here. Everybody did their job. We had about 13 wagons and 13 tractors giving tours and bringing people in from the parking lot. A lot of those drivers didn't even get a lunch break. They were all neighboring farmers."

Questions asked by some visitors helped farm volunteers understand how important reaching out to the surrounding community can be.

"We made a point to get to last year's Farm City Day," said Cleveland. "I was a tour guide and I couldn't believe how little people knew about farming. A lot of people didn't know that a cow had to have a calf to give milk. Here we have one Jersey and people believe she gives chocolate milk."

The Cleveland family also had the opportunity to follow up on some of the history of the farm. Before the day, Donna had prepared a display featuring early pictures of the property as well as some of the early deeds. In 1870, William Bache purchased the land that the Cleveland farm now is on. Once of the descendants of William Bache has returned to Tioga County and made it a point to visit with the Cleveland family.

"That really made my day," said Donna.

Two-year-old Ashley Mitchell, of Westfield looks the goat in the eye as she enjoys her stay at Tioga County Farm City Day.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Local 4-H'ers To Compete In Statewide 4-H Fashion Revue

Kristina Futty of Oxford and Alyssia Church of West Chester will participate in the State 4-H Fashion Revue at Eisenhower Auditorium on the University Park Campus of Penn State University, as part of Penn State 4-H Achievement Week. The theme of this year's program is Picture Perfect.

As two of the finalists from the Regional 4-H Fashion Revue held July 7 in Leesport, Berks County, Kristina Futty and Alyssia Church will compete with 60 other 4-H'ers for a place in the state honors group. At the state revue, a panel of professional judges selects 10 finalists. The entrants are judged on garment construction, fit, degree of construction, difficulty, appropriateness of garment for the 4-H'er, and modeling ability.

By participating in the series of county, regional, and state revues, 4-H textiles science project members have a chance to turn self-consciousness into self-confidence. They learn about wardrobe selection, the importance of good posture, physical fitness, and other aspects of grooming. Penn State's Cooperative Extension coordinates the 4-H program in Pennsylvania.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Each day we are learning more and more about the role key nutrients play in our body. For instance, we now know that too much sodium and fat in our diet can contribute to hypertension and heart disease.

Take a close look at your family's favorite recipes that you use on a regular basis. Do they contain a lot of fat, sugar or salt? If so, it is time to learn to update your old family favorites for more healthful eating. Try some of the following suggestions.

To Decrease Total Fat and Calories

Reduce the fat by one-fourth to one-third in baked goods such as quick breads, muffins and cookies.

Reduce or eliminate added fat in casseroles or main dishes. Use a non-stick pan or cooking spray when browning meat and eliminate the need to add extra fat.

Skim off hardened fats from chilled soups. Then reheat and serve.

Try reduced calorie mayonnaise or sour cream or, for even fewer calories, used plain, low-fat yogurt, buttermilk or blended cottage cheese in place of regular sour cream or mayonnaise for sauces, dips and salad dressing.

To Decrease Sugar

Reduce sugar by one-fourth to one-third in baked goods and desserts such as quick breads, cookies, pie fillings, custard and fruit crisps. Do not decrease the small amount of sugar in plain yeast breads, as the sugar provides food for the yeast and helps rising.

Reduce or eliminate sugar when canning or freezing fruits.

To Decrease Sodium

Reduce or eliminate salt in most recipes. Do not reduce the salt in cured meats or pickles, however, as the salt acts as a preservative. Do not reduce the salt in yeast breads because the salt controls the rising action of the yeast.

Reduce the salt in recipes gradually and you will adjust to a less salty flavor.

Use herbs and spices to flavor rather than salt.

Now, how do you begin? First look at the ingredients in your recipe, consider the general guidelines and gradually make a note of changes you made and your reaction to the changes. Keep trying until you get a recipe which is tasty and good for you and your family.

Compare the following recipe for fish chowder with the modified version. The substitutions for the modified version are listed in bold and parentheses. These changes resulted in fewer calories, 75 percent less fat, one third less cholesterol and two-thirds less sodium (only 108 mg. in each cup of vegetable fish chowder).

Original Vegetable Fish Chowder – (Modified Recipe Substitutions)

3 tablespoons butter (1 T. vegetable oil)
1 medium onion, chopped
2 medium carrots, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
2 medium potatoes, peeled & cubes
2-1/2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt (omit and add 1 bay leaf, 1/2 teaspoon thyme, 1/2 teaspoon dill)
1-1/2 pounds firm white-fleshed fish as cod or haddock, cut into bite sized chunks
1-1/2 cups half-and-half (12 oz. can evaporated skim milk)
pepper to taste

Heat oil in 4-quart saucepan and saute' onions about 5 minutes Add carrots, celery, potatoes, water and herbs; cover and gently simmer about 5-10 minutes more; until fish is just cooked. Stir in evaporated skim milk and heat just to serving temperature. Add pepper to taste. Makes about 10 cups

AICR's Cancer Resource is now available in specialized editions for four of the most common cancers: breast, prostate, colon, and lung. For more information on this free program, call 1-800-843-8114 ext. 37, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Potato Care

Keep potatoes in a cool, dry, dark and well-ventilated place at 45-50 degrees, for several weeks. Keep only one week at room temperature.

Don't refrigerate potatoes because temperatures below 42 degrees causes potato starch to turn to sugar, producing an uncharacteristic sweet flavor. Lengthy exposure to sunlight or to artificial light causes potatoes to turn green and acquire a bitter flavor.

Sampling Trees For Nutrients

Leaf tissue analysis is an excellent way for gardeners to determine the actual nutritional status of plants. Commercial producers of fruit crops rely heavily on leaf analysis to prevent production problems.

Tissue analysis is an excellent and inexpensive way of finding out if your fertilization program is working or if changes need to be made. The analysis provides the information on foliar nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, molybdenum, iron, copper, boron, sulfur, manganese, and zinc levels for the leaves sampled, a fact sheet on what the levels should be for these plant nutrients, and recommendations for corrective measures if needed. Combined with a soil test, leaf tissue analysis can help pinpoint the source of nutrient problems. For example many gardeners feel little fertilizer is needed on fruit trees. Actually, all plants (fruits or vegetables) need 16 different nutrients, some are required at large amounts like nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Several others are only needed in trace amounts like boron and zinc.

Here's the best time to sample fruit crops in your garden using a tissue analysis kit. These times of the year have the most stable nutrient levels within the plant.

- Strawberries: sample from the first fully expanded new leaves after renovation (July 13 to August 1)
- Blueberries: sample healthy leaves the first week of harvest or during July or August.
- Blueberries: sample healthy leaves on non-fruiting canes in mid-August.
- Fruit trees: sample each type of fruit tree and variety separately from mid-July to mid-August. Trees should be the same age. Select leaves midway on the shoot of current season's growth.

Here's how to sample. Collect 50 leaves per sample. Sample different varieties separately, if possible. Collect leaves from as many bushes or trees as possible. Do not collect diseased or dead plants or leaves damaged by insects or seeds. Do not sample extremely old or the youngest leaves. Remove the Petioles (leaf stems) from the leaves. Make sure leaves are free of soil. Allow the leaves to air dry before placing into the paper bag included in the kit. Complete the information in the kit. The cost per sample is $18.

Protect Child's Skin

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The rays of the sun feel good on your skin. It can make you feel so healthy. But sometimes what feels good for your health can really be bad for you, your family, and especially young children. The sun can cause painful sunburn. It is the main cause of skin cancer. Sun exposure in childhood can lead to skin cancer later in life.

Follow these simple rules to protect your child from sunburns and skin cancer later in life:

• Babies under six months of age should be kept out of the direct sunlight.

• Move your baby to the shade of a tree, umbrella or stroller canopy.

• Dress your baby and child in clothing that covers the body, such as comfortable lightweight long pants, long sleeved shirts, and hats with brims that shade the face and cover the ears.

• Watch the time. The sun's rays are the strongest between 10 am and 4 pm.

• If you child has fair skin with blond or red hair and light eyes, try to schedule outdoor time for early in the morning or late afternoon, so the child is inside when the sun's rays are the strongest.

• Babies and children can be exposed to the sun and get a sunburn on a cloudy day.

• This is because clouds don't block most of the sun's rays. Take precautions even on cloudy days.

• Regularly use a sunscreen with children.

Sunscreen: Choose a waterproof or water-resistant sunscreen made for children. Look for the words "broad spectrum" on the label. This tells you that the sunscreen is made to screen out both ultraviolet A (UVA) and B (UVB) sun rays. Apply a sunscreen with SPF 15 or higher to children over 6 months of age thirty minutes before going outside. Test the sunscreen on your child's wrist for a reaction before applying sunscreen all over the body. If a rash develops, talk to your child's doctor.

Apply a generous amount of sunscreen and rub it in well, making sure to cover all exposed skin, especially your child's face, ears, feet and hands. Don't forget the back of your child's knees. Apply carefully around eyes, avoiding the eyelids.

If your child gets a sunburn, give him juice or water to replace lost fluids.

Harvey's Philosophy: 'Share What You Have'

"It's been my philosophy that if you have something and don't share it, you don't have anything at all," said Harvey, who always strives to have time for others.

Daughter Nancy Burrell, left, stops by to visit her parents Tom and Thetis Harvey, who have been married 57 years. The 74-acre ranch, which is a visual paradise, reaches into Delaware. The Harveys freely share their home with others, believing that if you share with the expectation of payback, fate will pass you by.

At a recent party thrown for underprivileged children at the Harvey's Gateway Riding Stable, Alonza the Clown performs his magic.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Cheers of 125 children rang throughout the hills of Gateway Riding Stable recently.

They rode horses, watched vaulting teams, swam, took both a hayride and a fire engine ride, participated in a magic show with Alonza the Clown, and had the run of the farm.

It was the fifth year Tom and Thetis Harvey held the day-long event on their horse farm for underprivileged kids. The Harveys invited children helped through Delaware Catholic Charities and those who have a parent in Coatesville Prison.

The 74-acre ranch is a visual paradise. Trees and perennials grow proliferously around neatly kept meadows with board fences.

Harvey is 77 years old. While many his age might find the commotion of so many children traipsing around the family pool and grounds bothersome, he finds it delightful.

"It's wonderful to see the kids having a good time instead of on the streets with someone offering them drugs," Harvey said.

The event for the disadvantaged children is typical of how Harvey finds ways to help others.

He said, "A lawyer did some work for me. He didn't want any pay, but in the course of conversation, he mentioned that he had been an orphan who was helped by Catholic Charities. It was his hope that someday he could do something special for the organization to help pay back the positive influences it had upon his life."

Harvey offered to throw a party at his home for disadvantaged children in honor of the lawyer Christopher Amalfitano. The party was so much fun, the Harveys have been doing it for five years, not only in the summer but also in the winter. The winter party is thrown at a restaurant where the children can order whatever they want on the menu.

"They are so excited. For many of them, it is the first time, they have ever eaten in a restaurant," Harvey said.

He also has been generous in helping with other projects also. "If the agency works with a protestant child, they won't try and convert them to Catholicism but will take him or her to the church of choice. That really impresses me," Harvey said.

A modest man, Harvey shies away from talking about himself, but as children and adults came and went, stories of Harvey's generosity escaped.

Throughout his conversation, Harvey often refers to his wife of 57 years. "Without her, I wouldn't have been successful," he said. "She is really a positive person. And she never was one to spend a lot of money."

Thetis enters into the enjoyment of sharing their home with others. Her own mother had died when she was five years old, and she remembers the pain associated with that. That and the fact that Harvey remembers as a child desperately wanting a pony to play a role in opening their farm to children.

Harvey said that in the hopes of purchasing a pony, he was determined to earn enough money to buy one. When he was in fifth grade, he started using his wagon to haul neighbors' trash to the dump.

He had 15 customers who paid him 15 cents a week.

"I took a lot of ribbing from other kids," Harvey said. "They'd ask me how business was doing. I'd say, 'It's picking up.'"

Business indeed picked up—although he never did get the pony. When he was in college, Harvey paid $35 for a Model A to which he hitched a cart to pull garbage.

"It cost more money to pay for insurance than the car," Harvey said.

But he could haul away the garbage of 50 customers each Saturday and was making a commendable amount of money for one day's work.

Lured by the opportunity Harvey envisioned in the garbage hauling business, Harvey transferred from premed studies to a two-year business college while he continued to haul garbage and do other odd jobs. "You name it, we did it," Harvey said. For a period of time, his truck had inscribed on the side, "What we don't do isn't worth doing."

Business grew and grew. Today his son has 200 trucks running full-time for the disposal business.

Despite the monetary success of his business, Harvey's parents were a bit embarrassed to have a son hauling garbage instead of achieving a professional degree.

Although Harvey feels some disappointment that his parents never approved of his career choice, he is pleased to report that he did receive an honorary business degree from Goldly Beacon.

He has dabbled in some other businesses such as operating a fleet of 125 school busses, but the mainstay has always been the garbage business.

Harvey delights in giving opportunities to those who seemingly would have no chance. He hired a Latvian immigrant to manage the stables. Harvey gives glowering reports of her ability and success with the stables, where 50 horses are used for riding lessons.

Harvey has also been instrumental in having seven prisoners receive governmental pardons for crimes. While many might take the attitude of "commit the crime and pay," Harvey is merciful when he hears of stories of those who made bad choices.

He tells of a 17-year-old who was imprisoned for 30 years for being caught with some cocaine in his pocket.

"What 17-year-old hasn't done a dumb thing? Harvey asked,

After the man had served 20 years of his sentence, Harvey convinced the governor to pardon the man. He also petitioned the governor on behalf of a businessman that swindled thousands of dollars from the government.

Harvey reports that none of those who were pardoned ever got into trouble with the law again.

In recent years, an illegal Mexican immigrant approached him about a job. Harvey helped the young fellow receive legal immigrant papers, paid him a good hourly wage, and even purchased a pickup truck to give to him. The fellow was arrested for driving with an open beer can in his hand.

Harvey defends him. "He didn't know better," said Harvey. He doesn't understand all the law because of the language barrier."

Harvey paid for legal help to defend the Mexican employee and is confident he, liks other employees will do well when given another chance.

Harvey doesn't keep close tabs on follow-up with former prisoners. "They have a heart, a soul, and the ability to know the difference between right and wrong," he said.

"If you share with the expectation of payback, fate will pass you by," Harvey said.

At the same time, he said that it is necessary to differentiate among those who respond to help and those who are, simply, leeches.

Harvey said that his parents, cautious from memories of the Great Depression, were appalled when he took out a $15,000 mortgage on his house. Since then, he has added several rooms, a veranda, patio and sun porch onto the

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Pick Summer's Best Fruits, Berries

Here are some suggestions to help you make good choices when choosing the fruits of summer:

Blueberries: Look for dark blue fruits with a silvery cast. Berries should be plump, firm, the same size, dry and free of stems and leaves.

Avoid soft mushy, moldy or leaking berries.

At home refrigerate in a shallow container. Wash just before serving.

Cantaloupes: Look for a thick coarse, corky netting covering the skin. A ripe cantaloupe has a yellowish rind and yields slightly to light thumb pressure on the stem end.

Avoid a strong yellow-colored rind, a softening over the entire rind, or mold growth, particularly in the stem scar.

At home if the cantaloupe isn't ready to eat store it at room temperature. The longer it sits out, the softer and juicier it becomes. Remember to refrigerate a cut melon.

Honeydew Melons: Look for a soft velvety texture, slight softening at the blossom end, a faint fruit aroma, and a yellowish white to creamy rind color.

Avoid melons with large water-soaked bruised areas to indicate injury. Cuts or punctures in the rind can lead to decay.

At home after they have ripened, keep in the refrigerator. They will last about a week.

Nectarines: Look for rich color, plumpness, and a slight softening along the ridge that runs down one side of the fruits. Most nectarines are orange-yellow between the red areas.

Avoid hard, dull, slightly shriveled or soft fruit with cracked skin.

At home ripen at room temperature in a paper bag, and then refrigerate.

Peaches: Look for fruit that is fairly firm or a little soft. The skin between the red areas should be yellow or at least a little creamy.

Avoid hard fruit with a distinct green color which probably won't ripen.

At home ripen in a paper bag at room temperature and then refrigerate.

Pears: Look for fruit that has begun to soften.

Avoid wilted or shriveled pears with dull-appearing skin and slight withering of the flesh near the stem.

At home ripen at room temperature in a paper bag. If a pear yields to gentle pressure near the seam and side, it's ready to eat.

Strawberries: Look for berries with a full red color and bright luster, firm flesh and the cap stem still attached. Medium to small strawberries usually taste better than larger ones.

Avoid fruit with large uncolored or seedy areas, a shrunken look or softness or mold which can spread rapidly from one berry to another.

At home refrigerate, and keep berries dry. Wash just before serving.

Watermelons: Look for firm juicy flesh with good red color and dark brown or black seeds (whitish seeds mean the melon is immature). With uncut melon look for a smooth, slightly dull surface. The ends should be filled out and rounded and the belly (the underside that rests on the ground) should have a creamy color.

Avoid pale-covered flesh, white streaks, whitish seeds, dry mealy flesh or watery stringy flesh.

property. He also built a large swimming pool and bath house on it.

He used mostly recycled materials. On the grounds are a greenhouse, where many of the annuals planted on the property are started. Even a hen house with 65 hens is on the grounds. Harvey gathers the eggs and distributes them to senior citizens.

Every Sunday Harvey and his wife spend a few hours visiting heart patients at Christiana Hospital. Harvey had open-heart surgery more than a year ago and is a member of the Zipper's Club (Mended Hearts Club). Club members visit heart patients to encourage them and give them hope for future health.

The Harvey's farm is also the site of many senior citizen events.

The Harveys have three children. Son E. Thomas took over the family business 15 years ago. One daughter is a stockbroker and another teaches Spanish and Latin at the Delaware high school.

The Harveys are wonderful, exceptional people was the sentiment expressed again and again by adults in attendance of the event.

Harvey shrugs off the compliments by saying, "It's been my philosophy that if you have something and don't share it, you don't have anything at all."

Ohio Flooding Could Hurt Some Corn

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Environmental conditions and a new type of corn rootworm could cause more rootworm damage than usual in Ohio cornfields this year, said Ohio State University Extension field crops entomologist Hal Willson.

Late planting and a dry spell put development in many Ohio cornfields about two weeks behind. At the same time, the warm winter and spring caused rootworm larvae to appear about two weeks earlier than normal. This could result in a damaging combination in some fields.

"Rootworm larvae usually hatch in early or mid-June, but we found larvae in fields that probably hatched in late May," Willson said. "With larvae coming out early and eating the smaller root systems of less mature corn, there is a better chance the plants might be knocked over by storms and high winds."

Fallen or lodged corn causes lower yields in the fall. However, if early lodging does not occur, larvae stop feeding by early July, and dry weather with occasional rain favors corn growth, damaged roots of young plants could grow back to normal without any lodging problems, Willson said.

"In a smaller root system, there is more damage, but there's also more of a chance for roots to grow back after feeding, if the corn is a variety that regenerates its root system," he said.

Damage from early appearing larvae isn't the only rootworm problem Ohio farmers face this summer. A new form of the pest, called first-year corn rootworm, could cause damage in cornfields previously thought protected by crop rotation.

Typically, rootworm adults — small black, yellow and black, or bluish-green beetles — mate in cornfields from July through September, and the females lay their eggs in the cornfield's soil. The eggs overwinter and hatch into immature larvae in the spring that survive by eating corn roots.

Crop rotation — not planting corn after corn in the same field — has been an effective non-chemical rootworm control for decades because it breaks the rootworm life cycle in fields by starving rootworm larvae. The trouble with first-year corn rootworm is many farmers rotate corn with soybeans, and these rootworms lay eggs in soybean fields, a completely new behavior, Willson said.

"Most farmers planting fields with corn year after year use a soil insecticide to protect against rootworm," he said. "But if growers didn't use an insecticide on first-year corn and relied on rotation for rootworm control, they could see injury this summer if the new pest is in abundance."

Western Ohio is the area of most concern as the pest gradually spreads into Ohio from Indiana and Illinois, where it has been a problem since 1987. In 1996 and 1997, Ohio State University entomologists found first-year corn rootworm in Mercer, Shelby, Paulding and Van Wert counties, and the pest also is suspected to be in Butler, Darke, Preble and Henry counties.

Currently, Ohio farmers spend $10 million to $15 million a year on soil insecticides. Most of that is used to treat rootworm in continuous cornfields — about 15 percent of the state's corn acreage. But five to 10 years from now, 60 to 70 percent of the state's corn may need to be treated, depending on how quickly first-year corn rootworm spreads, Willson said.

It usually takes the pest two or three years to build up to economically damaging levels, so growers shouldn't use insecticides on first-year corn until a significant presence of first-year corn rootworm is confirmed, he said.

"It's too late to treat for rootworm this year, but from July through late August farmers should scout every two weeks for adult rootworm beetles in corn and soybean fields that will be planted to corn next year," Willson said. "The number of adult beetles they find will help determine if a soil insecticide should be used to control rootworm next spring."

In soybean fields, adult rootworm beetle abundance may be evaluated by periodic monitoring with a sweep net or by using yellow sticky traps. In an area where the first-year corn rootworms is not a problem, sweep net collections of adult rootworms in soybeans will be minimal. However, if the first-year corn rootworm problem exists, one or more rootworm beetles may be collected per sweep.

Placing a minimum of four Pherocon AM or Multigard yellow sticky traps in soybean fields is a less time-consuming scouting method. Collection of 40 or more beetles per week with a Pherocon AM trap or 100 or more with a Multigard trap indicates the potential for economically damaging rootworm levels next spring.

For more information about rootworm control and first-year corn rootworm, people can contact Ohio State University Extension's Integrated Pest Management office in Columbus at (614) 292-8358 or contact their county office of Ohio State University Extension.

Crawford County Fairs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge recently announced two $25,000 grants to the Crawford County Fair for capital improvements.

"Pennsylvania's county fairs bring our communities together in a celebration of the prosperity of the past and hope for the future," Gov. Ridge Said.

The Crawford County Fair is one of Pennsylvania's largest county fairs.

Gov. Ridge said the first $25,000 grant will be used for the construction of a new grandstand. The second grant will be used for additions to buildings, and extension of sewer lines and water line from the fire department with two additional fire hydrants.

"Our county fairs showcase the best of Pennsylvania agriculture while providing wholesome, educational family fun," Gov. Ridge said.

There are more than 100 fairs held annually across the Commonwealth. The Agriculture Department's Bureau of Market Development Fairs Division awarded $3.6 million in grants to 54 Pennsylvania fairs for capital improvements last year.

Horticulture Field Day July 29

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The 1998 Pennsylvania Horticulture Field Day is scheduled July 29 here at the Russell E. Larson Research Center Horticulture Research Farm.

The event is being sponsored jointly by Penn State University's College of Agricultural Sciences, the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, and the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania.

The schedule for the day's events is as follows:

8 a.m. Registration at the Hort Farm. Coffee and donuts will be available.

9:15 a.m. Tours of Research Plots at Hort Farm. Researchers and support staff will be in the field to answer questions and comment about their current research. Two tours will be available: A - Vegetables, Potatoes, Small Fruit & Cut Flowers - research plots dealing with weed control, variety evaluation, plasticulture and management of vegetable crop production. B - Tree Fruit.

12:15 p.m. Lunch — A catered meal is planned.

1:30 p.m. Tours, Workshop and Demonstrations — Four options will be available to growers. A - Machinery and Field Demonstrations - planters, plastic mulch lifters, spading machines, plastic recovery equipment and other equipment. B - Plant Pathology Research Plots Tour with Dr. Alan MacNab (same as morning tour). C - Entomology Research Plots Tour with Dr. Shelby Fleischer. D - Workshop on recycling farm plastics with James Garthe.

5 p.m. Adjourn.

The following plots of research being conducted by Michael Orzolek, William Lamont Jr., Terrence Simpson, and Lewis Otjen will be available for observation at the horticulture farm.

Variety Evaluations

• Se sweet corn — about 42 sugary extended (se) sweet corn varieties were planted in this study in late May. There are early, mid-season, and late varieties as well as white, yellow, and bi-color material.

• Indian or ornamental corn — approximately 26 varieties of ornamental or Indian corn were planted in early June. There are several interesting kernel colors from pink, red, blue, brown, and yellow combined with either brown or red leaves.

• Eggplant — 14 eggplant varieties were planted in late May with a large variation in size, shape, and color of the fruit. Very attractive for roadside markets.

• Pumpkin — there are approximately 30 varieties of pumpkins in this trial ranging in weight from 3 to 25 pounds and some advanced breeding material with either powdery mildew or virus tolerance.

• Red onion — there are eight red onion varieties that were transplanted on plastic mulch (red, silver, and black) on April 20 and have grown rather uniformly over the last six weeks. The bulbs of these varieties should average between three to four inches in diameter.

• Asgrow tomato trial — 11 varieties of new commercial hybrid tomato varieties along with 11 advanced breeding lines will be evaluated in this replicated trial on plastic mulch. Data will be collected on plant characteristics and both early and total yield of marketable fruit.

• Pepper variety observational trial — Approximately 22 varieties of peppers which were also planted in Westmoreland and Berks counties were planted in an observation block at the Farm.

• Novartis Cantaloupe Variety Evaluation Trial — Approximately 19 commercial hybrid and advanced breeding lines from Roger Brothers Seed will be evaluated for plant characteristics, disease resistance, and marketable fruit yield. The melons will be grown on silver polyethylene mulch.

• NE-184 Regional Cooperative Potato Variety Evaluation Program — 41 varieties that include potatoes for the chipping (processing), tablestock (fresh) and specialty markets are being evaluated for their potential use in Pennsylvania.

• Comparison of Nu-Leaf and non Nu-Leaf potato varieties — comparing Atlantic and Superior varieties with Nu-Leaf and without. Nu-Leaf is name given to standard varieties that are genetically engineered to provide control of the Colorado Potato Beetle.

Herbicide Evaluations Trials

• Sweet corn — This trial was designed to control weeds in sweet corn without the use of or reliance on atrazine during the growing season. Some new herbicide chemistry and older herbicides are included in this trial. This study is supported by the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program.

• Tomato — Evaluation of a new formulation of Dual (CGA-77102) in relation to method of application. Both phytotoxicity and efficacy of the herbicide will be evaluated in this trial.

• Cut Flowers — Evaluate the application of Prefar 4E on six different cut flower species grown on plastic mulch on the phytotoxicity and efficacy of the herbicide.

• Potato vine killing study — This trial will be evaluating two different vine killing herbicides applied at several different rates on their vine killing potential and any effects on the yield and quality of New York 101 and Snowden potato varieties. The Snowden will be chipped from the field and out of storage to determine if there is any residual response from the vine killing herbicides.

Plastic Mulch

• Evaluation of mulch formulation and additives — The combination of additives and color (pigments) from Ampacet are being evaluated in studies with pepper, cantaloupe and watermelon. Mulch and crop performance data will be collected in this study.

• Mulch color and eggplant production — The effect of mulch color (black, yellow, red, silver, blue, white, and white stripe on black) on the growth, development and yield of marketable eggplant will be evaluated in this study.

• Early sweet corn production under plastic film — "Temptation" sweet corn was planted on April 28 with the SAMCO planter from Ireland using thin, degradable film from Integrated Packaging from Melbourne, Australia. The planter and film system are being marketed in the U.S. by Huntsman Packaging from Harrington, Del.

• Early sweet corn production under plastic film with Trichoderma — Non-treated "Incredible" sweet corn seed was planted under plastic mulch on April 29 with no treatment or treatment with the beneficial fungi Trichoderma harzianum. As of May 18, 1998, the sweet corn had developed into 4 to 6 leaf stage plants compared to sweet corn growing on bare soil that was half the size of the corn under plastic. This is a cooperative study with Dr. Thomas Borkman, Cornell University and supported by the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program.

• Mulch color and day lily production — The effect of mulch color (black, red, silver, and white) on the growth, bulf formation and development and flowering of a commercial Day Lily variety will be evaluated in this study. This study is a cooperative project with Dr. Charles Heuser, Ornamentalist in the Department of Horticulture.

• Day-neutral strawberry production on colored mulch — Day-neutral strawberry varieties, Tribute and Tristar, were planted on raised beds covered with red, yellow, silver or black (standard color) polyethylene mulch with drip irrigation on May 21, 1997. Initial fruit harvest began Aug. 1 and continued through Sept. 29, 1997. Early fruit size was small, approximately six grams per fruit, presumably because of the minimal vegetative growth that the varieties had achieved before fruit set. Late harvest fruit size doubled as vegetative growth doubled. Mulch response was variety dependent. The crop was overwintered and early summer harvest data recorded in 1998.

Potato Research

• Evaluation of crop-set — material will be evaluated on three potato varieties — Snowden, NY 101, and Norland — to determine its efficacy on potatoes. Rates and times of application will be the main varieties being investigated. Crop-Set is registered as a crop biostimulant.

• Spacing study of potatoes — 41 potato varieties are being grown at a 10-inch spacing compared to the standard 8-inch in-row-spacing.

The PA DHIA office employee of the year award goes to the person who has demonstrated an outstanding positive attitude, is self-motivated and is a team player. This person is selected by a vote of the personnel at the main office. This year the lab manager Dixie Burris presented the award to Jeremy Etters, Equipment Specialist for the Laboratory.

A longtime friend an one of the people who made Pennsylvania DHIA what it is today, Don Ace, gave all of us a speech about the past history of DHIA. It was a very interesting speech that gave us all a look at some of the history of DHIA.

Horticulture Field Day July 29

Entomology

The entomology tour will feature a trial of transgenic sweet corn, using precision ag tools, and sweet corn insect trapping. The transgenic sweet corn is a replicated trial of a line of processing sweet corn that has the Bt gene (the gene that comes from Bacillus thuringiensis, the bacteria that is used for making products such as Dipel, Xentari, Agree, Javelin, Mattch, Biobit, Cutlass, etc.), compared against its soiline. The precision ag tool will be a backpack Global Positioning System (GPS). They are using it to map the Colorado potato beetle in a processing tomato experiment and in potato experiment. Researchers will also discuss how it can be used for mapping other variables of interest, such as soil nutrition, yield and quality. The sweet corn insect trapping will review the pheromone lures and traps used to monitor insect pests in sweet corn.

To preregister, call PVGA at (717) 694-3596 or SHAP at (717) 677-4184. Registration is $20 per-person to cover the costs of lunch, morning and afternoon refreshments, buses, and other costs. Farmland Industries Certifies First International AG•21 Cooperative

HENSALL, Ontario, Canada — Farmland Industries Ind. made history as it certified its first international AG•21 cooperative. The Hensall District Co-operative, Hensell, Ontario Canada, is the program's first cooperative outside the United States to be certified, making it part of an elite group of Farmland cooperatives.

Tom Sawyer, executive vice president of The Fertilizer Institute of Ontario, and H.D. "Harry" Cleberg, Farmland president and chief executive officer, addressed guests at an open house held at the cooperative's Hensall facilities to honor the achievement.

AG•21 is an innovative crop production process developed by Farmland Industries to raise the agronomic, environmental, and managerial standard for cooperatives across North America. The program is a partnership of the local cooperative, their farmer-members and Farmland to provide enhanced services, cutting-edge technology and an emphasis on environmentally sound management practices. Its goals are to use the best crop production techniques and the latest technology to maximize crop potential in an environmentally friendly manner.

"AG•21's comprehensive process enables us to add value to our traditional products and services, while helping our producer-owners improve crop yields and quality, increase economic returns, conserve soil and water, and protect the environment and human health," said Earl Wagner, Hensall District Co-operative general manager.

To become a certified AG•21 dealer, a Farmland cooperative must undergo a stringent auditing process and complete an extensive employee training program, said Richard Sipe, AG•21 systems manager. "This certification process usually takes one to two years to complete, during which time the cooperative is audited on it agronomic practices, environmental safety, and marketing and human resource efforts. The Hensall cooperative was certified in an inspiring nine months," he said.

Technology and extensive training programs help the cooperative's producer-owners develop personalized Integrated Crop Management (ICM) programs. These programs incorporate nutrient management plans, pest management plans, and other best management practices (BPMs) to maximize efficiencies, optimize economic returns, and enhance the environment. The AG•21 ICM record-keeping software can help document crop field results and field history by recording detailed agronomic practices, including the tracking of identity-preserved crops, crop protection practices, crop rotation, and cost analysis.

"As the government gets tougher on chemical and fertilizer application and manure management practices, agriculture is required to do a better job of record keeping. The AG•21 process helps producers maintain better records and apply the right products in the right amounts at the right times," Wagner said.

The ICM programs provide customers with total agronomic planning, field-by-field history, assistance with environmental regulations and the opportunity to use the most recent technology in precision agriculture, such as global positioning systems (GPS) field mapping.

"AG•21 matches our field-to-fork concept," Wagner said. "The people we are marketing our products to want to know where the products come from — from the exact field and producer through to the processing plant. Without record-keeping programs in place, we wouldn't be able to fulfill this particular market demand."

A progressive and diversified agribusiness that has provided its member-owners with quality products for more than 60 years, Hensall District Co-operative serves 4,500 member-owners from 10 branch locations.

The cooperative records sales of more than $89 million, and in the past five years, it invested more than $17 million in buildings and facilities. In July 1994, it opened a world-class bean processing facility that has the capability of electronically inspecting every edible bean as many as seven times.

The cooperative's innovative processing capabilities and field-by-field record-keeping practices allow its producers' beans to be marketed directly to Japan — something no other Ontario cooperative offers.

Pasto Museum Is Hands-On History Book At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — How did we light our homes to "keep out the night" before electricity? How did we cool our food? Visitors to Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 18-20, can tour the Pasto Agricultural Museum and get a taste of what life was like before gasoline engines and electricity.

"The museum is like a hands-on history book," said Jerome Pasto, museum curator and associate dean emeritus in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "There's a story behind every item."

The museum houses more than 300 implements used for farming and homemaking. Items range from a 6,000-year-old clay sickle used for grain harvesting, to a charcoal-heated clothes iron, to a dog powered treadmill used to churn butter and wash clothes. "Everything is operated by power from the muscles of humans and animals," said Pasto.

Sections of the museum are devoted to harvesting grain, cutting and handling hay, planting and harvesting corn, plowing and cultivating soil and caring for animals. One display focuses on ice harvesting, which provided winter work for rural people. Using horse-drawn ice plows, checkerboards were scored on frozen ponds, then cut in perfect blocks.

"Ice harvesting was a huge business at the turn of the century," said Pasto. "Trainloads of ice were shipped to Philadelphia and New York City to keep food cool in ice boxes. The horses wore nooses while working. If a horse fell in, people pulled the noose tight, leaving air in its lungs so it would float like a balloon. Then, everybody would grab the rope and haul the animal quickly to shore."

Household displays include devices for washing clothes, from primitive wood plungers to "modern" clothes washers with lever-operated tubs and wringers. A collection of irons for pressing clothes includes flat irons with heated inserts, some that burn charcoal and have chimneys and adjustable drafts, and one that is gasoline powered with a tiny carburetor.

Also on display is a hand-cranked ice cream freezer, invented by Mary Johnson in 1834. "It's one of three items in the museum whose concept was so great that it's lasted over 100 years," says Pasto. "Today's ice cream makers still work on the same principle."

The Pasto Agricultural Museum is arranged in chronical sequence to show technological progress. Many artifacts have been restored to working order so visitors can turn the cranks and pull the levers. The museum will be open to the public during all three days of Ag Progress Days.

To celebrate the 20th anniversary of the museum, everyone who has donated antiques to the museum (over 100 living donors) has been invited to the Ag Alumni Annual Meeting and luncheon on August 18 at Ag Progress Days.

If you can't visit the museum, you can order two new educational videotapes narrated by Dr. Pasto as he walks through the museum. "Farming in the Old Days: Small Grains" reviews the production, harvesting and threshing of small grains from 6000 B.C. to the 1930s. "Farming in the Old Days: Corn" covers planting methods used by early Native Americans and pioneers and traces progress in corn planting and harvesting through the 1930s.

For more information about the videos, contact Ag Information Services, The Pennsylvania State University, 119 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA, 16802; phone (814) 865-6309; FAX (814) 863-9877. Price is $35 for one video, or $50 for both. Allow three weeks for delivery. Make checks payable to Penn State, or include a purchase order.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free from July 13 to August 20 or visit the Ag Progress Days site on the World Wide Web at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

Highland Assoc. Names Member Of Year

HILTON, N.Y. — The American Highland Cattle Association has named Roger Jestel 1997 "Member of the Year."

Roger and Donna Jestel have been breeding Highland cattle on their upstate New York farm since 1982. They purchased their first Highland cattle in Massachusetts and have added to their Honey Hill farm herd with purchases of registered breeding stock from the premier Highland breeders in the Northeast.

The rugged longhaired cattle are perfect for their Hilton, N.Y. farm. The Highlands spend the winter outside preferring a brushy windbreak to a barn.

Since both Donna and Roger also work off the farm, they needed a breed that could fend for themselves.

Highlands calve easily. Only two have been pulled on the farm. Most cows go off and calve without help.

Using high-tensile fencing, the Jestels now rotationally graze their herd. Moving the Highlands every day to new pastures improves the fields, breaks the parasite cycle, puts weight on the cattle, and gives the Jestels a chance to see the herd daily. Regular handling also accustoms the cattle to being around humans.

CN THAT FITS YOUR BUDGET

ITS LIKE HAVING EXTRA HOURS EACH DAY.

A Case-IH Axial Flow Combine from Hoober, Inc. gives a farmer the most precious commodity of all during harvest season... time. That's because Case-IH combines have a unique rotor design which enables you to harvest in wet conditions... so you harvest longer each day. Dew in the field keeps conventional combines in the barn because a combine with straw walkers can't handle wet conditions. And, more hours in the field each day, for the entire harvesting season, means greater productivity and profit for you.

WHY HOOBER... (3 BIG REASONS)

1. Since Hoober, Inc. sells the most combines, we can offer the best finance deals.
2. Our staff has the knowledge to put you in a Case-IH combine that's right for your size operation and can customize your new combine to your crop and field conditions.
3. Hoober's revolutionary UPTIME SERVICE concept ensures peak efficiency for years to come.

Visit Hoober, Inc. and get the best combine in the business backed by the best support team in the business.

50 YEARS OF SILO FILLING!

Marlin Brubaker at Little Britain Ag Supply is in his 50th year of custom silo filling. And this year, with a Claas 860 Harvester, he harvested over 2,000 acres. Congratulations!

At M.M. Weaver & Sons, Inc., we admire Marlin Brubaker's steadfastness and we're pleased to have been able to serve him through the years. In 1993 he bought the first Claas 695 Harvester we sold, in 1995 he bought our first 860 Claas Harvester, and in 1997 Marlin bought our first Row Independent Corn Head. Thanks for your business.

The header shown below is the one Marlin Brubaker used this year to harvest 2,000 acres of corn.

HARVEST CORN NO MATTER THE ROW SPACING WITH NEW RU450 INDEPENDENT CORN HEAD

Claas of America offers the RU 450 row independent converging corn head for its self-propelled forage harvesters The RU 450 enables corn to be harvested no matter the row spacing or direction harvested and features a working width of 14'9".
The head features three rotating drums which cut and deliver the crop. Double transport discs on each drum capture the corn plants for crop delivery. The mowing disc, located under the transport discs, cuts the crop and then delivers it to the feed augers. The three-symmetrical rotors assure even crop flow to the feed rollers.
The chainless rotor drive system is made up of universal drive shafts and oil bath gearboxes. Drives are protected by low maintenance overload clutches. With fewer moving parts than a conventional corn head, the RU 450 requires less maintenance resulting in higher output.
Transport of the head is done by activating a hydraulic valve from the cab which folds the outer rotors into a vertical position.

Russ and Kris Schroeder

We mix 5 loads per day to feed 650 head Our Knight Reel Auggie mixes faster and unloads faster than the auger mixers that we previously owned Drive through feeding with our tow model has cut our feeding time by two thirds"

Weather's Effect On Ohio Agriculture A Mixed Bag

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Mother Nature played favorites when dishing out punishment to the agriculture of 24 Ohio counties in late June and early July.

In some counties where emergency status was declared following heavy rains, hail and flooding, agriculture should recover with few losses, while in others, damage was much more severe.

Corn fields along the creek bottoms of Washington County were totally wiped out and some were under 18 feet of water, said Jim Barrett, agriculture and natural resouces agent at the Washington County office of Ohio State University Extension. Of the 11,000 acres of corn in the county, 2,000 are estimated lost.

Many vegetable crop and soybean fields were covered with dirt and under water for more than two days, and round hay bales were washed down the river. Barrett said about 6,000 of the county's 22,000 hay acres were affected.

"It's the first time I've had to deal with devastation this bad," he said. "There's erosion and corn is knocked flat on the ground and covered with mud. At this point I don't know how much will recover or die. It's about the worst I've ever seen. Our estimate right now is at least $2 million in agricultural losses for the county."

In Athens County, agriculture and natural resources extension agent Chris Penrose said nearly 1,000 hay bales were destroyed, fences were knocked down, barns and equipment washed away, cattle trapped in barns and drowned, and houses damaged.

"It looks bad. It's worse than it's ever been. We'll probably see some farmers file for bankruptcy from this one," Penrose said. "Crops that were knee-high or better were just flattened and covered in silt and aren't going to recover. And, many trees are blown over in fields and need to be cut up and removed."

Getting to vegetable fields to spray for insects and fungus is the major concern in Meigs County, said Extension agriculture and natural resources agent Hal Kneen. Many roads and bridges were damaged or destroyed.

Entire fields were washed away and a lot of mud was left behind on corn, and wheat was knocked down, making harvest difficult, Kneen said. Vegetables also were completely wiped out on some farms.

"A lot of baled hay floated down the river and mud and debris left behind has made the next cutting not as usuable or storable. About one-third of the hay in the county was affected," he said. "The flooding started on Sunday, and three farmers I know of still hadn't found their tractors on Wednesday."

Things seem more optimistic in central and northern counties.

In Perry County, the most damage occurred near Corning, where there is not much agricultural production, said Jeff McCutcheon, agriculture and natural resources agent at the Perry County office of Ohio State University Extension. Mt. Perry and Glenford also were hit, but flood waters quickly receded and most crop fields were drained within a day.

"We were a lot more fortunate than other areas," McCutcheon said. "We had some corn knocked over and some round hay bales washed away, but nothing nearly as bad as some other counties."

The situation was similar in Licking Knox, Crawford, and Marion counties. Flooding in the eastern half of Martion County near the Olentangy River knocked down some wheat and will probably lower yield and quality, but most fields should be able to be harvested, said Barry Ward, agriculture and natural resources agent at the Marion County Extension office.

"In bigger fields close to river bottoms damage will show up, but in some areas, damage will be difficult to detect," Ward said.

In Sandusky County in northern Ohio, damage from heavy rains, localized flooding, high winds and hail caused sporadic damage throughout the county. The hail, which covered a path one mile wide and two to three miles long considerable damage to wheat, soybeans, corn, pickles and tomatoes, said Sandusky County Extension agriculture and natural resources agent Mark Koenig.

"We've had a little bit of everything, and I'm surprised the crops look as good as they do considering what they've been through," Koenig said. "In some areas crops look excellent, and then you move across the road and it looks like a war went on. Some of the crops look real ugly from what the hail did to them, buy maybe they'll come out of it."

While the severe weather was a big problem in local areas and a huge problem for individual farmers, it hasn't really affected the statewide crop market, said Carl Zulauf, Ohio State University extension agricultural economist.

"At the market level, it's hard to see this as a major event because the damage did not cover a wide enough area of prime agricultural land," he said.

Ag Field Days Scheduled Next Week

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Two University of Maryland Research and Education Centers (RECs) will showcase their work on behalf of farmers and farm families at separate locations on consecutive days next week, July 29 - 30.

Meanwhile, the Western Maryland REC welcomes Piedmont and mountain area dwellers to its annual field day on Thursday, July 30, near Keedysville in Washington County. This year's field day will mark the 21st anniversary of the center's founding.

Both field days will get under way at 8:30 a.m. with wagon tours of research plots. Early arrivals will be able to participate in as many as three different tours. Noon lunch will be available in shaded areas at moderate cost. Short programs after lunch will conclude planned activities at each location.

The Western Maryland field day will feature a hog roast lunch, with reservations requested by Monday, July 27. Call (301) 432-2767, extension 307.

Vermeer Goes 'Square' Baling

PELLA, Iowa — Vermeer has introduced its first entry into the "big square" bale market.

The new Vermeer CommandRAM harvests up to 45 tons of hay per hour. It creaates an ideal bale size, in dimension and weight, for economical handling and hauling. The solid 38-inch x 46-inch six-tie packages (which can weigh up to 1,600 pounds enable operators with standard flatbed trucks to transport 33 percent more "big squares" (versus the 4-foot x 4-foot packages). They also provide a more stable foundation for uniform stacking and storage.

CommandRAM features a unique, state-of-the-art hydraulic plunger drive system which compresses the hay in the chamber only "on command" — when the chamber is full. In addition to improving hay distribution during the plunging process and producing more uniform and consistent slices for feeding, the hydraulic drive system sharply reduces annual repair, maintenance and equipment replacement costs by using fewer moving parts, eliminating high-wear plunger chains, sprockets, gears and gearboxes.

The new Vermeer CommandRAM harvests up to 45 tons of hay per hour.

"The simpler, hydraulic drive is designed to decrease downtime when the hay's ready and increase production over an entire season," according to Al Van Dyke, sales manager of Vermeer's Ag Division. "The reversible hydraulic drive feed system, operated from the tractor seat, can save hours of hand work unplugging a baler. Hydraulic relief valves eliminate time spent replacing shear bolts. Basic maintenance and service requirements are significantly reduced.

"And, daily maintenance and service takes just minutes. A remote control system simplifies the service work by diagnosing necessary adjustments for knotters, feed forks and plunger. Side shields also swing out for easy access," Van Dyke said.

The hydraulic drive is gentler on hay than gear-driven units. Hay flows freely from the window through the feed chute directly into the bale chamber, without the use of a precompression chamber. The hydraulically-driven bale plunger operates only when the chamber is fully charged. As a result, producers experience predictable, uniform bale flakes — 17 to 22 per 8-foot bale; gentler handling of alfalfa and other fragile legume-type crops; and easier feeding (since the bales break apart more readily and controllably).

Uniform bale lengths and densities are simple to manage in varying crop conditions, from alfalfa to haylage. An easy-to-operate, spring-loaded adjuster allows the operator to match bale lengths to transport or storage requirements — up to nine feet long. Bale density and shape are automatically controlled by the baler's hydraulic tension control system. Four hydraulic cylinders squeeze both the top and sides.

Krause Introduces Landbuilder

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Krause's new 4880 Series Landbuilder deep tillage tool features a disc-shank-disc configuration. Performance is maximized by the Landbuilder's V-type shank layout and independently controlled, hydraulic depth adjustable disc gangs.

In addition, the Landbuilder's front and rear disc gange offer three cutting angle selections — 10, 15, or 20 degrees. The unique combination of gang-angle adjustability and independently controlled front and rear disc gang depth provides the operator more control over soil finish and residue levels than competitive deep tillage tools.

The Landbuilder is available in 5 shank (12-foot 6-inch working width) and 7 shank (17-foot 6-inch working width models). Shanks are spaced 30 inches apart. The massive Spring Reset Ripper Shanks feature a generous 40 inches of underframe clearance to aid smooth residue flow. Shank point load is 3,000 pounds with a 22-inch obstacle trip height.

Shank depth is conveniently controlled hydraulically by means of a single location remote depth stop. The ripper shanks penetrate up to 16 inches deep while shattering compacted soil layers.

Disc blades are 24 inches diameter and ¼-inch thick on 11-inch spacing for maximum residue cutting and penetration capability. Disc gangs are mounted on Krause's famous Rock-Flex bearing standards to cushion and protect the gangs from obstacles. Both the front and rear disc gangs offer a range of adjustment from 8 inches to 16 inches above the shank point.

Krause new 4880 Series Landbuilder deep tillage tool features a disc-shank-disc configuration.

The 5 and 7 shank Landbuilders feature walking beam tandem wheels witdh 31-inch x 13.5-inch high flotation tires as standard equipment.

Belt Conveyors For Up To 200 Feet

POUND, Wis. — The new Patz Model 1208 (12-inch belt) conveyor and Model 1608 (16-inch belt) conveyor offer lengths of 4 - 200 feet that fit many installations.

Deep-trough, open pan, galvanized-steel conveyor sections reduce belt drag while carrying high volumes of material — up to 95 cubic feet per minute on the Model 1608.

The Model 1208 and Model 1608 can convey up to 3,900 pounds per minute, depending on elevation and type of material.

Both conveyors use a direct-drive speed for high-hour operation. The 8-inch steel drive pulley is crowned and rubber lagged for positive traction. A choice of two belt speeds allows customizing.

Optional plowoffs drop material at points other than the end for added layout and flexibility. Options for further customizing include loading hopper, open-end hopper for loading anywhere, discharge spout, choice of belts, convey sides, magnet, and blade belt wiper or powered-brush belt wiper to clean the top surface of the belt.

The new Patz conveyors convey level or up elevations with a smooth or textured belt. For more versatility, optional adjustable concave elbows allows conveying up an incline and then conveying level.

Tractors Deliver Deere Quality, Reliability

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere's new Advantage Series Tractors are designed in response to value-minded farmers and ranchers who want the performance and productivity advantages of a John Deere tractor at a lower price.

Based on the very successful 6000 and 7000 TTEN Series tractors, the 85-hp 6405, 95-hp 6605, and 105-hp 7405 Advantage Tractors share many of the features found on the deluxe models.

The main differences are in the hydraulic and electrical systems, instrumentation, and attachments available from the factory. These differences enable John Deere to set list prices comparable to competitor's lower-featured tractors.

These are genuine John Deere tractors throughout. They feature the same John Deere Power Tech™ engines, PermaClutch 2™ wet clutch, full-frame chassis, flat operator platform, axles, and differentials found on the deluxe model 6000 and 7000 TEN Series Tractors. The 6405 and 6605 Advantage Tractors are equipped with the John Deere 12/4 Syncro Vantage™ transmission, which provides three synchronized forward speeds and one synchronized reverse speed, in each of four synchronized ranges. The 7405 Tractor has the 16/16 PowrQuad™ transmission that features four powershiftable speeds in both forward and reverse, in each of four synchronized ranges.

For added versatility in vegetables and other areas where ground clearance is important, the 6405 and 7405 tractors are available in a high-clearance configuration. The 6405 tractor provides 26.5 inches of clearance. The 7405 tractor provides 23 inches of clearance. Both tractors feature a standard creeper transmission that provides ground speeds as slow as 14 feet per minute on the 6405 and 8.2 feet per minute on the 7405.

The new John Deere-designed HydraVantage™ hydraulic system on these tractors features a constant-flow 17.5-gpm pump and load sensing. The efficient system provides plenty of power and flow for high loader and hitch lift capacities, and fast loader cycle times. The systems can also power multiple hydraulic functions simultaneously, while delivering priority flow for steering and brakes.

The John Deere Advantage Series tractors include the 105-HP 7405, 95-HP 6605, and 85-HP 6405 tractors. These three models share many of the components and features of the deluxe-model 6000 and 7000 Ten Series tractors.

A singel selective control valve (SCV) is standard on the 6405 and 6605 tractors. The 7405 tractor features two SCV's as standard equipment. All three tractors can be equipped with up to four SCV's. (Additional SCV's are field-installed attachments.)

The 6405, 6605, and 7405 tractors feature a Category 2 hitch with lift capacities of 5,028 lb., 5,915 lb., and 8,200 lb., respectively.

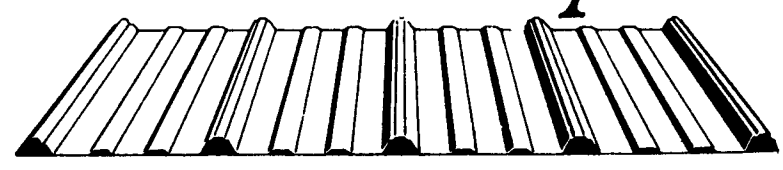
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Summary of Proposed Long Term Permit Strategy
Complied by: Ken Kephart, Associate Professor of Animal Science at Penn State and
The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council

The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) has released a "Proposed Strategy for Meeting Federal Requirements for Controlling the Water Quality Impacts of Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations."

The proposed regulations are intended to address the federal Clean Water Act and the federal National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES). The regulations establish three categories of operations.

- operations with more than 1,000 animal units (CAFO's)
- operations with 301 to 1,000 animal units which have the potential to discharge to surface waters*.
- any operation with a discharge to surface water.

* Any operation that must comply with the Nutrient Management Act is considered to have the potential to discharge. For most producers, this means having more than 2 animal units per acre. But there are other criteria that may require Nutrient Management Act compliance.

DEP recognizes that animal operations have become larger in response to economic pressures. DEP also acknowledges that the proper application of manure is agronomically important and can provide an environmentally safe source of nutrients for soil. The purpose of the strategy is to ensure that large animal operations are constructed and managed in an environmentally sound manner.

The strategy is in addition to the regulations included in Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Act which became effective October 1, 1997. Briefly, the proposed regulations would include the following:

New operations with 301-1,000 animal units must do the following:

1. Nutrient Management Plan and an emergency response plan.
2. Chapter 102 Erosion and Sediment Control plan related to earth moving during construction.
3. An Erosion and Sediment Control plan for the acreage where manure will be injected or incorporated. Note that all farmers plowing or tilling are already required to have such a plan under current regulations in Chapter 102. An approved farm conservation plan can generally serve as an Erosion and Sediment Control plan.
4. For earth disturbances exceeding 5-acres during construction, an NPDES Permit. This will be a general permit issued by either the Conservation District, unless the site is in a special protection watershed, in which case DEP will issue an individual permit.
5. Certification of the manure storage design by a registered professional engineer.
6. Public hearings may occur, but will be required if the operation is in an Exceptional Value Watershed, or if there is significant public interest.

New operations with more than 1,000 animal units.

These producers must comply with all the items listed for the 301-1,000 animal unit category, plus the following:

1. An individual NPDES permit issued by DEP.
2. Opportunity for public comment in all cases.
3. A Water Quality Management Type II Permit. This provides DEP the approval of the design, construction and operation of the manure storage facility.

Existing Operations with more than 1,000 animal units:

1. The manure storage facilities will be assessed by DEP in the next three years.
2. Operations will have to obtain an NPDES permit.

Existing Operations with 301-1,000 animal units:

1. If the operation must comply with the Nutrient Management Act (for example, more than 2 animal units per acre), no permits or additional regulatory compliance is required for now. However, these operations are considered to have the potential to discharge, so some additional permits may be required within the next few years.
2. If the operation is not required to comply with the Nutrient Management Act, no additional permits or regulations are anticipated.

Existing operations that expand or replace the manure facility:

1. If greater than 1,000 animal units, these operations would have to comply with the same criteria as described for new operations greater than 1,000 animal units.
2. If 301-1,000 animal units, and required to comply with the Nutrient Management Act, these operations would have to abide by the same criteria as described for new operations having 301-1,000 animal units.
3. If the operation is not required to comply with the Nutrient Management Act, no additional permits or regulations are anticipated.

All operations with discharges to surface water:

This category includes operations that are treating waste and discharging treated water into the waters of the Commonwealth. Although this practice is legal, and requires NPDES and other permits, it is not an economical alternative.

Permit applications now in progress:

These are covered under an Interim Permit Policy published January 16, 1998. According to DEP this allows the permit perocess to move forward, but no permits will be issued until all comments on the proposed strategy are considered.

Comments on the proposed strategy:

Individuals are encouraged to read the Proposed Strategy and submit comments on the strategy by August 13, 1998 to:

ANDY-BAR FARM

Anthony and Barbara Wertz and their son Adam farm 400 near Manns Choice in Bedford County. They milk 65 Holsteins under the Andy-Bar prefix and have a herd average of 19,000 pounds of milk. The milk in a tiestall barn with pipeline. Forage is mostly stored in round bales and rapped. A few square bales are made but they like the less labor with the big bales.

Anthony likes to farm. He has worked at other things but comes back to the farm because it's what he enjoys most in life. They had most of the second cutting hay in by July 15 this year.

GAR-MAR ACRES

At Gar-Mar Acres, the LeRoy and Janet Garman family that includes their three sons Nathan Ray, 14; Joshua Ryan, 11; and Barry Lea, 9; farm 150 acres near the town of Woodbury in Bedford County. They milk 60 Holsteins in a tiestall barn with a pipeline milker. The cows are fed TMR with corn and alfalfa as the roughage grown on the farm. LeRoy commented that the butter price was very low not that long ago and now is high. It all depends what people are hearing in the news about the food they eat. The Garmans move here from Lancaster County 11 years ago.

DAVID MOYER

David and Jeanne Moyer and two of their six children, Jerry and Steven farm 360 acres on this new Dairy of Distinction farm in Bedford County. The home place of 137 acres is located three miles south of Woodburry. They milk 90 Holstein cows that average 19,000 pounds of milk and have about that many young stock for replacements. They feed TMR and house the cows in freestalls and milk in a parlor.

The Moyers transplanted from Bucks County in 1972 and found the pressures on farming a little less in the Bedford area back in those days. But today David said the pace has picked up and you need more cows to produce more pounds of milk per man to keep the operation going.

E&N SHAYNAH KEE FARM

The E&N Shaynah Kee Farm near Topton may sound a bit strange to those unfamiliar with Pennsylvania Dutch. According to Noel Schlegel, he and wife Elizabeth decided to incorporate the language into the farm name, reflecting their heritage. "Shaynah Kee" means "nice cow," Noel explained. The "E&N" part refer to the first letters of their names, though Noel said he could have made it "No-El," though that hadn't struck him at the time. The Schlegel family owns about 188 acres of tillable ground and rent about 40 more. Noel and Elizabeth Schlegel farm with daughter Shelia, 18. They have two others, the oldest is married and the second oldes recently graduated from college and works off the farm. The farm has been in the family since 1954, when Elizabeth's parents farmed it, they rented it and then bought it 1976. The Schlegels bought it from them in 1986. They had 26 stalls and one silo when they moved in. Noel said it took a lot of work to modernize and upgrade the farm and landscape. At the barn is some stone landscaping and a flower bed that frequently draws favorable comments from visitors and guests. "The wife and I like to work in when it's too wet to work the fields," Noel said. They keep a vegetable garden also. The farm lane comes out onto Main Street in Topton, but the farm is visible from the road, where the white farm house and silos can be seen in the background. The lane has a couple of trees and farm sign at its end. They milk about 60 Holsteins, with about 75 percent of the herd registered with about a 25,500 pound-milk rolling herd average.

KIEFFER FARMS INC.

Kieffer Farms Inc. is a partnership between a father and two sons. The operation has two farmhouses, and 200 owned acres, and another 100 rented acres. The operation is located along Stauser Road, south of Lenhartsville. The father is Robert Kieffer, and he and wife Gladys live in the seven-bedroom 1883 farmhouse that serves as partnership headquarters. Son Ken, 44, and his wife Rosemary live off the farm, and son Richard, 45, lives in another farmhouse. A couple hundred yard macadamed farm lane is edged with white vinyl fencing. A farm sign is at the mouth. Pasture stretches from the road front back to the farm buildings, and a stone wall with flowers is at the main farmhouse. Robert does a lot of landscaping and maintenance. They have a large yard. The 65-head, mostly grade Holstein herd averages more than 20,000 pounds milk, and are kept in an older bank barn with 62 tie-stalls. There is an attatched pole building with bunk feeder on one side and loose housing on the other. The dry cows use the loose housing during the winter and spend the summer on pasture. On the farm where Richard lives, there is a pole barn with side vents like a tobacco barn that is used for heifers. As many do, they keep about the same number of replacement animals as milking. All the buildings are painted white. There are two stave silos — an 18-by-60 silo for haylage, and a 20-by-60 for corn silage. They feed the cows a mixture of corn silage and haylage, and feed grain in the barn. They depend on some grazing for the cows, but don't use intensive grazing per se, instead treating the fresh forage as a supplement. A stream courses through the pasture. "To be a good farmer means dedication, a lot of hard work and time," Robert said. Being accepted into the Dairy of Distinction program means "... pride in having a nice-looking place." While they're yet to feel the pressure, there's residential development about a mile away.

Dairy of Distinction

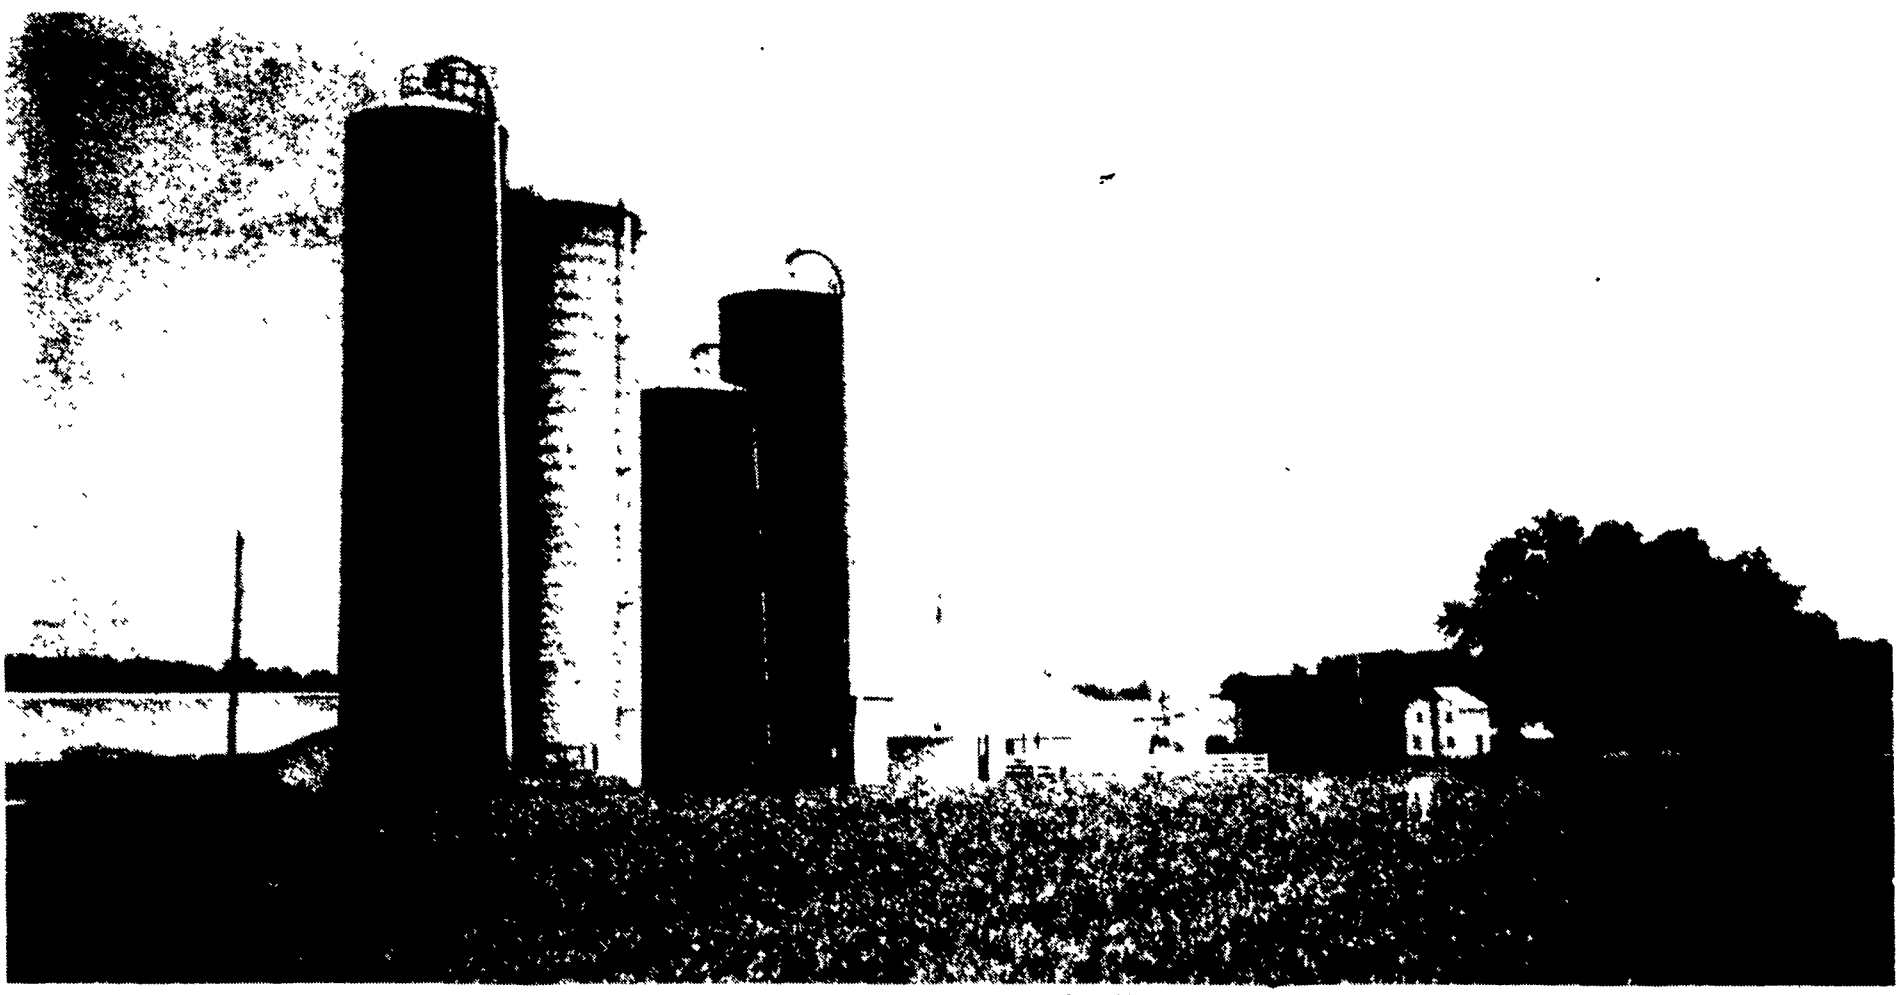
COVE-ACRES FARM



Ellis and Ellie Sollenberger and their sons Eric, 20 and Chris, 18, farm this new Dairy of Distinction in Blair County. Under the farm name of Cove-Acres, they farm more than 300 acres and milk registered Holsteins that average 19,000 pounds of milk. The cows are milked in a double eight milking parlor that has been upgraded over the years to its present capacity. The feeding program involves TMR and uses home-grown corn and alfalfa in the rations.

The Sollenbergers believe it very necessary to keep the cows clean and comfortable. The family likes to work together. They like to make good quality forages and would like to see the price of milk and cull cows go higher. They are pleased the boys take an interest in the farm.

CENTRE Dairy of Distinction

PENN STATE DAIRY

The Penn State Dairy Cattle Research and Education Center is one of the new Dairy of Distinction farms. Located at University Park, the facility has primary functions of research and education. Because of their size and public use, the buildings were constructed without the use of wood. Strict building codes required a sizeable sprinkler system for fire control. The Penn State dairy herd numbers 360 head with about 180 milking cows.

The feed center and horizontal silos provide facilities for storage and mixing feeds for all animals at the dairy operation. A 60-cow tiestall barn has the capability of individual feeding for research studies. The facility was designed with wide feed alleys to accommodate modern feeding equipment. The milking parlor consists of a double-10 herringbone stall arrangement with rapid-exit gates.

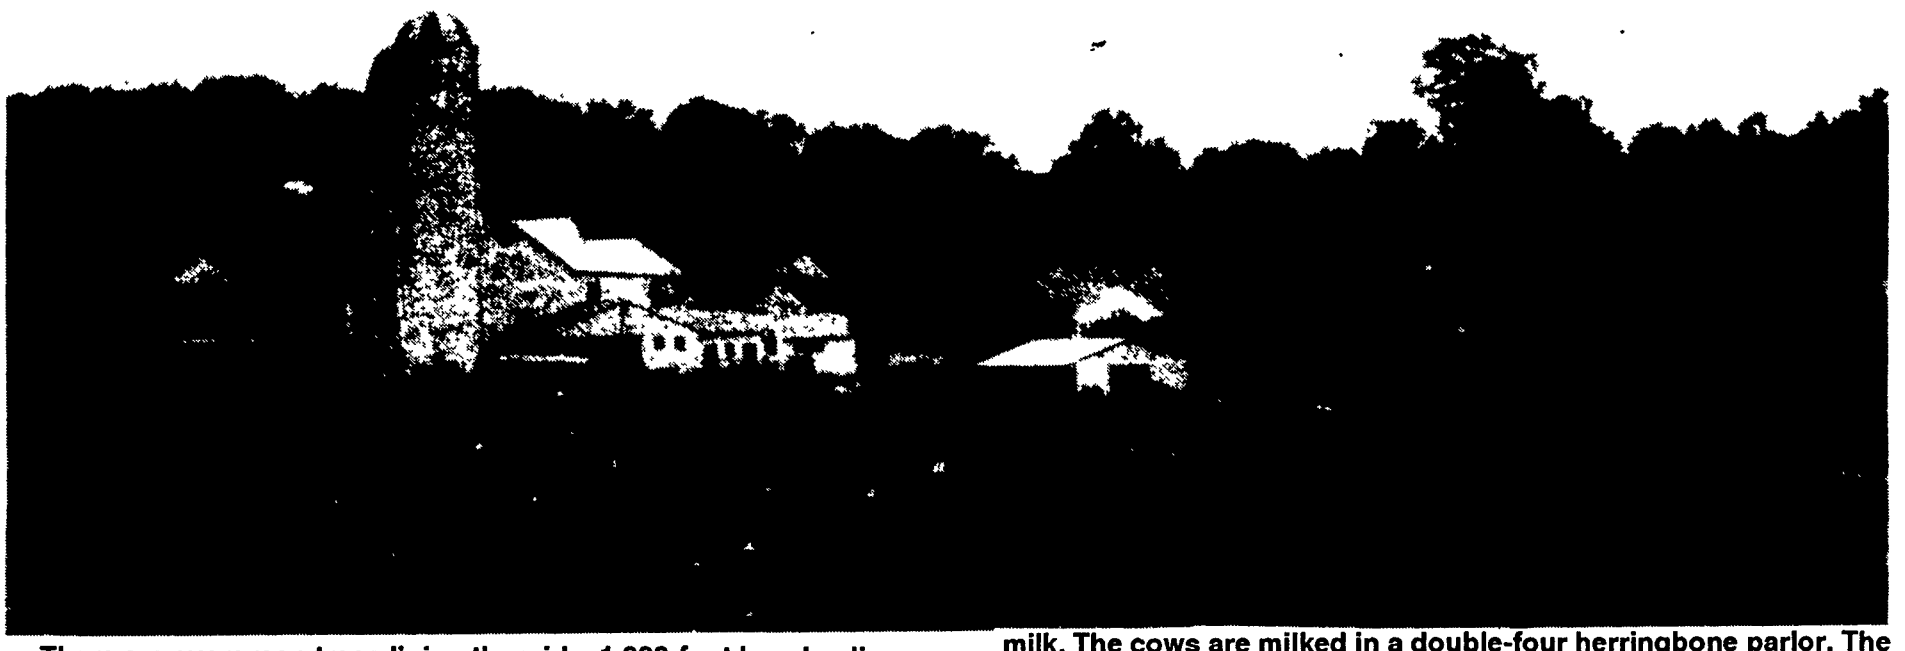
EVERGREEN FARM



There are evergreen trees lining the wide, 1,000-foot lane leading to Evergreen Farm, owned by Richard and Patsy Lloyd, of Chatham. The evergreens are uneven these days, as younger replacements have been planted after some of the older ones died or were destroyed, but evergreens have been adorning the farm lane for a long time, and they inspired the farm name. Richard, 71, and Patsy have seven children. They currently farm in partnership with son-in-law Larry, and daughter Kathy Maule. "They're in halves with me," he said. "They live in the farmhouse, we live in the 'new' house, though it's 50 years old." The farming operation owns 126 acres and rents almost 300 more. The milking herd is about 100 head of grade Holsteins kept in a freestall barn. The rolling herd average is about 20,000 pounds milk, The cows are milked in a double-four herringbone parlor. The farm sells its milk to High Point Dairies in Delaware. The farm has been in the Lloyd family for more than 100 years. "My grandfather, he farmed it for somebody, and then he bought the farm," Richard said. The buildings are located about center on the property. The lane is blacktoped. He said he uses the pasture, mostly for exercise and turns the cows out during the day. There are two small silos on the farm that are not used for anything, but there are three large silos — a 16-by-80 for high moisture corn; a 20-by-72 for corn silage, and a 20-by-60 for haylage. Also on the farm, there's a four-year-old Virginia-style heifer barn with room for 48, and this past December a calf barn was erected. A large machine building was constructed about 10 years ago.

CONGRATULATIONS DAIRY OF DISTINCTION 1998 AWARD WINNERS

Dairy of Distinction

President Rooks' Message

Since the Dairy of Distinction program began in Pennsylvania in 1987, hundreds of dairy farmers have applied to have their farms recognized as a "Dairy of Distinction." We have had another good for the program. Those attractive farms that are honored will receive a colorful farm sign that is truly an advertisement for the dairy industry, not only to neighbors, but to those who pass their farms. This is the purpose of the program: to be a point of pride in promoting the source of the state beverage——milk.

We want to express our thanks to all that applied for their award this year. And we want to express our thanks to all who supported the program especially those who supported the program financially.

If you applied and did not receive the award, then apply again next year, correcting items needed to be corrected. One dairyman applied this year mainly to have the sign up for advertising milk on the highway. He feels the more who participate in the program will help improve milk sales. That is the bottom line.

The winners in 1998 will be recognized on Tuesday, August 18 at Ag Progress Days at 2:15 p.m. in the special events building. We hope you are able to attend. The photographs taken by your local district and enlargments provided by Lancaster Farming will be displayed.

Thanks again to all our hard-working volunteers on the committees for making the program successful.

MAKE THE R/W CONNECTION

936 Links Ave., Landisville Pa 717-898-5257

I went to R/W today and picked up milk loading hose. At R/W they had more tubing and hose than you can shake a stick at. They even had the sanitary fittings I needed to move my milk lines.

I've been milking for 25 years and when I called R/W with the size of my braided milk tubing, they identified it over the phone.

When I moved the feed bin I needed metal hose. R/W had it in stock. Now the feed truck unloads faster and easier.

Finally changed our chicken water tubing. R/W gave me a great price on all my tubing and fitting needs.

R/W Connection is the source for tubing and fittings. Our knowledgeable staff backed by the leading manufacturer of domestic tubing will get what you need. Call us and to make the R/W Connection.

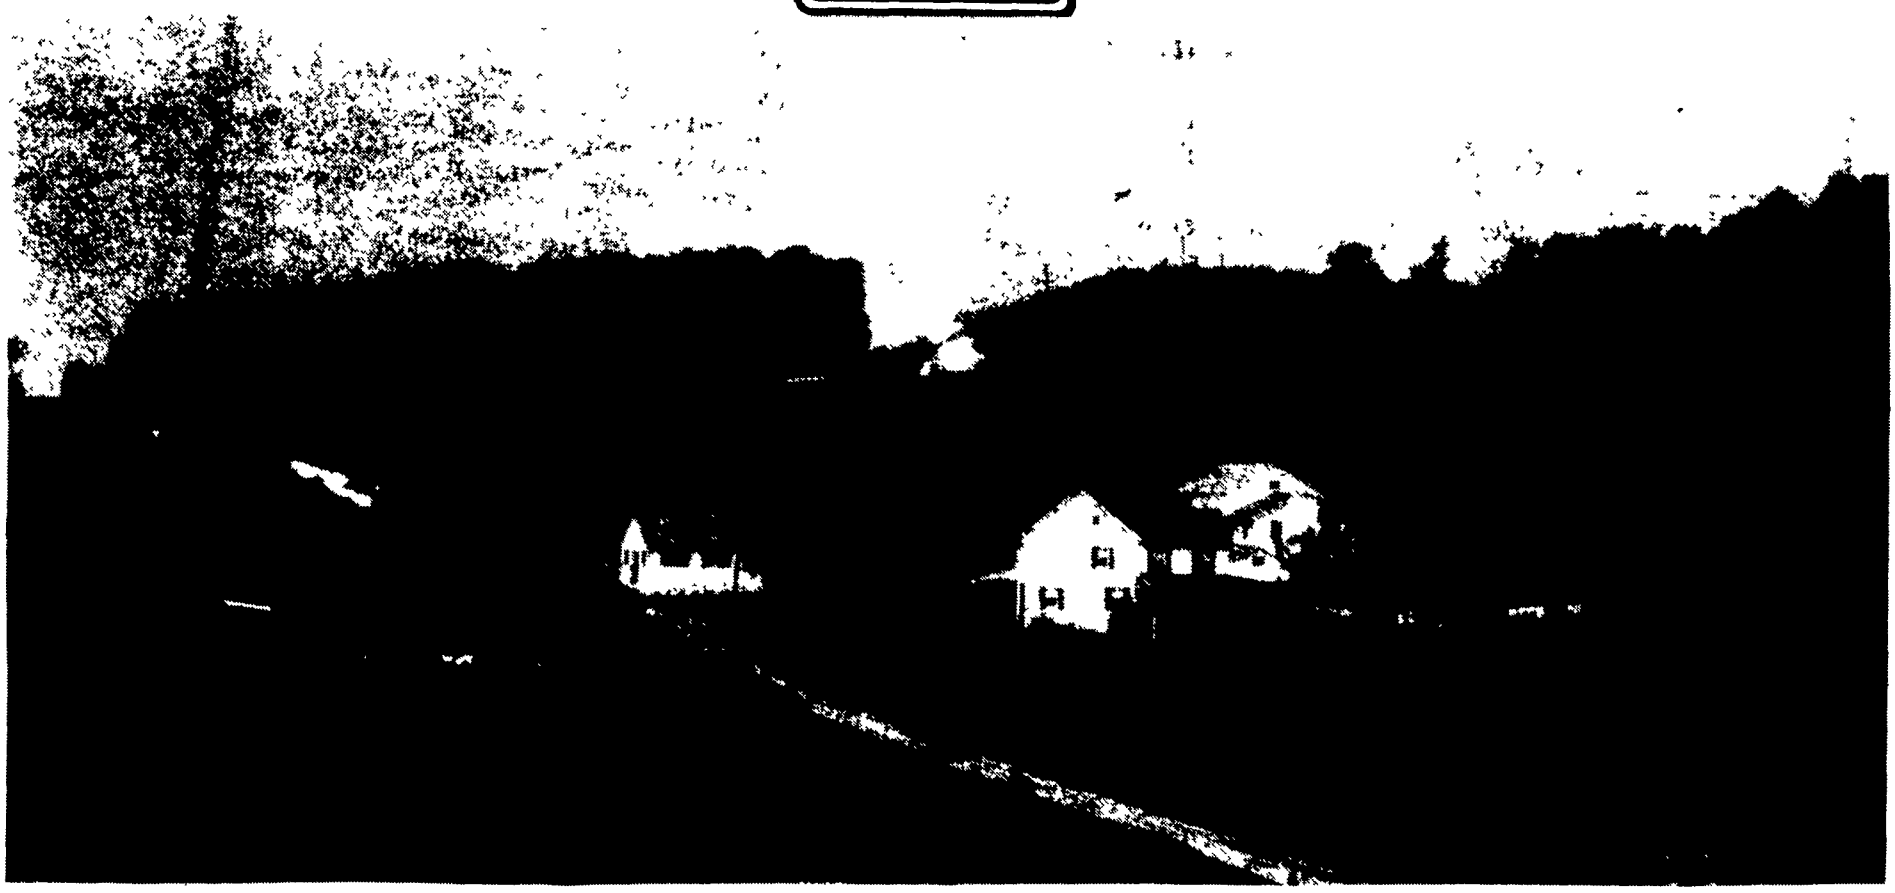
GLEN RUN WAY



Located south of Atglen, off of Glen Run Road, the John and Elsie Smoker family operate the 76-acre Glen Run Way Farm, named for Glen Run, a stream that runs through the farm's road-edging pasture. The farmstead itself sits back off the road, and the 200-yard lane is a older municipal roadway that used to cut through the farm, but eventually was closed and reverted to farm ownership. John said he has about 60 acres tillable and milks about 40 grade Holsteins out of a 32-stall bank barn. Other buildings on the farm include an implement shed, and shed for pet goats. One 18-by-55 silo used for corn silage juts up from next to the barn. He and Elsie have seven sons ages ranging from 15 to 30. Four are married and the Smokers have eight grandchildren, who love to come to visit. The Smokers' young son, Justin, 15, in high school, helps with field work and milking. John said he dairy farms pretty much the way he did, feeding hay bales and corn silage by hand, and top dressing with minerals and a supplement formulated by a mill. He has 15 acres of pasture and couple of acres of woodland as well. "We live in a valley," he said. "It's pretty and rolling with some hills," he said. Care of the landscaping and shrubbery around the house is done mostly by Elsie.

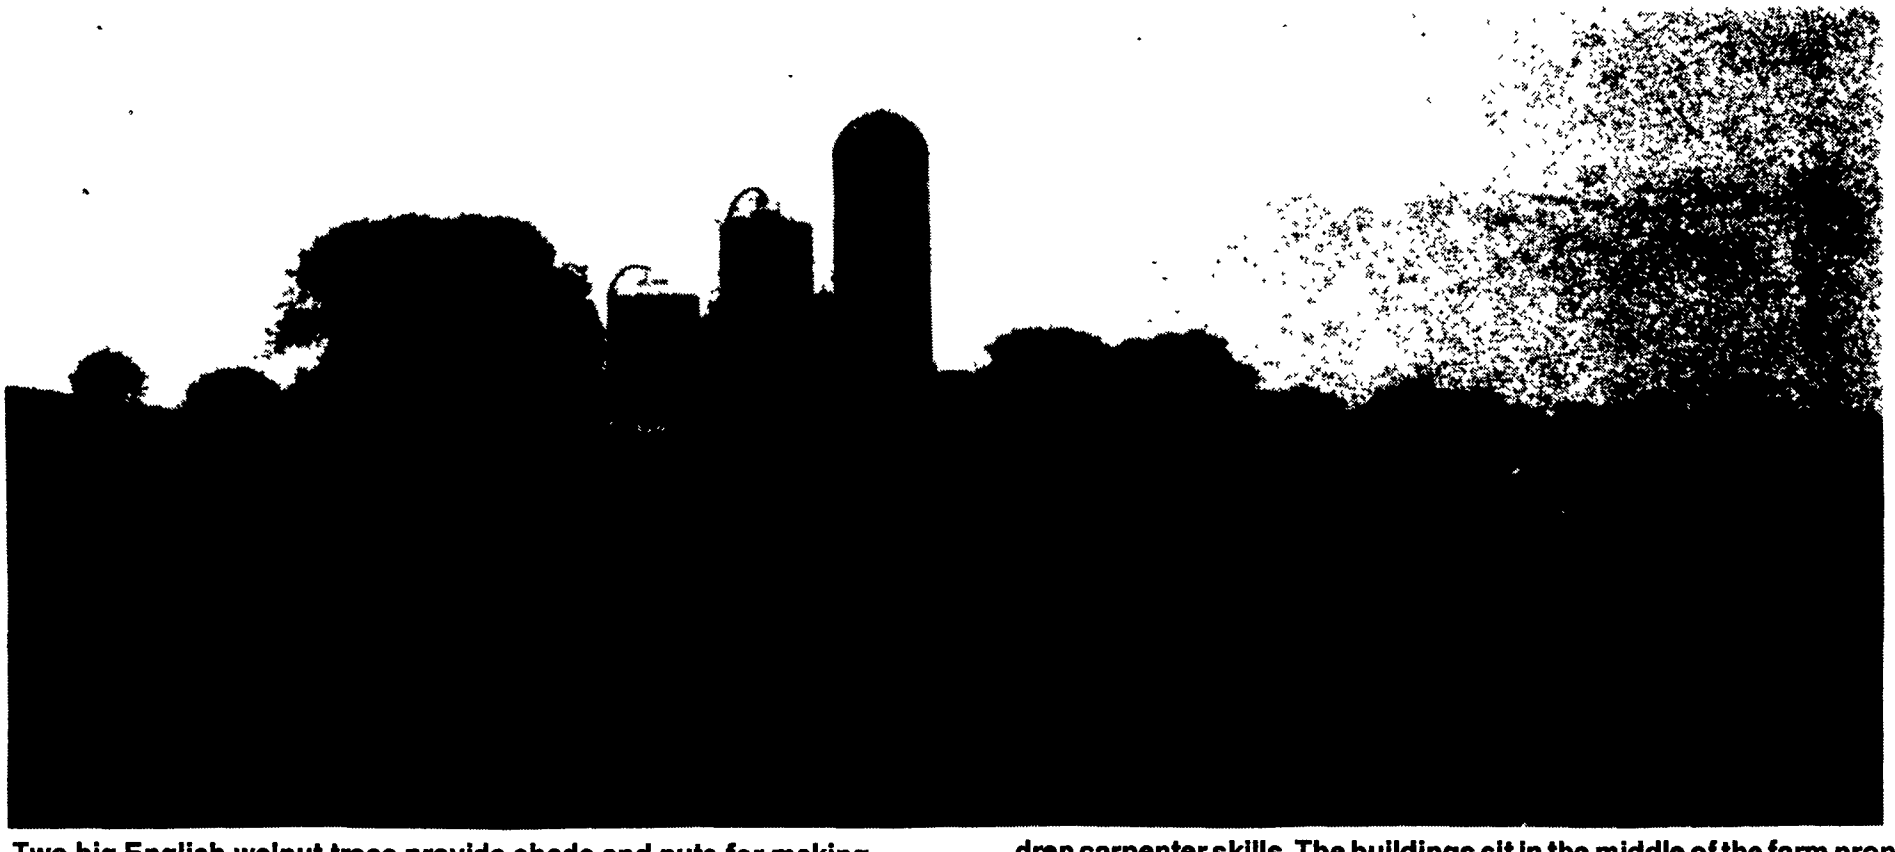
MARK AND MELODY STOLTZFUS



Two big English walnut trees provide shade and nuts for making cookies and pies on the 135-acre dairy farm owned by Mark and Melody Stoltzfus, located along September Road, a deadend township road south of Honeybrook. The herd is comprised of about 65 mostly registered Holsteins that have a rolling herd average of 25,399 pounds milk. They keep about the same number of young stock. Mark's grandfather, also a dairy farmer, purchased the farm in 1948. Mark and Melody have six children, and two of their boys, aged 12 and 9, milk cows, while Mark's father Gideon frequently helps out with maintenance and field work, as well as teaching his grandchildren carpenter skills. The buildings sit in the middle of the farm property, and is back off the road somewhat. Cornfields reach out to the main road (Route 10), and looking back to the farm, the passerby can see the silos and the back of the 54-tie stall, white-painted bank barn. The house is a large 1872 Victorian house with an older section that is being restored. There's also a tobacco shed, a machine shop, a heifer barn, and a one-story 1970s-era turkey house with curtains that is currently being used for machine and hay storage. They make their own TMR and use a nutritionist. The meadow has some wetlands in it, and Melody said it provides aesthetic pleasure.

MARSHAK DAIRY FACILITY

In 1996, the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine opened this greenhouse-style dairy barn and milking parlor to the public and announced that it was constructed in order to do research on leading edge, but real-life, production techniques and the effects on cattle health and production. The dairy facility was designed with modifications to avoid heat build up, but aesthetically it is designed and laid out to be efficient and operational. The entrance and milking parlor and located in the traditional-materials building in the front and center and the paved lane is tree-lined on the outside edge away from the buildings. The freestall barn for the milking herd is behind the parlor and a separate heifer and dry cow facility is located on the right. The Marshak Dairy Facility at University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center is serving as a living laboratory for the School of Veterinary Medicine. This way, researchers and up and coming veterinarians can experience first hand some of the potential health problems associated with dairy buildings and production techniques. Some of the research facilities used at universities in the past have not kept up with, or have not reflected concurrent farming methods.

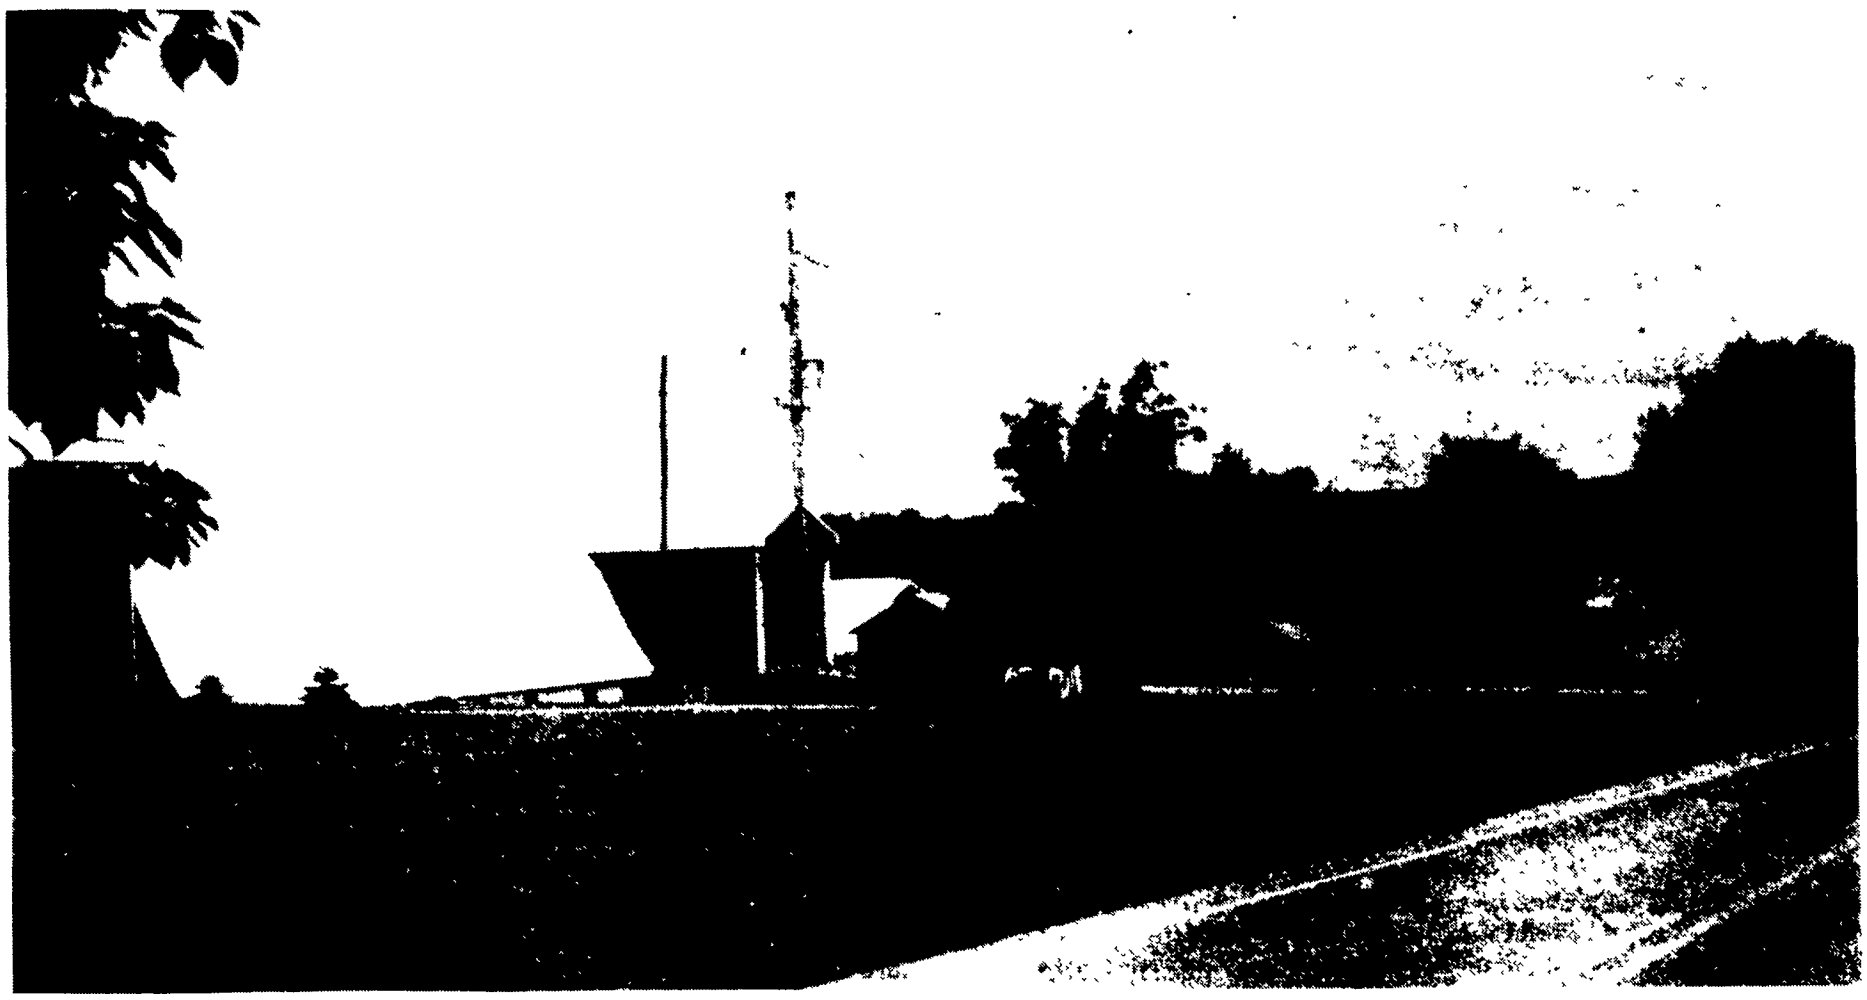
Dairy of Distinction

MELVIN ROGERS, JR.



At Rogers Dairy Farm near Spartansburg in Crawford County, Melvin Rogers Jr. farms 375 acres and milks 85 to 86 Holsteins in a conventional barn. His herd average is more than 20,000 pounds of milk with a feeding program of haylage, corn silage, and baleage grown on the farm. The cows are left out for two hours each day but kept indoors as a matter of efficiency. The heifers are pasture but they are also fed in the barn to maintain body weight.

The farm has been in the family for 65 years and Melvin has been farming here all his life. Over the years Melvin says major changes include going from horses to tractors and increasing the number of cows you must milk to make a living. Back in the early days the family could live off of 25 cows. Now you have 85 cows and still feel like you are working to make ends meet. To be a farmer, Melvin says you must be dedicated to hard work and like what you are doing.

SUGAR HILL DAIRY

This new Dairy of Distinction in Elk County is owned by John and Margaret Ann Engel, their son Jonathan, and cousin Cathy Palamtic. They farm 105 acres located on the main drag near St. Marys and raise corn, hay, and grain to feed the cows. They milk 70 Holsteins, mostly registered, in a tiestall barn and have a corresponding number of replacement heifers. A century farm of 108 years, Sugar Hill Dairy was the first herd on DHIA in the county. John said you need to stay on top of things, all the little things around the dairy, if you are going to make it. He isn't sure what they will do with the federal orders or with the milk price, but said the price paid to farmers should be higher than it is.

JOHN HILDRETH

This new Dairy of Distinction in Greene County is owned by John and Louise Hildreth and children Jeannette, Jerry, and Stacy. They farm 250 acres north of Sycamore and milk 56 Holsteins that average 18,000 pounds of milk. They milk in a conventional stall barn with pipeline milkers. The farm came into the family in 1965 and John bought the place from his father in 1976.

John believes you need to be intelligent to be a farmer. Along with hard work you need common sense. One of the special management events for this herd is an intensive vacination program twice a year for both cowes and calves. They keep the cows and homestead neat and clean as a matter of good management. They believe they can reach their goal of increased production with their breeding program.

ORCHARD DEW FARM

Ray and Linda Geissinger, along with their children Dan, 21 and Judy, 18, farm 100 acres at Centre in Mifflin County. Judy was a finalist in the state dairy princess pageant last year, and Dan was the state FFA chaplain. Dan also runs a corn drying/trucking business from the farm.

Under the banner of Orchard Dew Farm, the Geissingers moved here from Lancaster County just over four years ago. They farm 100 acres and milk registered Holsteins with a few Jerseys mixed in that the children show. The herd average is 19,000 pounds of milk and they house the cows in comfort stalls in a conventional barn with pipeline milkers.

Ray is a delegate for Land 'O Lakes and has a positive outlook for the future of the dairy industry. He thinks there is a lot of room for young people in the industry and also beleives the large herds will not take over all the production of milk.

BODENDALE FARM

Robert and Brenda Book farm 100 acres along Strasburg Road in Lancaster County. Under the Bondendale prefix they milk 36 cows in a conventional barn and have a corresponding number of calves and heifers. For Robert, a good feeding program is most important and they use a TMR mix of haylage, high moisture corn, and silage. The herd average is 20,000 pounds of milk.

Robert sees the future of dairy farming in "bigness." Small operations continue to have a hard time. But he said the milk prices have been better this year. And the new jump in price for June and July is a welcome relief after last year. Brenda gets the credit for keeping this new Dairy of Distinction looking nice.

Conebella Farm Is Constructive Dairy Of Distinction

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MORGANTOWN (Chester Co.) — Among members of the National Ayrshire Association, the Ayrshire herd of 70 or more cows with the top average production per cow is at Conebella Farm, owned and operated by the Don Gable family, south of Morgantown, in Chester County.

In fact, out of 229 cows recognized by the national breed organization, 35 were bred and owned by Conebella. One other was bred by Conebella, but is owned by someone else.

That means that, out of all the Ayrshires owned by association members across the United States, almost 11 percent of those recognized by the association were bred and owned by the Gables.

Based on energy corrected milk (ECM) calculations, the Conebella herd is the top herd with greater than 70 cows for production. The Gable family also earned an Ayrshire Association's French Trophy, which is presented to the top herds, according to number of animals and herd average production.

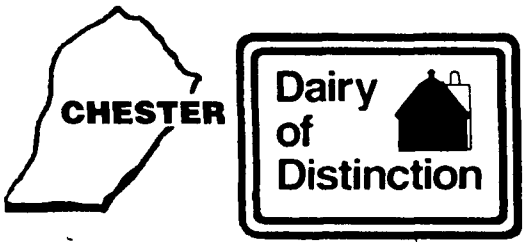
The announcement of the achievements was made recently during the National Ayrshire Association's annual convention, held in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The actual average production on 73 milking cows was 21,671 pounds of milk and 803 pounds of fat, with 95 percent of the herd owner bred. The ECM production was 22,687 pounds milk.

Second place was the Delaware Valley College herd with 10 cows and actual production of 20,506 pounds of milk, with 80 percent owner bred.

(Third place was James and Joan Mueller of Cuba City, Wisconsin.)

The farm was also recognized for 40 consecutive years winning the association's "constructive breeder award," analagous to the Holstein Association's progressive breeder award.



The farm is also a 1998 Dairy of Distinction. That means something to the Gables.

"A well kept, well maintained farm makes a nice impression and a nice place to work," Don said. "That's the hope."

The farm is run by Don Gable and wife Pam, who have three boys — Joshua, 7, Tyler, 5, and Kevin, 10 months. While the farm is in transition to Don and Pam, Don's parents Charles and Josie are integral to the operation, and live in a house close to, but out of earshot of, the main farmhouse, where Don, Pam and the boys reside.

Don is the fourth generation Gable to live on the farm. He took over the business in 1996.

The farm probably could have been accepted into the Dairy of Distinction program for years, though fresh paint and some other fixing up to prepare for a national Ayrshire tour last year provided the impetus to add finishing touches, such as a new full color farm sign, at the end of their lane.

The family also prepared a brief history of the farm for the tour, which saw about 250 people in two groups visit.

Located in Chester County's West Nantmeal Township ("nantmeal" is the Welsh word for "sweet water") with the Welsh Mountain ridge as the backdrop to the farm, the slightly rolling area is fairly rich in history.

The farm is southeast of the town of Morgantown, actually closer to Elverson, and the area is where three counties meet — Chester, Berks and Lancaster.

It has been a long time dairying area, though just last year a farm adjacent to the Conebella Farm was developed and 36 new homes now loom over the corn fields on part of the horizon view from the farm house.

It's easy to see why residential demand is there. The pastoral scenery, a couple of area gentleman horse farms, and renovated old stone homes exude a sense of well-off families and a quieter pace.

Brownstone fence walls and older trees are common in the area, and, according to Charles, when he was young there were many stone fence lines dividing the farm into smaller pastures. Many of the stone fences were removed or buried, but there is a remaining one along West Chestnut Road that fronts the farm.

The farm name was derived from the names of two railroads that crossed on opposite side of the farm — the Conestoga and the Isabella. Hence, the condensed name reflects the railroads.

During the late 1930s, Charles' father C. Harold Gable purchased some Ayrshire heifers from Dunwoody Home Farms. Those heifers had Penshurst breeding. At that time, Dunwoody Farms was managed by Charle's late brother John. The present herd is descended from those heifers.

There are 198 acres that are planted in corn and alfalfa, and everything goes to feed the cows.

The bank barn is tie-stalls and that's where the milking is done. Every day or two the cows are let out on fresh pasture, a practice that has made a resurgence in recent years with United State university research into New Zealand dairying practices, and with high technology production techniques requiring equally high costs of production.

Don uses a totally mixed ration, and injectable bovine somatotropin to stimulate milk production in some of the cows, but they really don't push hard.

Charles said that grazing has been practiced on the farm for as long as he can remember, though now it is considered a supplement to the ensiled forages and mixed ration.

A semi-Virginia-style heifer barn was built in the 1970s by Charles. It sits behind the bank barn and Charles said that when he finished building it, an uncle of his who was the dairy expert in the family at the time came to see it and told him the heifers would all die from exposure.

His uncle died a couple years later and when his aunt came to the farm she asked if he didn't get the money yet to finish the heifer barn.

Now, Charles said, experts come to the farm and say he needs to removed more of the walls, to open it up even more.

The old railroad bed is buried, but raised and can be seen among the trees at the far end of the front pastures. In the front pasture is a two-acre pond.

Charles explained that the low lying area had at one time been wetland and, though it probably wouldn't be allowed now, it was converted into two additional acres of dry pasture and the two-acre pond.

He said, "Isn't it funny how today we have to save wetlands, but farmland is being destroyed (at a rapid pace)?"

The Conebella farmhouse is stone covered with stucco and the yard has several large nut/shade trees, and a shade maple.

Charles has a picture of himself as a young boy standing next the recently planted English walnut in the front yard. The tree trunk is at least a yard in girth.

Chestnut Tree Road is tree-line and the farm lane divides the road frontage property between pasture and cornfield.

A couple of large trees at the lane end and a flower bed in front of the sign create a balanced scene and help frame the view.

An older spring house is located away from the main farm and barns and silos and machine and storage sheds, and all the buildings are painted primarly white.

The farm has some woodland strips and a semi-concealed pasture in the back acres. Dry cows and heifers use the pasture.

Charles helps with milking and field work and Josie is the landscape maintenance person. She cuts the lawns, the edging of the lane, and trims weeds along the roadfront stone wall, as well as tending to flower beds.

While the farm depends on the sale of milk, it also seeks to market breeding stock, and it has been recommended that a well maintained operation not only helps convey the perception of quality milk production and safety to the general public, but can help with marketing stock.

If nothing else, after the last milking of the day is done, relaxing on a freshly painted farm porch in the shade of large trees planted by an older generation of family members, with a herd of brown and white Ayrshires in a lush-colored pasture, and reflections of the horizon dancing on the surface of a pond, and gentle summer breezes tinged with the musk of cattle and sweetness of flowers, being a Dairy of Distinction can just mean living better.

HOOVER FARMS

Located along Route 241, southwest of the city of Lebanon, the 120-acre Hoover Farms is owned by Reid and Diane Hoover. With white-painted buildings and regularly maintained lawn care, the farm presents an image of attractive functionality. The couple has four children, three boys and a girl, who help with their 140-head registered Holstein milking string, and about the same number of young stock. The two oldest boys — Bradley, 14, and Aaron, 12 — help more around the farm, while Brenden, 10, and Audrey, 7, also pitch in where and when needed. Two years ago, Bradley won a 4-H club chain heifer calf at the Lebanon Area Fair, a donation by Nelson Ebersole, a local auctioneer and real estate agent supportive of the county 4-H dairy program. At the recent Southeast District Youth Show in Lebanon, Bradley took first place in his class with the now milking 2-year-old. The dairy operation uses a tie-stall barn and loose housing for its a herd, and splits the milking group into two groups, both milked in the tie-stalls. The rolling herd average is about 24,000 pounds milk and the Hoovers use modern mainstream technologies, such as totally mixed rations. Reid and his brother Dale, who also dairy farms, work in partnership to plant and harvest their respective crops. Including rented land, together the Hoovers crop about 500 acres, with everything raised going to feed dairy cattle. Working in cooperation, the brothers have been able to purchase their own equipment and machinery, as well as obtain bulk purchase discounts on inputs. Reid said that while he doesn't consider his farm or operation fancy, that he does concern himself with details. He said that, to him, a successful dairy farmer keeps up with the day-to-day activities, the small details, whether it's paying close attention to cattle during calving or staying on top of the condition of the crops in order to harvest for maximum feed value. "It all adds up to help do a better job to make the operation successful," Reid said.

MAULFAIR ACRES

As a representative of the day-to-day dairy industry, the 250-acre Maulfair Acres dairy farm near Jonestown has perhaps more public exposure than many other one-family farms. Owned by Dale and Pattie Maulfair, with three 4-H aged children — Jennifer, and Daryl, and David, 8, the farm sits in a wide hollow just north of the banks of the Swatara Creek. The east-west Jonestown Road courses along the northern bank-ridge of the Swatara, and from it, a narrow public road cuts down a hill and through the Maulfair Acres farmstead — between the farmhouse lawn and the barn and sheds. While the road appears to be more a farm lane than anything else, it has received its share of increased use with residential development and commuterism. Because of the road's non-public appearance, it can probably be assumed that many who use the road are familiar with the farm, though Dale said he still gets surprised now and then by a car coming around the garage. A residential development along the Jonestown Road provides a lot of neighbors for the Maulfairs, something that has affected the farming operation — sometimes badly, but much has been good. Dale said that he has hired many development kids looking for summer work, and when his parents — Paul and Marion — lived at the farmhouse, Marion kept a small flock of layers and sold eggs on the honor system to the neighbors. His parents now live in the development, and his father is "semi-retired," coming down the hill to work everyday at the farm with feeding and field work and whatever else he can do to help Dale with the total 80 milking head of Holsteins and Ayrshires. The milking herd is split about evenly between the two dairy breeds. Dale said the Holsteins, about half registered, are averaging just under 26,000 pounds of milk, while the Ayrshires are right around 20,000. "(The Ayrshires) don't eat as much, they are smaller cows to begin with, but with the butterfat and protein they give you, I think if you sit down and figure it out, they're right there with the Holsteins," Dale said, adding that the Ayrshires are also ".. what the wife and kids want to show, and we're lucky enough to have the second highest average in the state for Ayrshires, right behind the Gables."

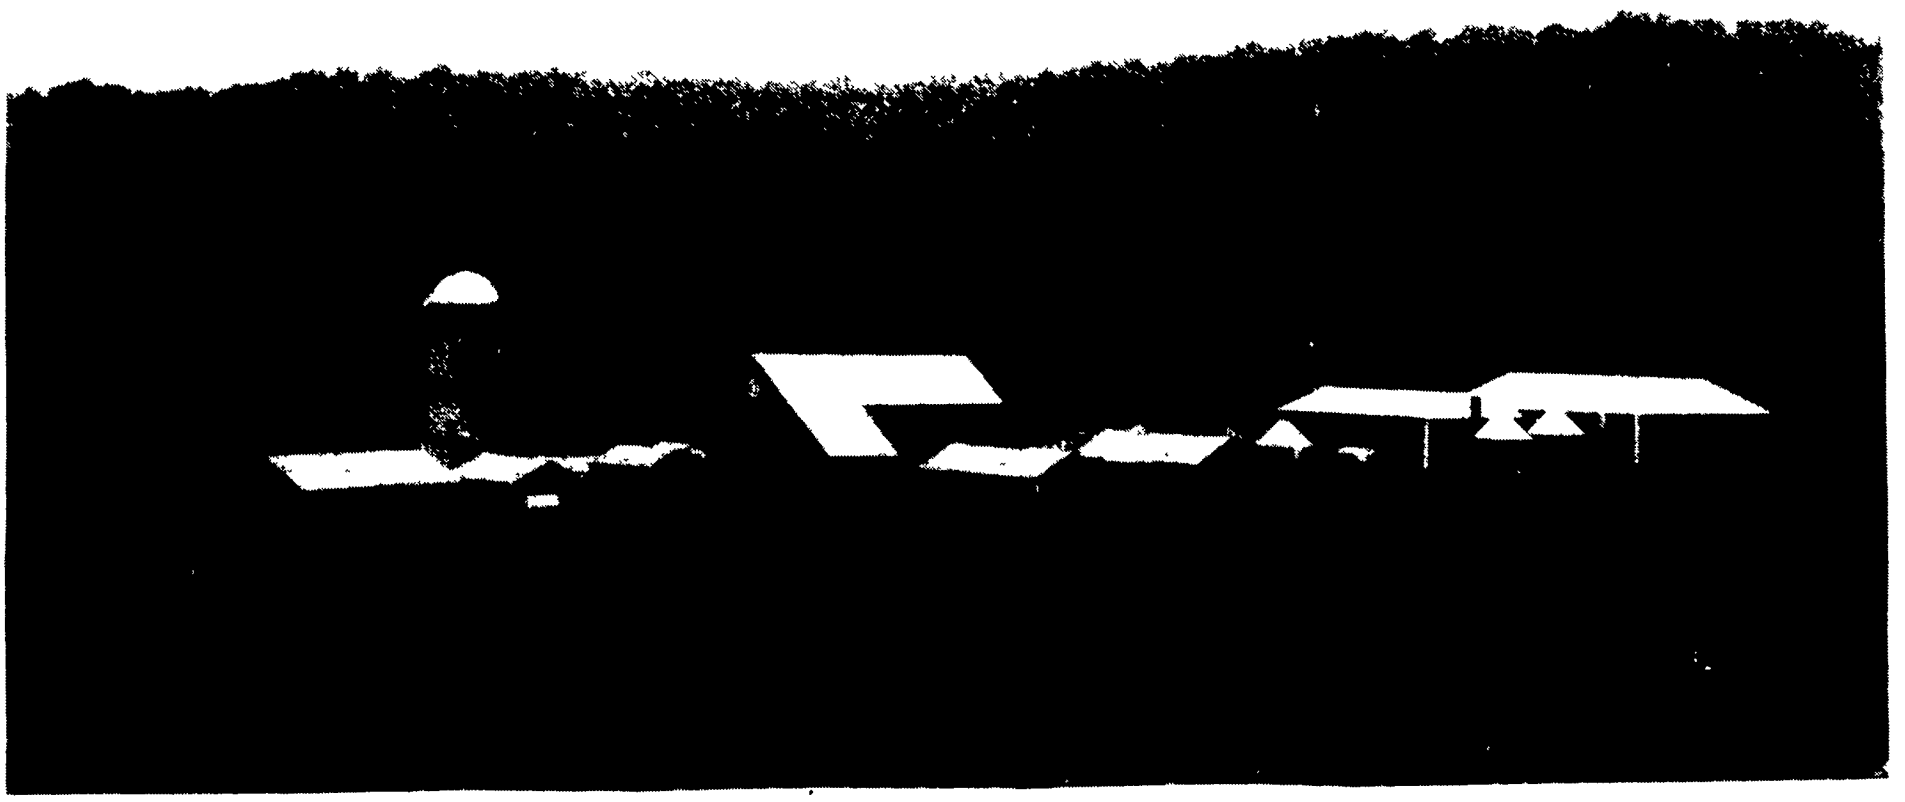
EDWARD SHULER & DAUGHTERS



Along Kraussdale Road, about a mile and a half east of East Greenville, a passerby can see the mostly red-painted buildings, dotted with a few white buildings, on the 115-acre dairy farm run by Edward Shuler and daughters Carrie, 16, and Maria, 17. Carrie said the three have been dairy farming together ever since her mother Kathleen died, seven years ago. They milk 62 Holsteins and sell milk to Rosenberger Dairies. "You can really see (the farm) from the road," she said, describing a pastoral view of corn fields, an extra-wide fence row, a backdrop of cedar trees above an orchard, a stone wall sitting in back, trees in yard, and heifers in pasture. The family was urged to apply for the Dairy of Distinction program by an artificial insemination technician who brought an application to the farm on one of his visits. The farm uses intensive grazing, in permanent paddocks established on the red-shale soil when Carrie's great grandfather first started dairy farming in 1917. Some of the buildings include the manure spreader shed, the milkhouse (separate from barn), and dry cow shed. They acreage is mostly pasture, and two streams meader through the pasture so cows always have access to fresh water. "My great grandfather bought the farm and moved here with great grandmother and his nine sons from Kansas; and then the farm went to the third youngest son, my grandfather; and then to my father, who's the youngest son," Carrie said.

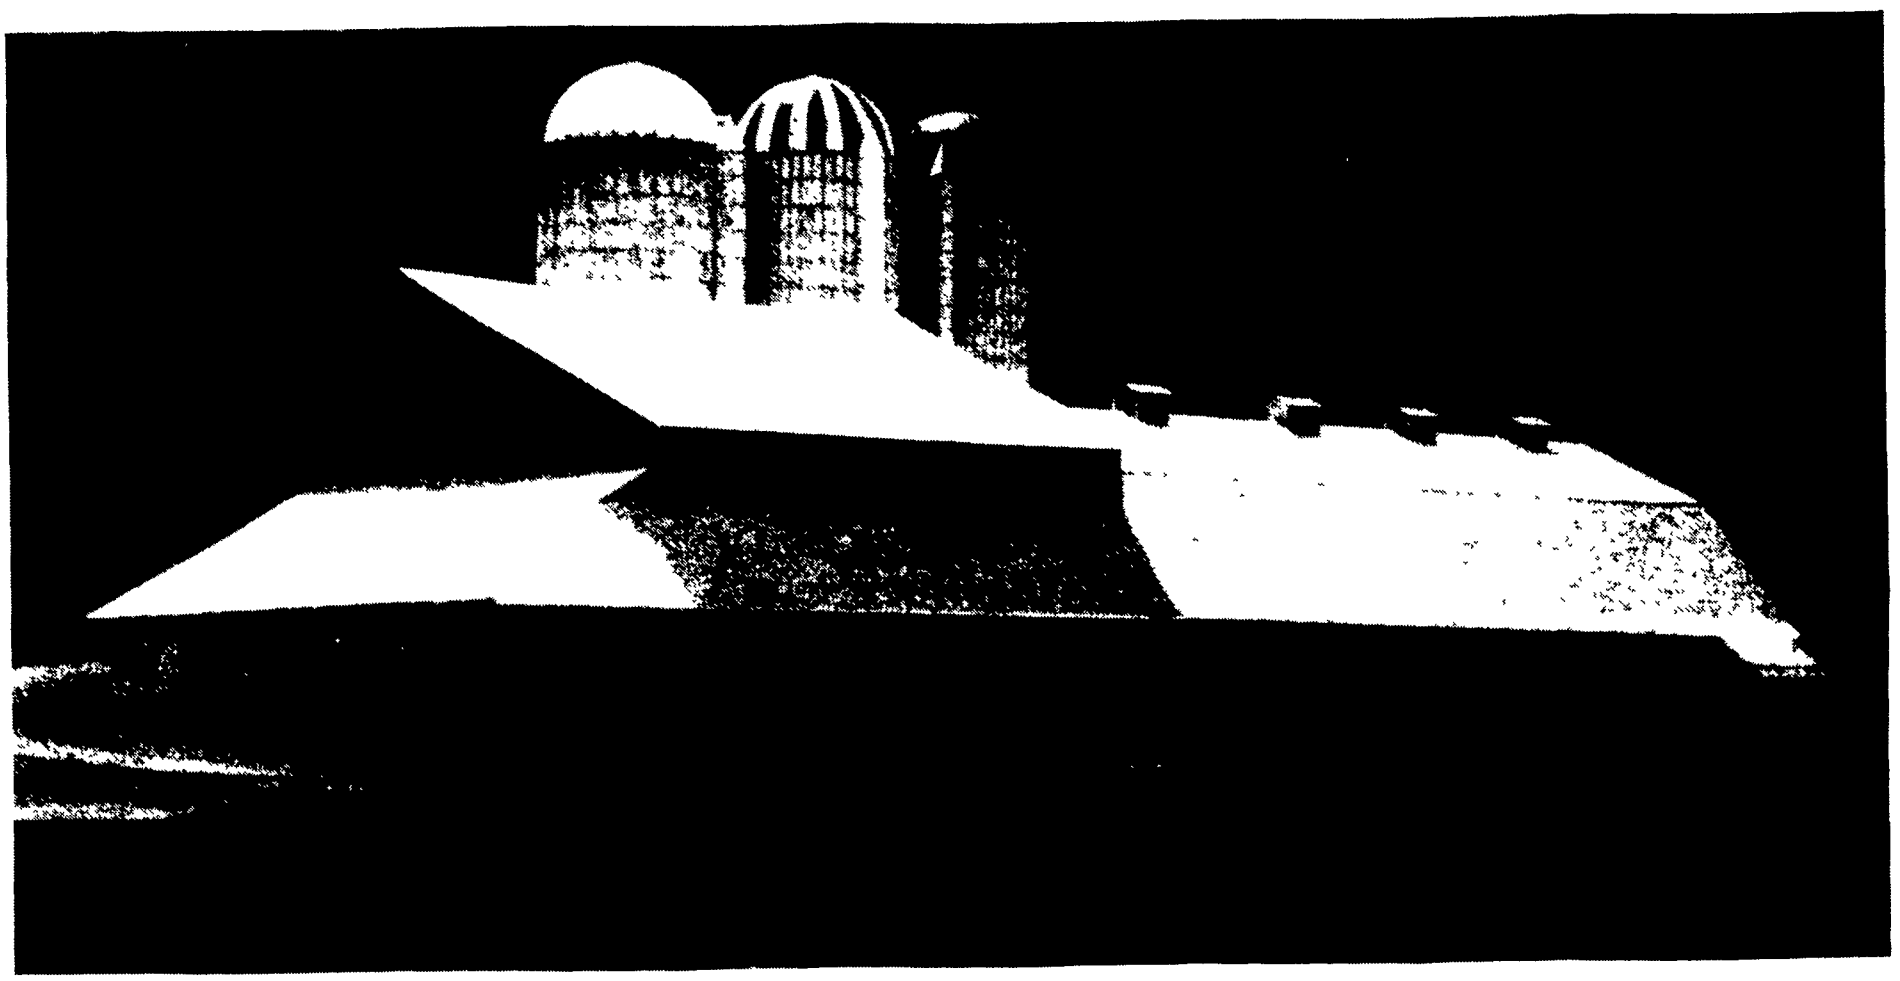
BLACK CREEK FARM



At Black Creek Farm located southwest of Liberty in Lycoming County, David and Gloria Zeafla and their son Paul, are in partnership with this new Dairy of Distinction. They farm 420 acres with oats, corn, and hay as their major crops. The farm lies along the Black Creek, thus the choice of a farm name.

They milk 75 Holsteins that average 19,000 pounds of milk and have young stock for replacements. In the last two years they have built a manure storage unit and they use contour strips to provide land conservation. They look for good advancement in the dairy business but believe it could be helped along if the Dairy Compact would be ratified by New York State.

LEISURE ACRE FARM

At this new Dairy of Distinction in Lycoming County, brothers George and Dave Ulrich farm 300 acres near the little town of Elimsport west of Allenwood. They milk 65 Holsteins that average 18,000 pounds of milk in a tiestall barn with a pipeline milker. They believe an important management need is to keep things well-organized and clean. Because the butter prices have gone up, they hope the price at the farm gate gets better, too. They use "Leisure Acre Farm" to identify their farming operation. The farm has been in the family since 1948.

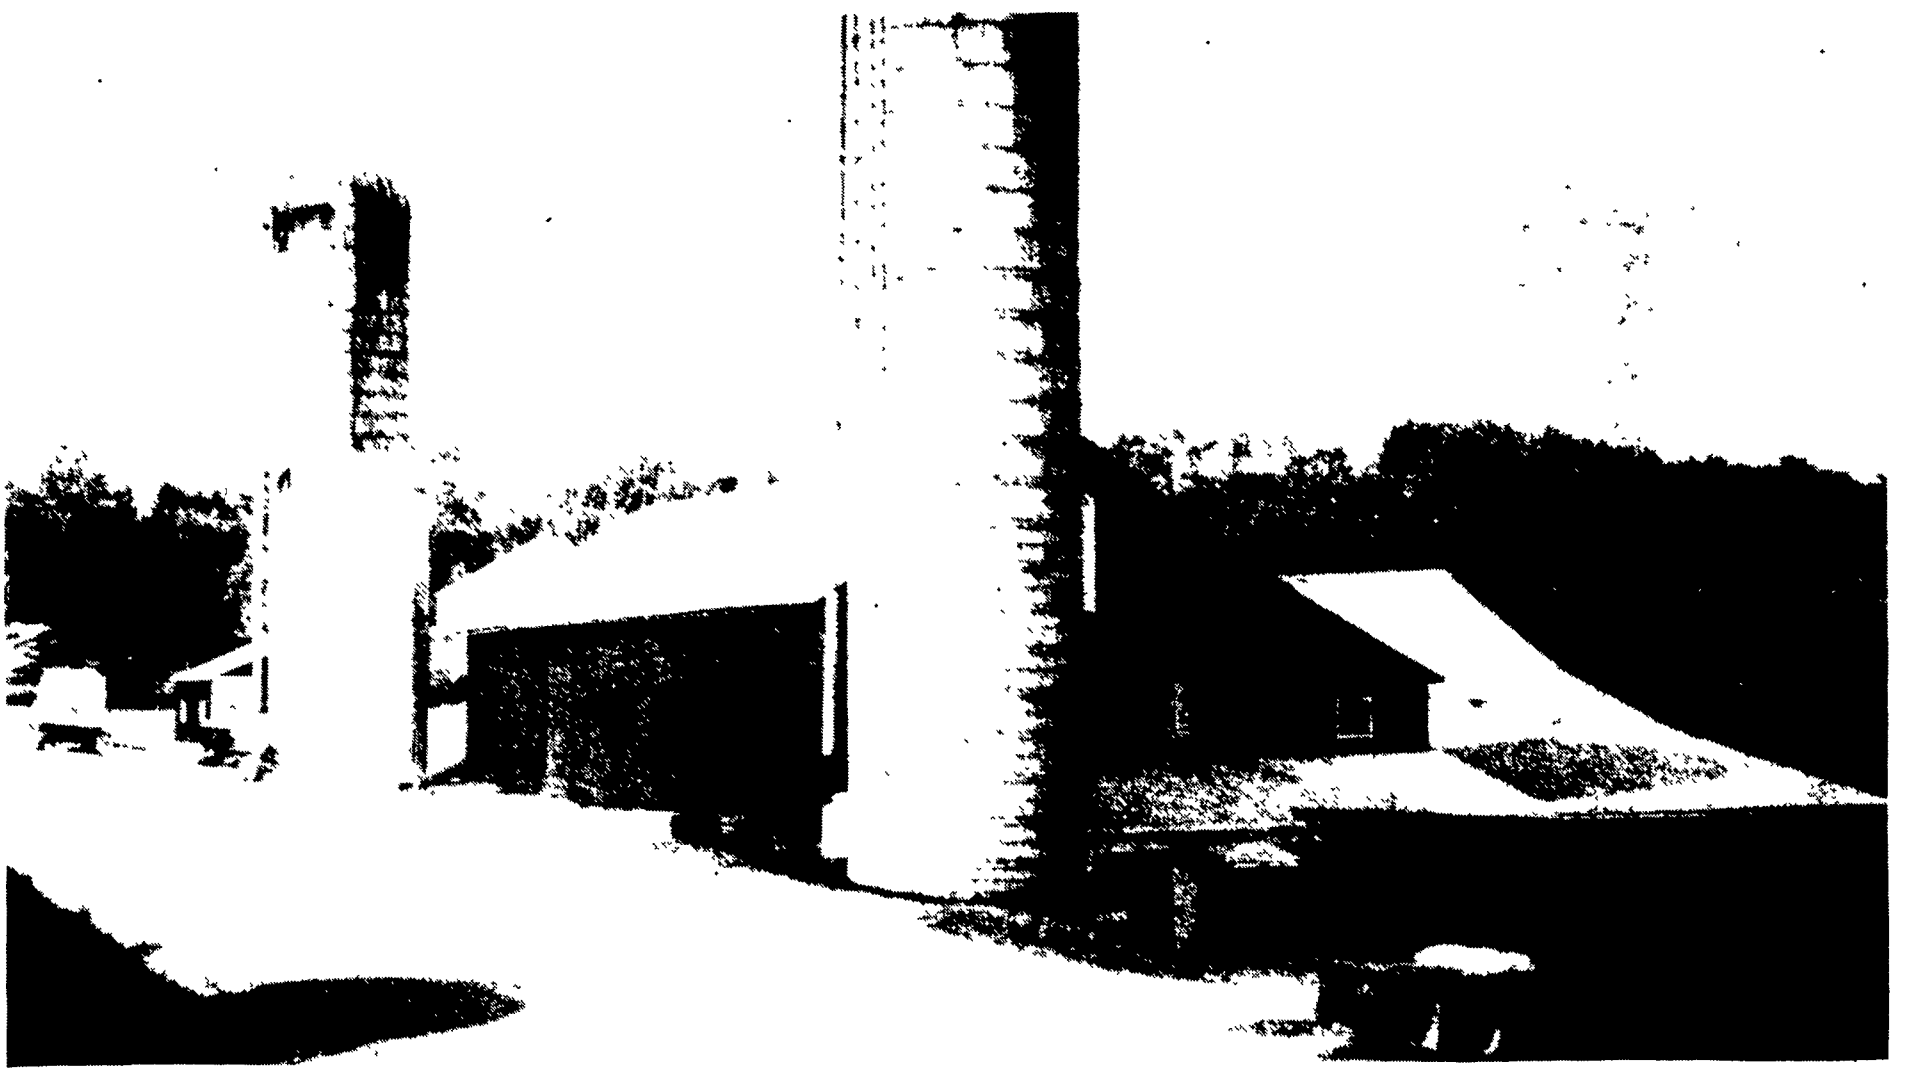
ULMER FARMS



For the last 16 years this new Dairy of Distinction in Lycoming County has been in the Ulmer family. Charles and Bonnie Ulmer Jr. and their children Seth, 18; Sara, 17; and Rachel, 14; farm 600 acres north of Williamsport. They milk 60 Holsteins and have a corresponding number of heifers and calves.

Bonnie spends a lot of time caring for the cows and she likes things neat and clean. Her flowers add a great touch to the appearance of the homestead too. Son Seth studied carpentry in high school and he has become quite proficient in building and fix-up projects that improve the place. With everyone working together, especially with the help of the children who Bonnie says they couldn't do without, the farming operation is successful.

MIFFLIN Dairy of Distinction

MILLBROOK FARM

Charles and Doreen Pent and their sons Charles and Daniel own Millbrook Farm located north of McVeytown in Mifflin County. They have a herd of registered Ayrshires they began on this new Dairy of Distinction farm four years ago after moving to Pennsylvania from Connecticut. Their 55 cows average 15,900 pounds of milk but are noticable high in protein and butterfat. In addition, the average cost to feed Ayrshires is just a little over half of what the other cows take on the county DHIA records.

The milking herd is housed in a tiestall barn with pipeline milkers and fed TMR. The young stock and dry cows are housed outside all year. The forage grown on the farm includes sudan/sorghum and peas/grass. These forages have higher protein content and show an increase in milk production when fed to the cows. Charles believes the dairy business will get better because many dairymen are leaving the business. But he still feels the governmnet controls the price more than necessary.

SCHUYLKILL

DUNNS-PRIDE FARM

The Dunns-Pride Farm, located near New Ringgold in Schuylkill County, is owned by James Dunn. Mostly registered Holsteins produce 27,000 pounds of milk. They milk in 86 tiestalls with 100 cows total plus all calves raised for beef or as replacements. They have flushed a few cows and have a few bulls in studs. James thinks good feed and good genetics are important. And he believes the good feed starts with good nutrient levels in the soil.

The farm was a vegetable and fruit farm 10 years ago. In that short time they have developed the herd and made imporvements on the farmstead to merit the Dairy of Distinction Award.

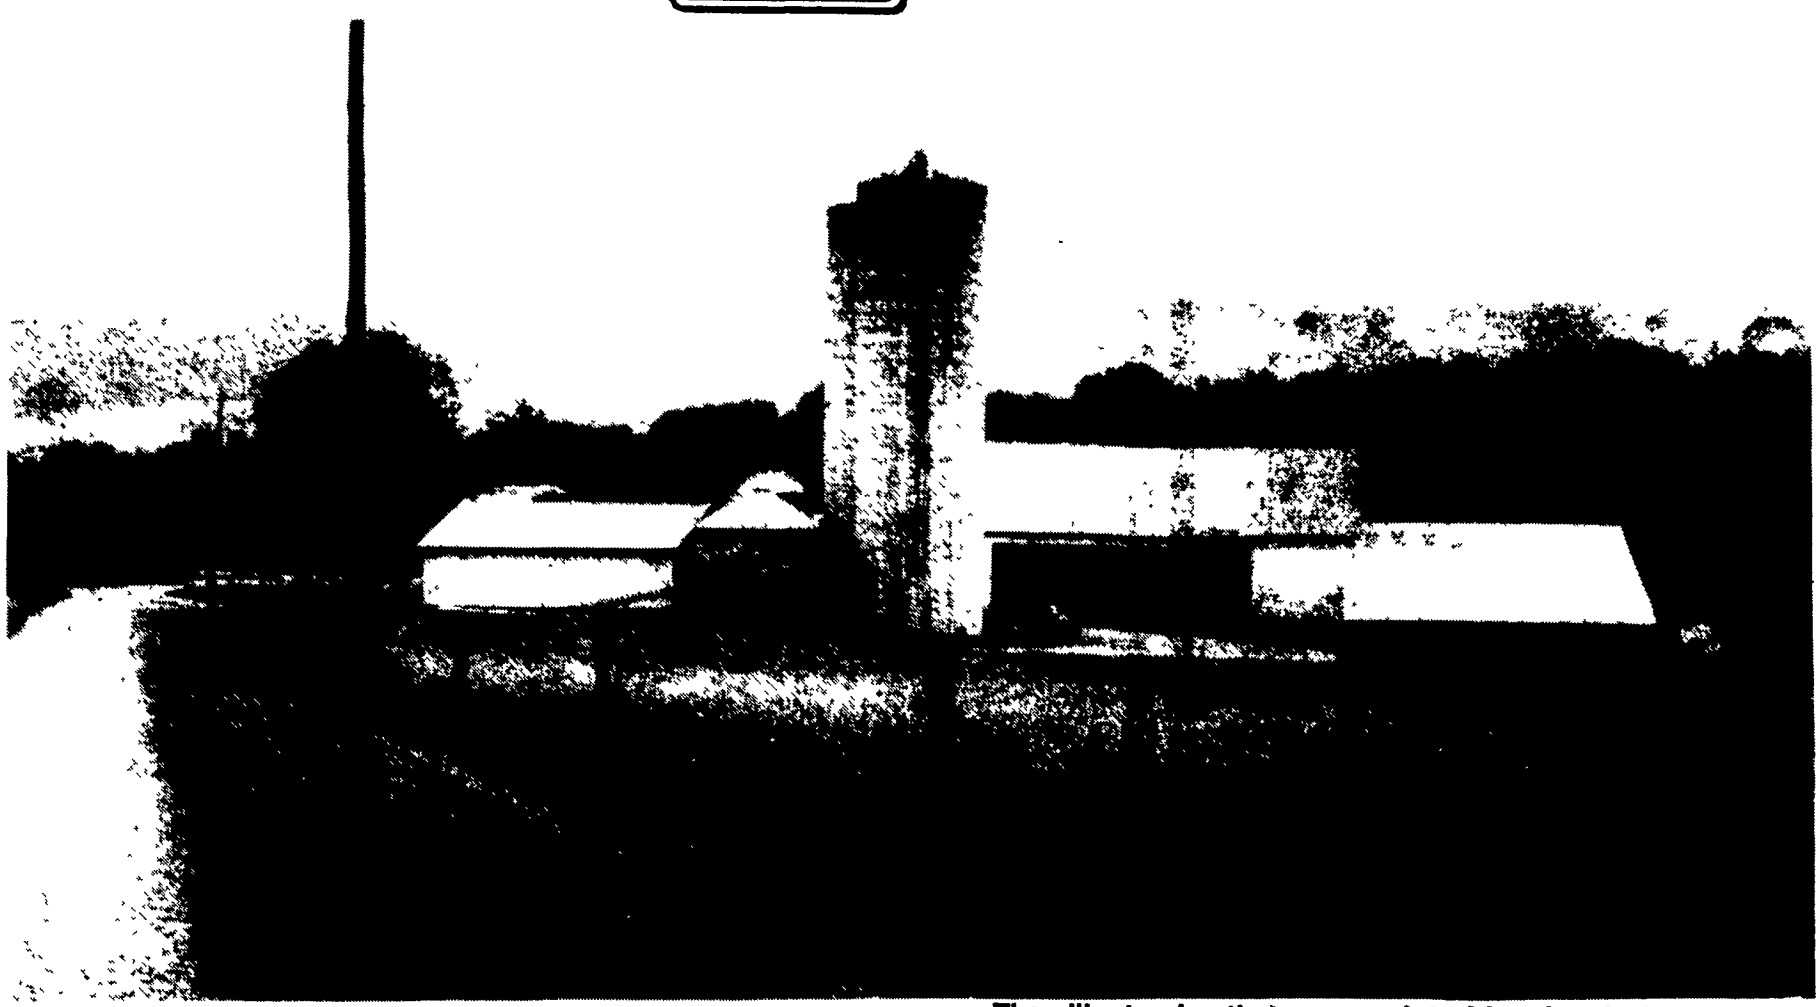
MIDDLECREEK FARMS



This new Dairy of Distinction farm in Snyder County is owned by Tanya and Karl Hertzler, Middleburg. Their children in the order of age are Terry Gregoire, Karyl Hoke, Kurt Hertzler, Kristina Hertzler, and Kevin Hertzler. The Hertzlers moved from Lancaster County in 1980 and farm 350 acres and milk registered Holsteins that average more than 18,000 pounds of milk. Crops include alfalfa, corn, barley and oats, and some sweet corn.

They like to give their cows a lot of freedom in freestalls and in summer they are out on pasture. The farm features soil conservation with crop management from West Branch Crop Management Association. They feed TMR and try to raise good forage and keep track of the cows through good records. While Tanya works away, she keeps the farm records and is credited with the good looks around the farm.

AWARD WINNERS

Dairy Of Distinction Winners Named

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) - Everyone traveling in Pennsylvania, both consumers and farmers, will have beautiful dairy farms to observe as they drive through our countryside. At this time each year the new Dairy of Distinction signs go up at the end of winning farm lanes to show everyone they have been judged to be clean, well kept farmsteads.

This year 33 new farms have been added to the 666 farms that had been recognized up to this time since the program began in Pennsylvania in 1987.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification program sponsors these awards to recognize those dairy farmers who pay particular attention to the appearance of their land and buildings. Most people who drive by the farm don't realize that in addition to a lot of work to produce milk, it also takes a lot of effort to keep the farmstead looking nice too. But whenever a consumer sees a nice looking dairy farm, the association with good wholesome milk is easy. And milk gets good publicity from this visual association.

Russ Rooks, president of the Pennsylvania program said that dairymen want the sign at their farm to provide advertising for milk. Others use the designation to help find good employees for the farm.

Created in 1983, the Dairy of Distinction Program is designed to highlight those farms that help to create a positive image for milk. Applicants for the award are judged by committees who evaluate the farms' roadside appearance, as well as the cleanliness of the grounds and buildings.

Winners receive official 18x24 "Dairy of Distinction" signs which are mounted at the roadside for all to see. Award-winning farms are also visited annually by the judging committee to ensure that they continue to meet the standards of excellence set by the program.

Pennsylvania has 10 districts that are run by local committees with area coordinators. These coordinators are:

GRANDVIEW FARM

At Grandview Farm in Somerset County, Harold and Ella Jean Troutman and their son Bradley, and son and daughter-in-law Larry and Kathy, and grandson Shawn, 12, farm 800 acres. The farm has been in the family more than 100 years. Located northwest of Hyndman, the Troutmans milk 110 mostly registered Holsteins in a tiestall barn with pipeline milkers. They buy protein for their TMR mix feeding system but raise most of the grain in the form of high moisture corn and the roughage of alfalfa and grass hay. They talk over management decisions with special emphasis on the crops to make sure they get good feed for the cows. They also have 90 head of young stock. Harold said he hopes the milk price goes up because there are always bills to pay for goods and services.

MAY HILL FARM

At May Hill Farm Harry and Virginia Rhoads with their son Tim and his wife Edith and their daughter Carol farm 170 acres on the home place and rent an additional 100 acres. They have two other married daughters, Jodell Antram and Judy Little.

The Rhoads milk 50 Holsteins that produce between 22,000 and 23,000 pounds of milk and have 30 calves and heifers for replacement. They milk in a conventional tie stall barn with a pipeline milker and feed TMR. Their main crops are corn, oats, and hay. As a manner of herd management they try to keep the cows comfortable with mats and fans. Cows are let out to pasture between milkings. Virginia said it seems dairy farming is more hectic than when they were children growing up on the farm. It seems to her you now have to fight the weather more to get hay dry or do other field work.

The farm is located three miles north of Berlin off Rt. 219 in Somerset County.

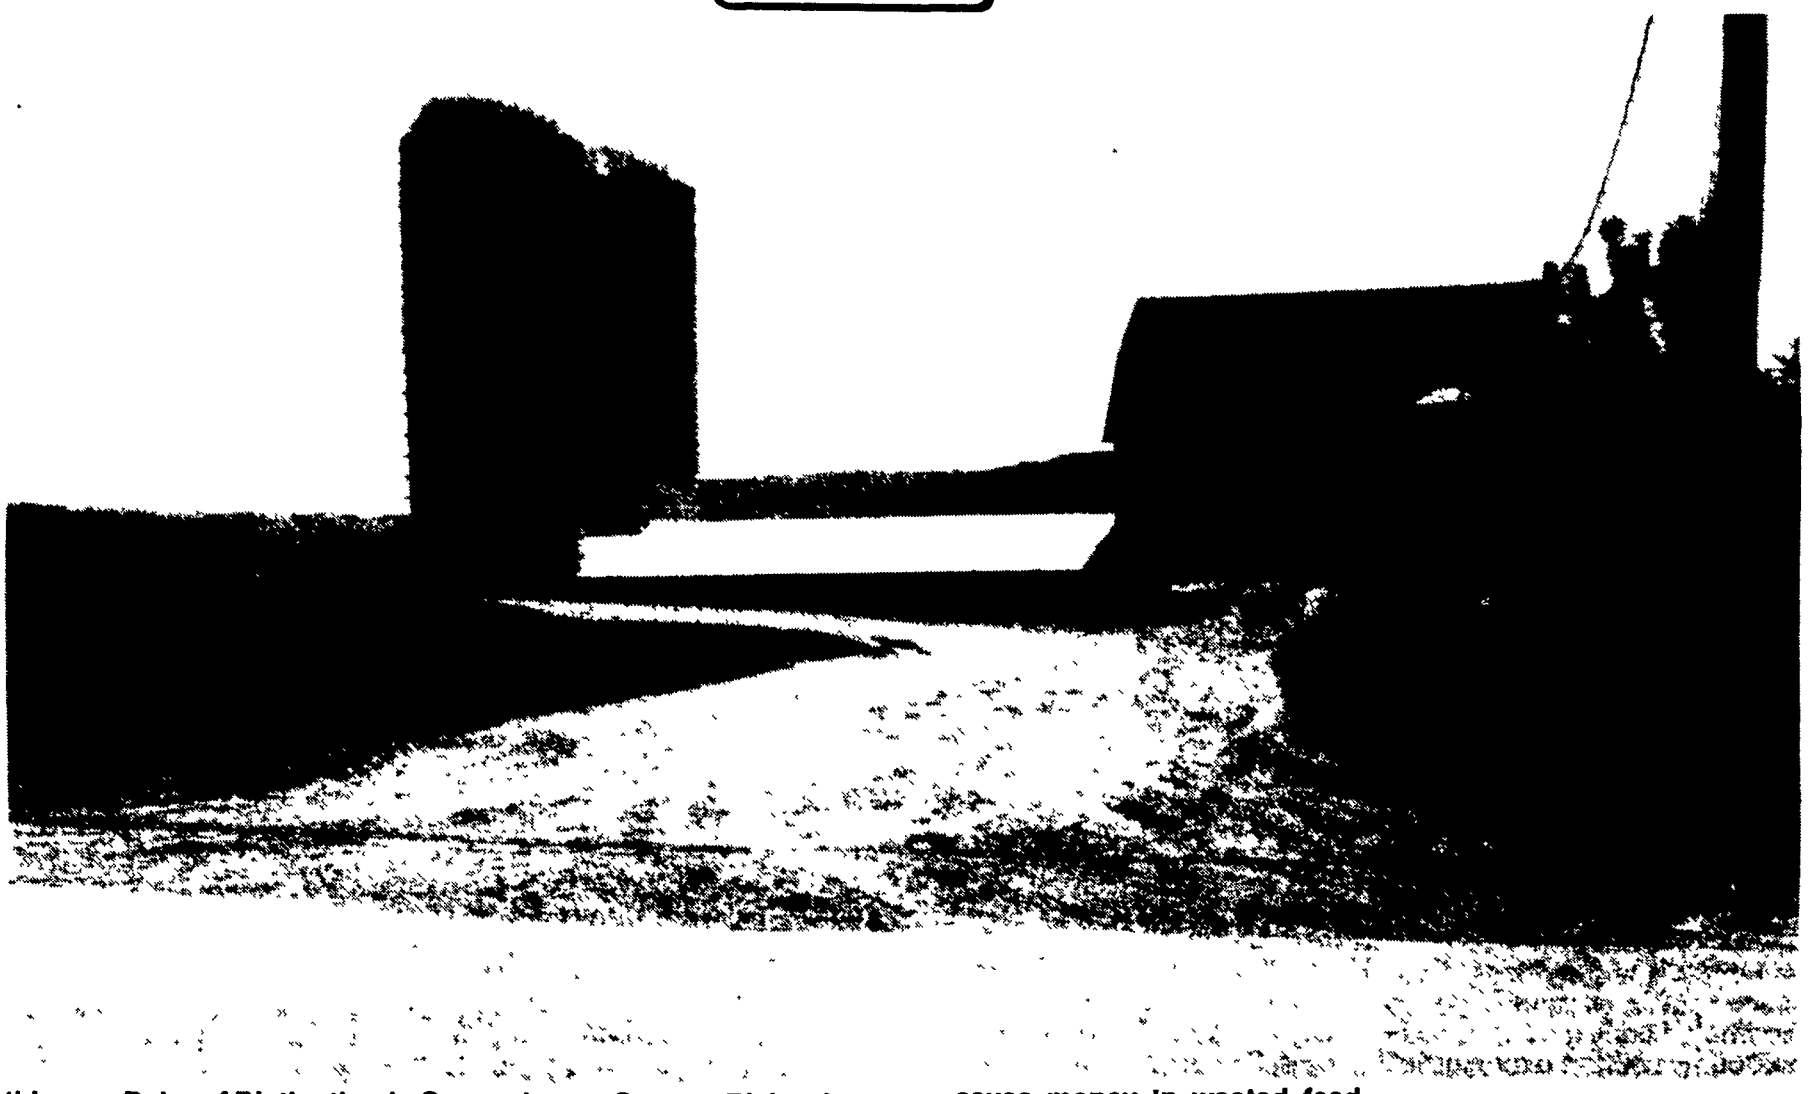
SUSQUEHANNA Dairy of Distinction

SHIPS-HOLM FARMS



At this new Dairy of Distinction in Susquehanna County, Richard and Mary Ann Shipsky and sons David and Richard Jr. farm 400 acres near Forest City. They milk 68 registered Holsteins that produce 22,000 pounds of milk. Farming for 40 years, Richard believes the most important management technique he uses is to feed the cows eight times a day with an automatic feeder. Each cow is fed to her production needs. This not only insures proper nutrition, it saves money in wasted feed.

They have a five-generation cow family that includes individuals classified Ex with several generations over 30,000 pounds of milk. Richard doesn't see much difference in the milk price outlook from what he has been hearing all his dairy farming life. The government wants cheap food for the citizens and autos and machinery are produced on high hourly wages so the farmer is in the squeeze.

TIOGA Dairy of Distinction

BUTTON HILL FARMS

This new Tioga County Dairy of Distinction has been in the Button family since 1958. Oliver and Virginia Button and their son and daughter-in-law Craig and Bobbi Button and children Macenzie, 6 and Macory, 4, farm 375 acres just west of Jackson Summit. They milk 70 Holsteins and have a total dairy herd of 160 head. Three silos and some silage put in bags make up the major portion of the ration. Along with haylage and corn silage they put peas in the silos that average 18 percent protein. Elevators from the silos bring the various ingredients together to feed the cows.

Oliver said it is hard for young people to get into farming but he believes its a good life. One principle he likes to follow is "pay as you go." He still beleives that dairy farming will some day pay very well.

TIOGA

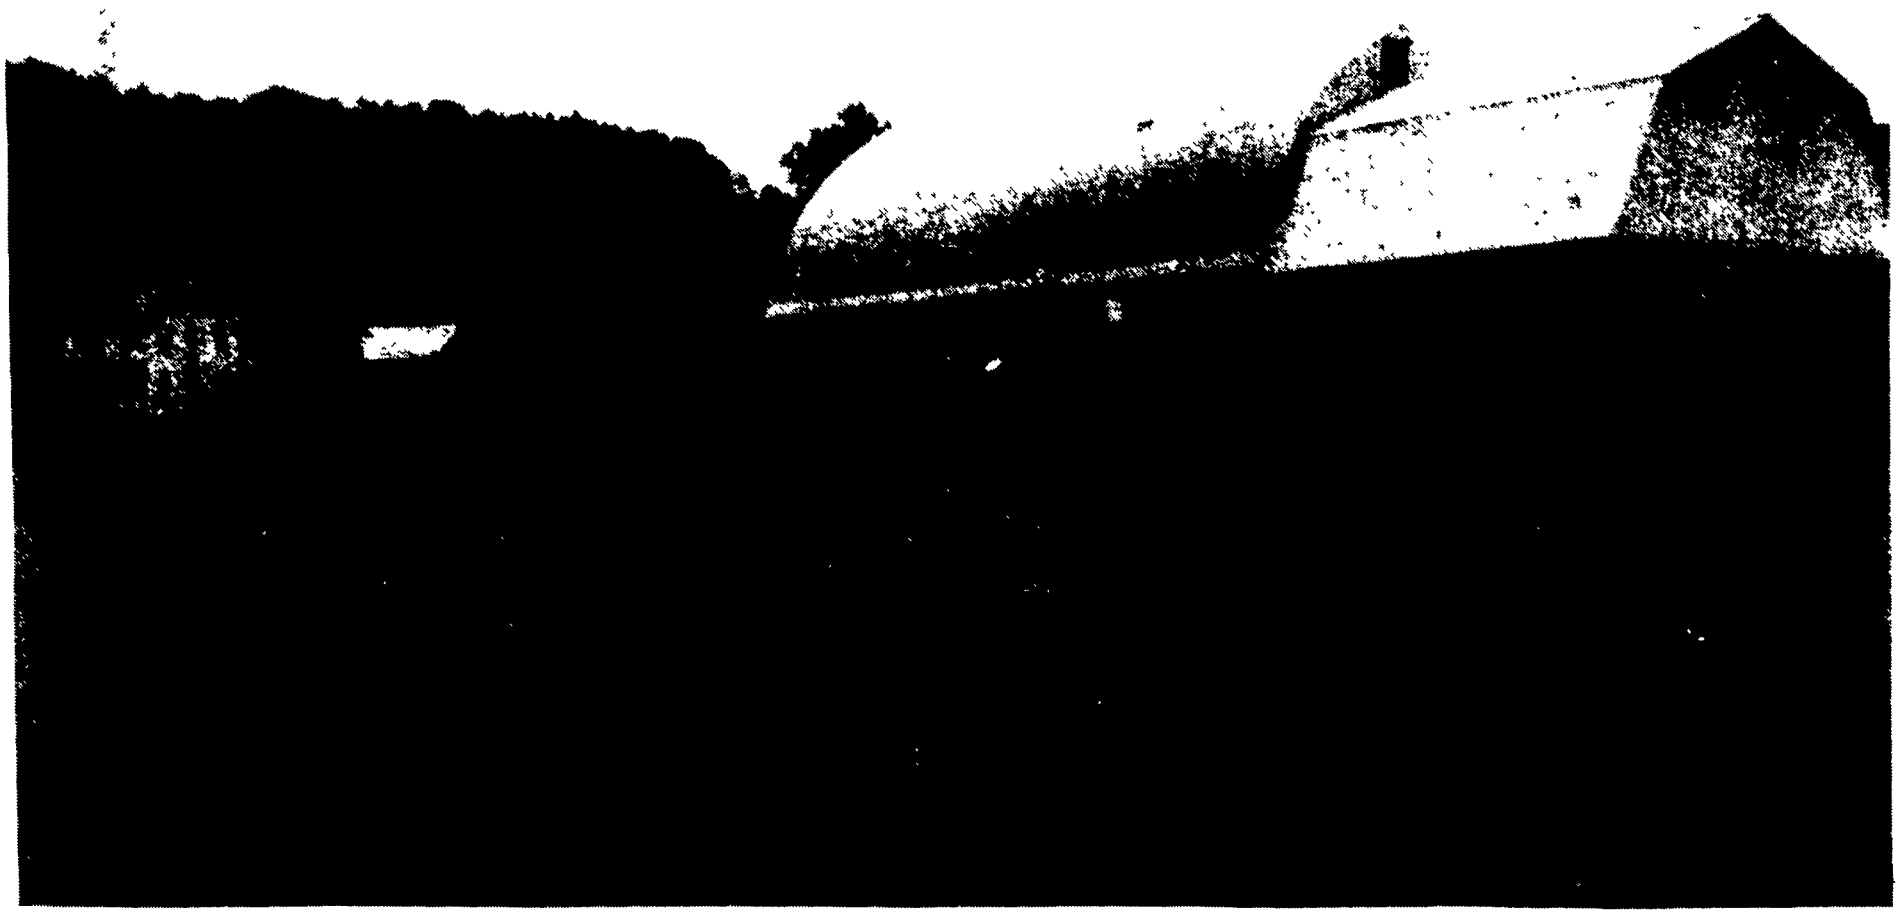
HEYLER FARM



The whole family gets involved at this new Dairy of Distinction in Tioga County located near Morris. Earl and Freda Heyler are retired on the farm and their children Ken and John Heyler and families provide the 5th and 6th generations to do the farming. Son Ken and his wife Sue have Kyle, 19 and Becky, 16. Son John and his wife Sue have Bethany, 17; Timothy, 12; and Tami, 10. The farm has been in the family since 1840 and passed down through the generations.

They farm 330 acres and milk 44 Holsteins in a tiestall barn. Herd average is 20,000 pounds of milk. They feed mostly haylage and hay grown on the farm. As a conservation practice they plow a minimum number of acres each year. They have a good outlook on the dairy business and believe there will always be a place for the family dairy farm.

Dairy of Distinction

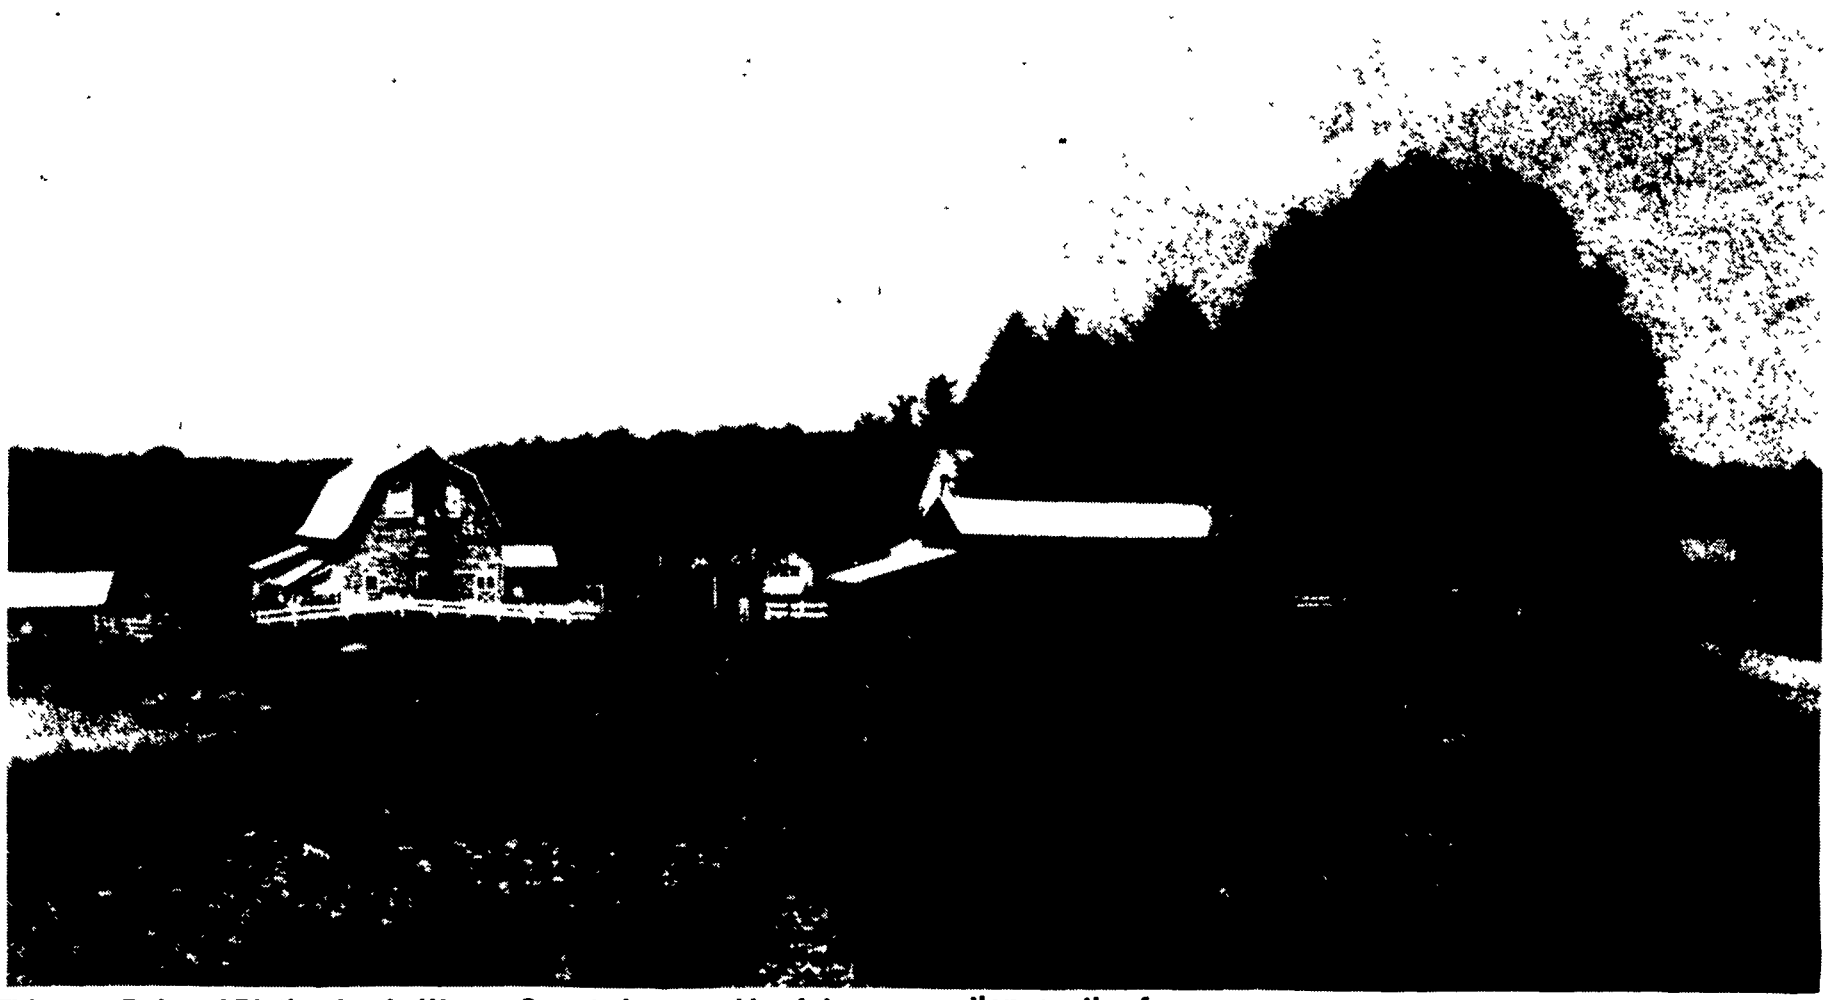
JOHN RICKARD



This new Dairy of Distinction in Wayne County is owned by John and Diane Rickard and their four children Stephen, 12; Andrew, 9; Michael, 8; and Zachery, 5. They farm 230 acres three miles south of Honesdale. They have 70 head of Holsteins and milk 42 cows that average about 19,000 pounds of milk. John's grandfather purchased the farm in the early 1920's and the boys represent the fourth generation on the farm.

The Rickards aim to keep overhead low and upgrade things as they go. They want to pay all the bills and have a little time to enjoy life. They say they make a good living but don't see the dairy farm supporting the next generation very well. But they believe the farm is a good place for the boys.

RICHARD STEVENS

Richard and Patricia Stevens and their son Rich and daughter-in-law Gina and grand children Patrick, 9; Moriah, 4; and Ricky, 1; farm 375 acres in Wyoming County northwest of Mehoopany. They milk Holsteins that average 21,000 pounds of milk. Overhead feeders that have been in place since 1974 are used to bring a forage mixture from the three silos to the feeder.

Herd health is the number one management necessity. This includes getting the cows bred back on time. The farm has been in the family nearly 100 years and Rick says farming is in his blood. You wouldn't farm if you didn't enjoy it.

YORK

H. E. HEINDEL & SONS

The H.E. Heindel & Sons Farm, Brogue in York County, consists of 2,100 acres of farmland. They have a registered Holstein herd under the prefix of Hyndel of 220 cows and are now also developing a registered Brown Swiss herd of top animals to fit into their flushing, embryo exporting, and AI contract business. There are 35 to 40 AI contracts for bulls in the herd right now.

The herd is on the Tri-Star program from Holstein USA that allows the DHIA records to be automatically updated to the pedigree file accessible through the Internet. Visitors from many countries receive this information and visit Heindel farm to see the cows. The farm also feeds 3,000 steers each year and raises crops to feed to the livestock. Jeff Heindel is the general manager and Dan Hushon is the dairy manager.

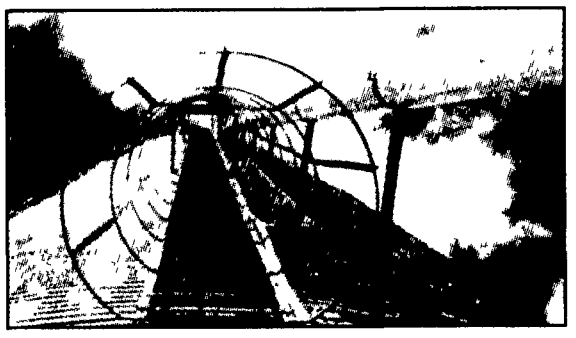
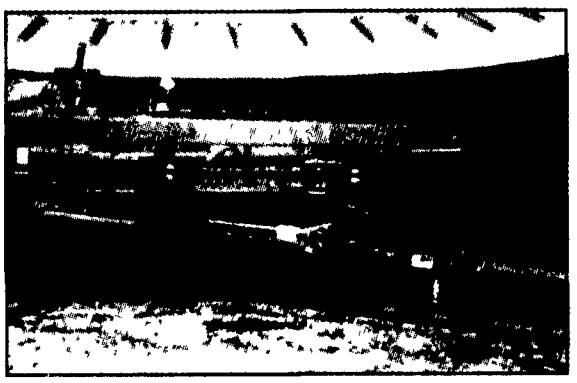
YOUR ALL-IN-ONE FARMSTEAD EQUIPMENT SOURCE

Silo Unloader Technology Takes a Giant Leap Forward!

BIG JIM Quantum™ SYSTEM

TOWER SILOS REALLY MEASURE UP!





Measure for measure, nothing beats a tower silo for storing forage. Just compare them to bunkers which have up to 45% storage loss, lower capacity, increased labor and lots of inconvenience.

Towers lose just 3% to 7% because of gravity, feed weight and a good unloader like the Big Jim QUANTUM System.

QUANTUM can be installed in any type of 20' to 30' forage silo. . . conventional or oxygen limited and will make your tower silo even better!
